City Nurse Wins $48,000

A Victoria woman is $48,600 richer after her horse ran second in the Lincolnshire Handicap today and won her a second prize in the Irish Hospital Sweepstake.

Mrs. Olive Horan, a nurse at Royal Jubilee Hospital who lives at 48—2780 Spencer Road, had ticket XEC 70168 under the pseyudonym Closer on the second-place finisher, Tandy.

A 12-year-old schoolgirl from the B.C. Interior town of Malawka, Colleen Blomquist, won $121,600 with her ticket on the winner, the 30-1 shot Double Cream.

"I don't know why we put it (the ticket) in her name," her mother, Joan Blomquist, said in a telephone interview. "I guess it's because she has a good Irish name. We really didn't expect to win."

The first thing Colleen intends to do with her winnings is buy a $169 western saddle for her pet Arabian quarterhorse Kitten.

"I'm also going to buy a horse for my sister Judy," Colleen said. "I just get a thrill on a horse — it's something between the horse and me.

"Of course I'm going to split it (the winnings) all up with my family."

Colleen's ticket was bought by her parents, Walter and Joan, part owners of Blomquist Bros. Logging Ltd. of Malakwa, 13 miles east of Sicamous on the Trans-Canada Highway.

Mrs. Blomquist said the family would take a trip to Europe to her native England and her husband's native Sweden.

Hazel Smith of Smithers said in an interview she is also going to buy a horse out of her $48,600 winnings.

Loyalists Claim Win

Times News Services

NEW DELHI — Government forces claimed victory today in its civil war against rebellious East Pakistan's bid for independence.

Strict censorship hampered newsmen trying to piece together the situation but it appeared the heavily-armed central government troops were winning out over East Pakistan's police and civilian forces — but at a heavy toll.

One report said 10,000 persons have been killed in the fighting and at least one town was bombed by government planes.

The central government in West Pakistan — separated from the eastern section by 1,000 miles (see map below) — said order was being restored.

★ ★ ★

The Press Trust of India said central government tanks and artillery were used against civilians supporting Sheikh Mujibur, who has declared East Pakistan independent as the state of Bangla Desh (Bengal Nation).

Members of Sheikh Mujibur's Awami People's League said they held the town of Comilla, which was bombed by Pakistani air force jets, Press Trust said.

The central government radio said Sheikh Mujibur was arrested Friday. But the clandestine rebel radio, monitored across the border in India, said he was directing operations and had called on all East Pakistanis to join the battle.

Reports reaching border towns in India said there was heavy fighting around Dacca and the port city of Chittagong, where Awami League rebels were said to be controlling the local radio station.

But the government radio said civil servants were going back to work in Dacca and the curfew there had been lifted for nine hours today.

Press Trust said the 10,000 reported victims of the civil war died in battles at Dacca, Chittagong, Comilla, Naraingunj, Rangpur, Khulna and Jessore.

INDIA KEEPS OUT OF WAR

Times News Services

NEW DELHI — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi today praised the political philosophy of the rebel Awami League seeking independence for East Pakistan.

But Mrs. Gandhi said India would stay aloof from the civil war under way between supporters of the league and central Pakistani forces.

Jordan Troops Seal Off City

BEIRUT, Lebanon (Reuter) —Jordanian troops today sealed off the northern city of Irbid, scene of fighting with Palestinian commando units Friday, and began searching it for arms and suspects, reports reaching here said.

Travellers from the city, Jordan's second largest, said security forces have set up roadblocks at all entrances and were turning back people trying to enter the city.

Some reports said there had been intermittent shooting in Irbid today but there was no information from the government or commando side about the situation.

A Palestinian Arab commando statement in Beirut said a 10-year-old child was among four persons killed and 15 wounded in Friday's day-long fighting. In Amman, the government accused commandos of killing a police guard but issued no other casualty figures.

Government announcements said the fighting began when Palestinian commandos attacked security forces after the discovery of a large cache of guerrilla weapons hidden in a coffin in a local cemetery.

Further Crackdown Due for B.C. Smokers

By PETER McNELLY

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark indicated Friday the government may take steps to discourage further the use of tobacco even though it has already moved to ban advertising of tobacco products.

The government introduced two bills in the legislature Friday which prohibit tobacco and liquor advertising in British Columbia by Sept. 1, 1971.

Speaking about tobacco, Loffmark said, "We decided this bill is sufficient for the time being, but I would not want to say this represents all the government might do or ought to do in deterring the use of tobacco."

He said non-smokers used to be on the defensive 20 years ago but now smoking is less socially desirable.

Leaders of both opposition parties welcomed the bills.

Opposition Leader Dave Barrett said the NDP will vote for them, but he said that liquor and tobacco companies should be forced to put their advertising money into health research programs and alcoholism rehabilitation.

GARDOM'S BILL

Liberal Leader Pat McGeer said, "Of course we'll support it. I'm delighted they've accepted Gardom's bill."

McGeer was referring to his colleague Garde Gardom's (L — Vancouver-Point Grey) bill earlier in the session which also would have banned tobacco advertising.

McGeer said elimination of smoking would be the greatest public health measure in the world today. Diseases related to smoking include lung cancer, heart diseases, emphysema and bronchitis.

During a press conference immediately following introduction of the bills, Premier Bennett dodged questions about whether the government expected court battles as a result of the legislation.

But Loffmark said the government intends to go as far as is legally possible.

He said it will be very difficult to control liquor and tobacco advertising in newspapers and magazines published outside the province.

"If it transpires that it is not possible to restrict the circulation of magazines and any published material from outside the province, we hope the lead B.C. has taken will encourage other jurisdictions to take measures similar to ours."

Loffmark said he could not

Faculty Backs CAUT Proposals

The faculty association at the University of Victoria Friday voted overwhelmingly in favor of a strongly-worded motion urging the administration to accept proposals from the Canadian Association of University Teachers.

The CAUT has called for establishment of an impartial tribunal to hear the cases of Dr. Tikam Jain and Dr. William Goede, two assistant professors denied tenure, and philosophy lecturers Toby Graff, who was refused promotion.

Administrators at Uvic, led by president Bruce Partridge, have repeatedly rejected the CAUT's proposal for a tribunal comprising one member appointed by Partridge, one member by the aggrieved parties, and a third to be appointed by B.C.'s Supreme Court Chief Justice.

The administration has said it complied with the literal requirements of Uvic's tenure document. The CAUT agrees but charges the "spirit" of the document was not met.

Faculty and students at Uvic have expressed fear the administration's stand might result in censure for the university — a blacklist within the CAUT which has membership on 47 Canadian campuses.

BLOCK VOTES

At the faculty association meeting Friday afternoon, 137 professors voted in favor of the CAUT, 37 abstained and 14 voted against.

12 B.C. Deformities Blamed on Measles

VANCOUVER (CP) — The German measles epidemic which began in 1970 has already caused deformities in 12 infants born in British Columbia, and more are expected, Dr. Don Kettyls, the head of the virus department of the provincial laboratories, said Friday.

None of the reported deformities was in the Victoria area, according to Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, chief medical officer, metropolitan board of health.)

In a speech to a conference on infectious diseases, Dr. Kettyls said he expects the

LIMIT SEEN ON LEVEL OF AUTOMOBILE NOISE

The government intends to establish maximum noise levels for motor vehicles and will require some people to take physical examinations before they can get drivers licences.

The proposals were outlined in amendments to the Motor Vehicle Act introduced in the legislature Friday.

The amendments also provide for photographing of new licensees. This change had been indicated earlier in the session by Attorney-General Leslie Peterson.

The noise-control amendment also allows the government to set regulations preventing the sale of motor vehicles and engines which do not comply with the maximum noise level to be established.

Because he was absent Friday, Peterson was not available to say who might be required to take physical fitness examinations and how the permissible noise level would be set.

. . . FACULTY VOTES

The motion read: "The members of the faculty association urge, in the strongest possible way, that the university administration accept the recommendations of the CAUT executive regarding Drs. Jain and Goede and Mr. Graff.

About 150 students waited outside the meeting room where the faculty association was debating the motion. As faculty members filed out of the room students lined up three-deep on either side of the door, formed a corridor and applauded continuously until all the professors had left.

FOUR HOURS

The faculty vote followed on the heels of a student referendum that drew the highest student voter turnout in Uvic's history over a period of four hours.

Polls opened at 8 a.m. and closed at noon, and 54 percent of the student body cast ballots.

They voted solidly in favor of Partridge's resignation or dismissal and also in overwhelming support of the CAUT's proposals.

Some 69.3 per cent of the students voted against Partridge, and 91.4 per cent voted in favor of the CAUT.

CASES CLOSED

It said the cases of the teachers who have been denied contract renewal are closed.

The statement said to reopen them would establish "dangerous precedents" because of the "enormous political pressure which is being brought to bear on the university."

A spokesman for the student steering committee attacked the statement for what he charged was distortion of the facts.

"The president clearly does not recognize the difference between 'political pressure' and a constitutional crisis which he has created."

He said that in the three cases in question "the president has unilaterally chosen to impose limits" on CAUT procedures available to cover the situation.

MEDIATION

"We assume that the board originally acted in good faith and explicit knowledge of the nature of CAUT mediation procedures. The president now is clearly in bad faith by failing to accept the procedures and continually distorting the rights of the three professors."

"A clear majority of the students and faculty indicated Friday that they do not believe the cases 'have been decided in accordance with the tenure document'."

Meanwhile Justin Harbord of the board of governors repeated a stand he took at a mass meeting of Students Thursday in which he said censure would mean little to Uvic and that he would ignore non-confidence motions in Partridge.

He said Partridge was brought in to do a specific job and was doing it well as "a thoroughly competent administrator."

"We hired a man to . . . see we got value for our money from both the faculty and plant."

WELL AWARE

"We were well aware in advance that he would run into criticism. We expected it. This university was in a mess and Partridge has done a good job in cleaning up some of that mess."

He said the crisis had been generated by faculty resenting Partridge's discipline.

Partridge said Friday night he had no intention of resigning but would continue on "to help Uvic become the great university it has the potential to be."

He said the student vote calling for his dismissal "shows we have not done as good a job as we should have in telling the students the university's position."

"Uvic is never going to become the great university it could be as long as it has a president who does not hold the academic credentials to be accepted by his peers at this university or anywhere else," said Norman Wright, former Alma Mater Society president and steering committee member.

Wright also attacked Harbord and the rest of the board of governors.

Harbord, he said, "lacks the basic understanding of the ideas necessary to be a member of the board."

"They're accusing everyone of intellectual imbecility, the students and the faculty. It's the hard line of men who have nothing else to offer. They've created the bloody situation themselves."

On the student front, a petition calling for censure of Alma Mater Society president Ian J. McKinnon and demanding his resignation for actions "detrimental to the promotion of student interests" had drawn about 700 signatures by Saturday morning.

The petition will be introduced at a meeting of the representative assembly meeting Sunday night.

In an earlier development, reports of furious activity at the university's duplicating and mailing offices at about 2 a.m. Friday drew curious students to the area.

But a blanket of security had been thrown over the operation and students investigating came up with a blank.

It turned out later a statement signed by Partridge and four deans was delivered to faculty in a campus mail delivery at 3 p.m. Friday, half an hour before a faculty association meeting.

STATEMENT

Another statement signed by arts and science dean John Climenhaga and fine arts dean Peter Garvie was attached.

Members of the Uvic senate got copies by special delivery Friday evening.

The Times received the first half of the document as a press release at 3:30 p.m.

The statement by Partridge reiterated his stand that the cases of Dr. William Goede, Dr. Tikam Jain and Toby Graff were closed and would not be reopened despite "enormous political pressure," because to do so would establish a dangerous precedent.

REJECTION

It re-stated the administration's rejection of the Canadian Association of University Teachers and its proposals.

But the statement by Garvie and Climenhaga, which dealt with the 12 faculty involved in a contract dispute, said the current status of Goede, Graff and Jain was in a state of appeal to the CAUT "to assist in their cases."

Earlier in the week a "personal and confidential" memo from Partridge to individual faculty members was delivered by the administration to the press as a news release several hours before it went to faculty members.

At Jessore airport, the army — mainly composed of West Pakistani troops — machine-gunned 1,500 civilians carrying spears, sticks and daggers, the agency reported.

In New Delhi, Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi described the situation as "not merely the suppression of a movement but meeting unarmed people with tanks."

She said Pakistan had lost an opportunity to strengthen itself in a manner which is "tragic and agonizing, about which we cannot find strong enough words."

Ontario Mother of 8 Wins $121,500 Prize

By The Canadian Press

Audrey Walker, a 43-year-old mother of eight from Inglewood, Ont., won $121,500 today when Double Cream was first to the wire in the Lincolnshire Handicap at Doncaster, England.

Mrs. Walker was one of five Canadians who held Irish Hospitals Sweepstake tickets on Double Cream.

"We've been married 28 years and never had a holiday so one thing I would like is for my husband to get away even if just for a week," said Mrs. Walker.

Her husband, Alexander, 46, earns just over $100 a week as quarry manager for Corners Sandstone Quarries of Glen Williams, Ont. Their home is about 30 miles northwest of Toronto.

Seven of the couple's children, ranging in age from four to 22, live at home. The eldest son, who is 23, is married and has two children. Their youngest son is Timmy, whose name was used as a nom-de-plume on the winning ticket

WON'T MOVE

"One thing we won't be looking for is a new home," said Mrs. Walker. "Our place is about 80 years old but has plenty of rooms—seven bedrooms."

Mrs. Walker said she plans to make a number of donations to charitable or medical institutions, and wants to buy a small car to supplement their truck.

"My husband is still going to go on working and we don't intend to let the money change our way of life," she said.

Mrs. Walker has been buying sweepstake tickets for a number of years and always regarded her purchases as donations. The sweepstake is an international lottery held in aid of hospitals in the Republic of Ireland.

Mrs. Walker was one of two Ontario residents who won the top prize. The other was A. W. (Tom) Tompkins, 76, of Oakville, a former employer of the Canadian Arsenals plant in Port Credit. His wife died last year.

FIVE WERE SECOND

Five Canadians also held tickets on the second-place finisher, Tandy, and will receive about $48,600 each.

"I'm just a little excited, not too much," said Edith Shuter, who planned to treat her husband to a celebration dinner tonight.

Mrs. Shuter, who was born in Saskatoon, has travelled all over Europe, Canada and the United States with her husband, E. H. Shuter, a retired lieutenant-colonel and formerly of the Queen's Own Rifles.

Col. Shuter, who left his native Birmingham, England, at the age of three, now is a secretary at the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto.

Mrs. Shuter, who has four grown children, is an elementary school teacher and has no plans to quit.

"I just love those Grade 2 kids and wouldn't think of leaving them."

Asked how he felt about it all, Mr. Shuter said: "It's her money."

Only two Canadians held tickets on Brother Scot, who took third place. Each wins about $24,300

A total of 234 Canadians held tickets on the Lincolnshire and those whose horses were non-starters or out of the running will get about $1,100 each, depending on the size of the total pool.

The total amount of money put into the pool by Canadians cannot be estimated since the sale of sweepstake tickets is illegal in Canada. But the Canadian winnings totalled an estimated $1,143,300.

The other three Canadians who held tickets on Double Cream were identified unofficially as Coleen Blomquist, Malakwa, B.C.; N. T. Godfrey, Saskatoon; and Mike and Pat Bahrich, Saskatoon.

Also holding tickets on Tandy were Lorraine Beauchamp, St. Boniface, Man.; Hazel Smith, Smithers, B.C.; Olive Haran, Victoria; and H. Wlodkowski, Toronto

The two Canadians who won $24,300 with tickets on third-place finisher Brother Scot were identified as Agnes McCallum of Toronto and B. Creelman of Stewiacke, N.S.

Protest Film 'Evidence'

A Vancouver lawyer has taken steps to obtain a CBC film of the demonstration at the opening of the B.C. legislature session last Jan. 21 to submit as an exhibit at a trial scheduled to be held in provincial court April 30.

The trial involves Paul Watson, 23, of Vancouver, charged with assaulting causing bodily harm to George MacKay, a retired RCMP superintendent who was acting as a guard at the opening.

He is also charged with causing a distrubance by shouting.

Peter Leask, Watson's lawyer, asked Judge William Ostler for a delay because one witness was "giving birth to a child" and because steps to obtain a "film representation of the acts" from Toronto had not been completed.

He said the film might provide a complete pictorial record of the events.

The judge granted a delay to April 30.

Protection Asked for Local Firms

Protection of locally-owned and community-oriented businesses was urged by the Truck Loggers' Association in a brief submitted to a legislative committee Thursday.

"The alternative, which is earnestly to be avoided," the brief said, "is that all business and all employers will be corporate giants."

By implication this meant the majority of employers would be foreign-owned companies, it said.

"When that stage is reached there is a tendency for business to have all too little interest in community responsibilities and too much indifference to the management of public lands under licence."

Ad Ban Hits Papers

Several small newspapers and magazines are expected to be killed or crippled by the B.C. government's plan to ban tobacco and alcohol advertising.

The proposed ban, announced Friday in the legislature, will cause newspapers, magazines, radio and TV stations to lose advertising reveneus estimated at almost $3 million a year.

Full impact of the ban, described as a severe blow by men in the advertising business, was still being determined today.

Prince George brewery chief Ben Ginter was critical of the government plan and he indicated his firm would turn to border TV stations in the U.S. for product publicity.

Jim Schatz, president of the B.C. Weekly Newspaper Publisher Association, said liquor advertising accounts for about 10 per cent of the average weekly newspaper's revenue. He said the loss could put a number of papers "in serious trouble."

"I think we are just getting started," he said.

Of the deformed babies, some have congenital heart defects, some are blind and some were born with a rash. Deafness and mental retardation, other forms of rubella deformity, are not usually detected in tiny babies.

Dr. Kettyls told the doctors last September's German measles immunization program has effectively controlled the spread of the disease among elementary and pre-school children, but added the epidemic will not abate until there are enough people in the community with an immunity to the disease so that its spread is blocked.

Wage, Price Curbs Set

WASHINGTON (WP) — U.S. Secretary of Labor James Hodgson revealed Friday a plan to impose governmental controls on prices and wages in the construction industry.

President Nixon is expected to implement the program by executive order Monday

The program would also include limitations on executive salaries, dividends and bonuses in the industry, Hodgson said. In response to questions, he was non committal on profits.

If implemented by the president, the action would be a clean break with his previous policies. Heretofore Nixon has rejected all proposals for specific wage and price controls.

comment as a cabinet minister about the position of cablevision companies carrying U.S. alcohol ads.

"But speaking as a lawyer, no doubt there will be a number of constitutional isses over the effect of this," Loffmark added. He said he would support any action Ottawa might take to restrict cigarette and tobacco advertising.

Herb Capozzi (SC—Vancouver Centre) whose family is in the winemaking business didn't like the ban on alcohol advertising. He said his family has developed a series of fruit wines which require advertising to inform the public.

"Obviously they are not going to ban entirely the use of alcohol, so I don't see why people should not be able to persuade drinkers towards moderation," Capozzi said.

He said he will oppose the liquor advertising prohibition. "It is putting up a block which won't be effective."

Capozzi also had reservations about the end of cigarette advertising, but said he probably would support it.

Gardom said the tobacco legislation is "very much a citizens' bill because he reads it to mean that anyone can take action against advertisers if he spots a tobacco ad.

Scott Wallace (SC—Oak Bay) praised the legislation, noting that he earlier had supported Gardom's private member's bill.

At his press conference, Bennett said the government wanted to prohibit all liquor advertising in 1953 under the Government Liquor Act, but "intensive lobbying from the press" led to a retention of their right to publish liquor ads.

He said the bills have been introduced because the government created a $25 million drug, alcohol and tobacco education, rehabilitation and prevention fund this year.

"The government feels that if it's taking the taxpayers' money for that purpose, it should abolish the pushers as well," Bennett said.

He emphasized that the government is not restricting anyone's freedom to smoke and drink.

Bourassa Issues Warning to Ottawa Over Constitutional Centralization

By DON MacPHERSON

MONTREAL (CP) — Premier Robert Bourassa has shown signs that the placid relations he has been enjoying with Prime Minister Trudeau may be headed for rougher waters.

The 37-year-old Liberal premier told an audience of about 5,000 party supporters at a fund-raising dinner Friday that his government will not allow Ottawa to encroach upon its constitutional jurisdictions.

It was the third time in as many days that either Mr. Bourassa or one of his cabinet ministers has spoken against too much centralization of constitutional powers in Ottawa.

"We make a clear distinction between profitable federalism and centralism, even if it is profitable," Mr. Bourassa said.

"We could never accept centralism, even if it is profitable."

The audience, many members of which had attended a federal Liberal fund-raising dinner last month at which Mr. Trudeau was the speaker, applauded the premier's remarks strongly.

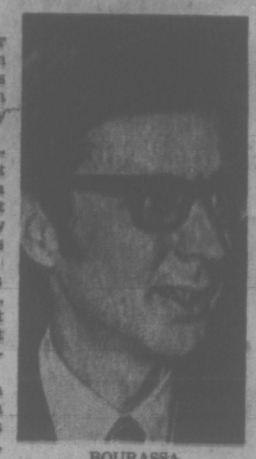
STAND FIRMER

Mr. Bourassa's public stand on relations with the federal government has become noticeably more firm in recent days after 10 months of apparently stable relations between the two Liberal governments.

Mr. Trudeau was obviously happy with the election last spring of Mr. Bourassa's Liberals, who pledged their commitment to the federal system, after years of often bitter quarreling with the former Union Nationale government.

Mr. Bourassa said Quebec would get what it wants through quiet, firm negotiation with Ottawa and was not interested in getting into public rows with the federal government.

However, his government has been no more successful so far in getting more taxation and legislative powers than its Union Nationale predecessor, and his critics are mocking him as Mr. Trudeau's stooge.



BOURASSA

Mr. Bourassa answered the criticism Wednesday in the Quebec national assembly by saying that his government will not allow the federal government to move in on Quebec's fields of constitutional jurisdiction.

In his budget speech Thursday night, Finance Minister Raymond Garneau said the government intends to negotiate firmly a re-distribution of tax powers and revenues and changes in Ottawa's tax reform proposals, due to be enacted this spring.

Mr. Bourassa spoke again on the subject Friday night in his reference to profitable federalism.

"Profitable federalism" is Mr. Bourassa's term for a Canadian federal system which would give Quebec the legislative and taxation powers it maintains it needs because of its special political, cultural and social character.

He has said the federal system must provide Quebecers with clear advantages, especially economically, if they are to agree to stay in Confederation.

Mr. Bourassa told his audience that the existing provincial constitutional jurisdictions must be respected, but that the distribution of constitutional powers must be changed to give the provinces the powers they need.

While Quebec wanted certain powers for cultural reasons, other provinces had economic reasons for wanting more powers.

Mr. Bourassa also strongly urged the federal government to change its tax reform proposals affecting capital gains.

The imposition of a capital-gains tax in the near future would come at the "worst time" because it would discourage much-needed private investment in Quebec.

He said, however, that he is "convinced" that Ottawa will agree with the provincial governments that "substantial encouragement must be given to investments."

Foreign Influence Study Gains 'Useful Material'

By KEN POLE

EDMONTON (CP) — A provincial inquiry into foreign influence in higher education ended Friday after two weeks of hearings during which it was called a "witch hunt" and an "inquisition."

But Chairman Arnold F. Moir, an Edmonton lawyer, said after the final session the hearings had contributed "a lot of useful material."

How the material will be used won't be known for at least a month. The seven-member committee now will sift the dozens of briefs to prepare a submission to the Alberta government.

Officially titled the Committee of inquiry into non-Canadian influence in Alberta post-secondary education, the group began its hearings in Calgary March 8 and visited Lethbridge before coming here.

The "witch hunt" cry was voiced earlier this week at Edmonton but it had been hinted at in Calgary and Lethbridge.

At Lethbridge, Mr. Moir refused to hear the first quarter of a students' brief because he thought it irrelevant to the inquiry. The rejected section questioned the relevance of the committee and suggested that it already was biased.

REJECTS TERMS

Dr. Vernon Dravland, an assistant professor of education at the University of Lethbridge, also rejected the terms of reference of the committee, appointed by Education Minister Robert Clark.

"I'm surprised that the minister of education designated what data was to be collected and I wonder at the people who would undertake research under those conditions," he said.

Students at the University of Calgary submitted a brief which said a limit on hiring of foreign instructors would compromise the quality of post-secondary education.

"A quota system would compel universities to treat professors as imports or Canadians, the way football teams do," said the students. "There is no other area of the labor market in which such a restriction is imposed.

"The concern for the possession of a certificate of citizenship greatly hampers the ability of a university to hire the best professors. A university should not accept less than adequate professoss simply because they are Canadian."

This opinion was repeated in many other submissions but most briefs were less critical.

SUGGEST MORATORIUM

Four instructors from mount Royal College in Calgary suggested a moratorium on hiring of foreign lecturers to allow time to restore the balance of Canadian and other personnel.

Dr. A. W. R. Carrothers, president of the University of Calgary, told the committee any government move on the hiring of professors "would be a tragedy for academic freedom."

Canadian content in courses, notably English, was a sore point with many people or groups submitting a brief.

Dorothy Livesay, a noted Canadian poet who is associate professor of English at the University of Alberta, said students often inherit from their professors the attitude that Canadian literature is not good enough.

In her brief, submitted on a personal basis, she said that in the 20 years she has been teaching English, "I have been struggling to get Canadian content into our textbooks. . . . it is through its own artists that a nation defines itself."

However, Miss Livesay said, the aversion to Canadian content in courses is changing because of "an astonishing renaissance in Canadian writing."

"Even to keep track of one year's output of novels, volumes of poetry, and little magazines, is to be extremely busy and there is no longer any doubt that contemporary Canadian poetry rivals any being produced in Britain or the United States.

"It is my contention that, as a result of this coming-of-age of Canadian literature, students have begun to identify with it and to seek their roots in its soil."

Two Jailed In Killings

NANAIMO (CP) — Two persons, earlier convicted of manslaughter at separate trials, were sentenced to jail terms Friday when they appeared in British Columbia Supreme Court.

Lorne David Wampler, 23, of nearby Lantzville, was given seven years in the strangulation death last December of Mrs. Ethel May Bailey, 60.

Lawrence Milton Keleny, 41, of Holberg, also on Vancouver Island, was sentenced to four years.

He was convicted of manslaughter Thursday in the shooting of Wayne St. Godard, 31, last September.

Both Wampler and Keleny were originally charged with non-capital murder.

11 Sentenced

MADRID (Reuter) — The Madrid public order court, which tries political offences, sentenced 11 men to prison terms ranging from 28 months and one day to six months and one day for having worked for the Spanish Communist party in Cordoba province, in southern Spain, between 1968 and 1970. The court convicted the men of illegal association.

Private or Public?

TWO MAIN CONSIDERATIONS concern the public in regard to the proposal of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club to construct a protective breakwater near the Club premises in Cadboro Bay. One is anxiety about the possible influence of the breakwater on tidal flows and any resulting effects on the character of the beaches or the dispersal of pollution.

The second is the visual effect of the breakwater, which under the revised rock-fill plan may be less obvious than the original timber-pile project with its 16-foot-high wall in sight at low tide, but still a very evident intrusion into the bay. In addition, the rock base, if found insufficient for the intended purposes, may be made much higher merely by dumping more rock on top, and this apparently is inherent in the Club's plan.

So far there has been no authoritative report on Cadboro Bay's overall pollution and the possible effects of a breakwater in any position. Until this is available it would be highly hazardous to proceed with a project of such solid permanence as a rock breakwater. If the Club is sure that there is no danger of adverse effects then there should be no hesitation in getting the supporting facts. If members are not sure, then a study is all the more called for.

The visual aspect is a serious one, not only for residents in the area but for the public in general. Very pressing need should be proved before a small segment of the community should be permitted to alter drastically one of the fine seascapes of the Greater Victoria area. Pressing need has hardly been proved as yet.

The worth of the RVYC should not be overlooked. It has an admirable history in this community and is deserving of any assistance that can conveniently be given. But the basic problem which faces the Club today is growth, and the question arises: how large should the Club's facilities be permitted to expand before a necessary halt is imposed. That terminal point can be estimated at various levels but eventually there must be a limit.

Where should this be—at a point where the Club premises and facilities are still compact enough so that they do not obtrude immoderately on the public domain, or at some later extreme where both the organization and the public have reached a state of discomfort?

This aspect should be seriously considered before any major step is taken. For years the RVYC has enhanced the Cadboro Bay view, but at some point its spreading growth — although entirely understandable as an effort to serve still more members — will exceed the bounds of public acceptability. A massive breakwater, in the absence of firm guarantees as to visual and tidal effects, would pass that limit.

Winter Pasture, Beacon Hill Park — Bill Halkett

Letter

Responsible

After reading Mrs. Peach's letter to the editor in the Times of March 22, I felt I had to reply on my husband's behalf because I know he has no time.

First of all I strongly resent Mrs. Peach saying that my husband made "irresponsible statements" in a recent article in the Times. His opinions obviously differ from hers, but this does not give her the right to say his statements are irresponsible. His opinions are based on experiences he has had in many fields during his life and some of the electroate considered them worthwhile or he wouldn't have been elected in the first place. I happen to know how much research and thought go into any statements he makes, and how much time he spends on school board work. Believe me, seeking publicity for himself or campaigning for December's election is not concerning him at the moment.

I notice that Mrs. Peach went to great lengths to sneer at his use of the phrase "conflict of interest" which refers to teachers serving on school boards. There are still many people who feel teachers should not serve as school trustees, and I defend anyone's right to say so loud and clear.

I would like to mention we too are parents of children in the school system and are just as concerned as anyone that they have the benefit of the best education possible. — Mrs. Jack Armstrong, Mark Lane, RR 7 Victoria.

Once More the Fiat

ATTORNEY-GENERAL LESLIE Peterson carefully avoided any suggestion that the provincial government is relinquishing its right to determine who may, or may not, sue it. Court action against the government may take place only if the government grants a fiat.

British Columbia thus clings to the outworn legal reservation of an early day when it was assumed that the King could do no wrong.

But why should a modern province retain this vestigial form from a feudal time? There are other adequate legal safeguards furnishing protection against frivolous suits. Chief among them, of course, is the assessment of costs against the individuals or interests initiating suit if they fail in court.

Surely British Columbia should now join the more advanced governments of this country in permitting an action to stand or fall on its own merits. If its case before the court is correct, then the government has nothing to fear. If, on the other hand, the citizen seeking to institute a suit is justified in his claim, why should he be refused access to justice by an out-dated legal technicality?

The issue has come to the fore again as British Columbia grants certain petitioners permission to take their case to court. This should be a natural right, not a special government dispensation.

A Tour Abroad

THE ROLE OF THE GOVERNOR-General is being extended dramatically in April. Next month Governor-General and Mrs. Michener will make formal visits to Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg upon the invitations of the respective heads of state of these countries. The two-week visit beginning April 14 will set a precedent because it will be the first time that extended formal visits have been made by the vice-regal party to foreign countries. The Caribbean tour of two years ago involved only Commonwealth states. The formal European visit will be made with the "full accord" of the Canadian government and of Queen Elizabeth.

The visit will mark a break in the constitutional convention that only the Queen may represent Canada abroad as head of state. Domestically, this incident could somewhat alter the role of the Governor-General as the personal representative of the Queen in this country.

The aura of tradition and respect surrounding the monarch in Great Britain has up to now proved impossible to duplicate in the office of Governor-General here. Is the projected tour a move to change the situation and subtly strengthen the Governor-General's personal position? We may be in for a constitutional hayride which will once again put on public view the nature of Canadian nationhood.

Shaving the Brandt Margin

WITH THE FLEXIBLE LOGIC of political arithmetic, both Chancellor Willy Brandt's Social Democrats and his West German opposition are claiming important achievements in the recent municipal elections in West Berlin.

Mr. Brandt's party held an absolute majority in West Berlin, emerging with 50.4 per cent of the total vote, and 73 of the 138 seats in the city parliament. The Christian Democrats, on the other hand, polled 38.2 per cent and gained seven seats to reach a total of 54.

The latter party's gain was almost equivalent to the number of seats lost by the Social Democrats and hence, say stalwarts of the conservative group, it reflects dissatisfaction with the Chancellor's "East policy."

The fact remains that Herr Brandt retained the majority; he has basic support in West Berlin and has obviously not alienated most of his following there. Mathematically he won again, but with his margin of seats halved, he has some grounds for concern.

UNDERSTANDING OTTAWA

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Guide Through Canada's Double-Fuddle-Duddle

WHEN THAT enterprising central Asiatic state, the Kingdom of Nostalgia, recently opened an embassy at Ottawa the new ambassador, Fragile Ali, sent a preliminary report to his government on conditions in Canada. Since he has been snowbound in his residence and has yet to meet any Canadians, except the milkman and a plumber, the ambassador relies for factual information on newspaper reports, gossip columns and television programs. As he says, they provide an accurate picture of Ottawa's official life.

Hutchison

It would be a grave mistake, the ambassador's report warns, to underestimate the energy and intelligence of the Trudeau government.

On a typical day the prime minister rises long before dawn and drinks his regular gallon of ice water. A cold, callous and calculating man, he drinks nothing else. His veins are full of ice water. David Lewis first disclosed this interesting medical fact and has repeated it from coast to coast. (The ambassador adds that Mr. Lewis himself drinks only vitriol with a dash of bitters.)

As the prime minister is cooling himself for another day of political slaughter, Robert Stanfield, after eating his usual banana, walks down both sides of the street to Parliament Hill.

Edgar Benson is even more Spartan in his habits. His breakfast consists of a bowl of crispy-crunchy figures from the Bureau of Statistics, with skim milk, while he re-writes the latest white paper and revises the price index.

All the other prominent personages of the capital start the day early, too. T. C. Douglas consults his file of extemporaneous witticisms for use in the House of Commons. J. J. Greene arranges with Jean Chretien to deliver contradictory speeches on oil policy. All through the night Governor Rasminsky, single-handed, has been turning the money press in the basement of the Bank of Canada, with no overtime pay, and by morning has ample funds to pay the government's bills.

Unalterable Decisions

The prime minister, disguised in ski clothes or a scuba suit to look like a young swinger, arrives promptly at the East Block in a bullet-proof car, its curtains tightly drawn. Entering his office by an underground passage and locking the door behind him, he receives the government's policies from his private computer, on perforated cards. Then, having made his final, unalterable decisions, he calls the cabinet to hear its advice.

A modern cabinet includes so many ministers, sub-ministers and parliamentary assistants that Mr. Trudeau cannot be expected to remember all their names. But he has a good memory for faces. With forced geniality and a fixed grin, he shakes his colleagues' hands, murmuring, "Haven't we met somewhere before? Perhaps in Borneo? Oh no, I'm confusing you with that miserable orangutan. Sorry."

Mitchell Sharp now removes the combination lock from his lips and reports on a visit to the African nations. He says Canada has found many warm friends in Africa and has taken the necessary step, through immigration regulations, to keep them there.

The cabinet is also gratified to hear from the prime minister that inflation has ceased to exist and that prices are rising in a non-inflationary manner.

Another item on the agenda is a formal minute of cabinet forbidding American investment and urging American oil companies to build a pipeline across Canada at a cost of $5 billion, in U.S. currency.

This is only routine business. The real concern of the meeting is to arrange for the daily cabinet leaks to selected reporters. They will be informed in strict confidence that an election has been called for the autumn.

Within hours these rumors will be so widely printed and televised that the opposition parties will regard them as deliberately planted by the government, and obviously false. You can't fool an experienced opposition. Once it has been lulled into apathy, the government will go to the country on schedule.

"This cunning strategy," the ambassador explains, "is known in the native dialect as the double-fuddle-duddle. It is perplexing to hear these words uttered by all Canadians on all occasions, generally with laughter or blushes, but Mr. Trudeau would not have used them without some sinister purpose. A recent ugly incident in Parliament was doubtless arranged to deceive foreigners. It should not deceive us.

"In any case," the ambassador shrewdly observes, "no importance is attached nowadays to Parliament, and all official announcements by the government or opposition are made outside in the corridor, where the dangerous risk of parliamentary debate is avoided.

Election Results Unsure

"Nevertheless," the ambassador concludes, "the cabinet is not as sure of the election result as it pretends. From my well-informed milkman and other reliable sources I have learned that the anxious prime minister sends out a messenger every day to ask for whom the Gallup polls. Clearly he is worried.

"My own impression is that Canada stands on the brink of chaos but since it has stood there for a hundred years at least we would be unwise to count on an immediate collapse.

"Besides, the NDP leadership candidates are quarrelling angrily among themselves in public, night after night, to prove that they alone can unite the nation, and unfortunately they may succeed. Speaking frankly, I fear that Canada may last quite a while yet, even through another election."

FROM UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.

By WILLIAM R. FRYE

Soviet Congress—Shaping of Things to Come

THE 24th Soviet Party Congress, which opens in Moscow this coming Tuesday, will be like an American presidential election in one sense. It will identify the leadership and project Kremlin policy for roughly the next four years. The 500-odd delegates and observers at the Congress, representing 14 million Communist Party members (in a country of 241 million people) will not, of course, themselves freely deliberate upon or determine any major issues.

Frye

But decisions which have been wrestled and jockeyed by the governing elite during a long preparatory period, in great secrecy, will be unveiled at the Congress session. The world will thus learn much about them.

It is as if the outcome of an American presidential election were to be predetermined, but known only to a handful of powerful men. On the day when the result was disclosed to Congress, the world would be able to make more intelligent judgments on a great many questions — for example, on the probable course of the Vietnam war.

Critical Issues

In the case of Soviet policy, the critical issues which affect the outside world are these:

● The composition of the Central Committee, which in turn elects the ruling Politburo. Some observers expect at least one third of the Central Committee members to be replaced.

If Party Secretary Leonid Brezhnev is confirmed in the driver's seat, at the expense of Premier Alexei Kosygin, the western world can batten down the hatches for more cool (if not cold) war.

Brezhnev is close to military pressure groups; Kosygin is associated with economic and consumer interests which wish to ease the military drain.

● The choice of priority between guns and butter — between consumer goods and the advancement of Soviet interests abroad (as in the Middle East); and between consumer goods and the next spiral in the nuclear-missile arms race.

Upheaval in Poland last December, including strikes and demonstrations by dock workers, warned the Kremlin leadership that even in Communist societies, consumer demands cannot forever be ignored.

They helped produce a five-year plan which appears to seek the satisfaction of such demands in the Soviet Union. But this appearance may be an illusion, and the Party Congress may throw light on the real intent.

● Detente with the United States and with Western Europe: the SALT talks, Berlin, European security — and the Middle East, which involves both Soviet-American relations and the necessity for costly arms outlays.

The policy of detente has been largely shelved in recent years, as Brezhnev has come to displace Kosygin and as the strains provoked by the Czech invasion have proved to be long-lived. There has been some easing of Soviet policy toward Germany, but the level of tension with the United States has increased.

In the Middle East, Soviet diplomacy has, of late, not seriously obstructed peace efforts, but it is by no means clear that Moscow has been co-operating in them.

All this could represent the kind of immobility which often sets in during American presidential campaigns, the Establishment not wishing to expose its flanks by dangerous innovation.

Not infrequently, in the United States, this immobility is accompanied by sharp verbal posturings, especially toward foreign ideological adversaries.

It could be happening in Moscow as well. The preparation for a Soviet Party Congress is a period of intense infighting analogous to an election campaign.

● Re-Stalinization of Soviet life: the crackdown on intellectuals, on dissent, on Jews seeking emigration — all in all, the "no-more-Dubceks" syndrome.

For some time, an ultra-conservative wing of the party bureaucracy has been in the saddle, partially rehabilitating Stalin's personal image and substantially reviving his insistence on ideological conformity and discipline. The result has been a bristling posture which, in its foreign policy by-products, has turned back the clock on detente.

One of the things the intellectual community has been seeking is greater access to foreign science and technology. The intellectuals have also been allied to those who have sought nuclear-missile arms control.

Increased Influence Unlikely

If a younger and less illiberal group in the party were to win increased influence, there might be a prospect of some of this happening; but such a development does not seem likely.

● Soviet relations with China, and the remote, but existing, possiblity of large-scale conflict.

There have been some signs of late of an effort at reconciliation with China. Such a policy would fit with increased tension in relations with the United States, and with re-Stalinization domestically. However, propaganda exchanges between Moscow and Peking remain sharp.

The best expert forecast for the Party Congress is that it will produce "few surprises." But this, in itself, would be revealing.

It would mean continued difficulty in Berlin, more inconclusive wrestling over a tension-ridden Middle East, fewer prospects of a SALT accord, and perhaps some nuclear submarines off Cuba — a Brezhnev era, in short, more closely approaching confrontation than meaningful negotiation.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

Along Atkins Road to Mill Hill can be found interesting changes in vegetation as you go up the trail to the summit.

Where the old suppression camp used to be is a grove of trees, some of which must have been transplanted by members of the old forestry crew who stayed there.

There is a fine specimen of blue elderberry, which has grown to be about 20 feet in height. Close by are a nice Douglas maple, whose flower buds are beginning the break through, and a sitka alder. On the latter the cones vary from those of the red alder.

You can find a beautifully needled fir growing with them, and at the end of the grove a cottonwood tree is producing the sticky buds that now are giving off the delightful perfume of the "balm of Gilead."

As you start up the old rocky road you can find many flowering dogwoods mingled with some cascara trees. Perhaps you may find them hard to tell apart, but if you look closely at the twigs and small branches you will see that the dogwood has twigs in a whorl, while the cascara buds show a woolly prong-shaped formation.

Several kinds of willows grow with the rose bushes there, on the south-western slope where the ground is well drained.

When you come along to the rocky, moss-covered slopes you can see a great number of spring plants, some in bloom and others that are in bud. The spring gold predominates at present, but the shooting-star is in flower also and the rusty saxifrage. Nestled among the mossy cracks, the bittercress shows its tiny white flowers.

There are places under the overhang where the tiny monkey-flower stares at you, while on the ledges, the tall grass-like leaves of the camas are in abundance.

Further up the hill, in the open, the satin flower greets you. The spike-like leaves of the onions reveal their identity when you walk among them, for the onion smell is obvious.

If you look among the overhanging rock you can find a lot of the golden-backed ferns. Some are of last year's crop and some have now unfurled their new growth. Others seem to have a tiny white flower tip as they open out from the root stock.

When you come to the bend just before the last little hill, you can find a large bed of miners' lettuce, some just beginning to show, some in flower.

'City Slicker Lawyers Are Selling Out Our Jobs to Americans'

Barrett Relishes Bennett Baloney

By PETER McNELLY

The Leader of Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition David Barrett was up in his place last Wednesday, screaming about protecting Canadian jobs, flapping his arms like a landing albatross, while the house was torn with laughter all around him.

Some of the Socred backbenchers seemed to wake up at this extraordinary performanee, wondering, perhaps, how the issue of the Kootenay and Elk Railway had been able to provoke Barrett to such a pitch.

Premier Bennett looked bemused, his mouth characteristically tense, opening and closing like a fish trying to breathe. But Municipal Affairs Minister Dam Campbell was laughing so hard he almost had tears in his eyes. He knew what was happening.

* * *

Barrett was imitating the premier.

Barrett's voice rose to a shrill wail of socialist desire as he slammed on and on at the government for supporting the K and E's bid to carry British Columbia coal to a United States railroad which would then haul it to Roberts Bank for shipment to Japan.

"You even went so far as to hire a city-slicker eastern lawyer to take jobs away from Canadians and give them to Americans."

"You're a separatist," said Bennett.

It was getting harder to hear. Bennett kept wisecracking to the press gallery above him. Barrett was speaking so fast he was becoming unintelligible.

His backbenchers started pounding their desks like men whose deepest loyalties had been tapped. Suddenly it stopped. A few NDP members nearly popped from their seats with enthusiasm.

* * *

It was a familiar sight, but the party labels had been switched. Moments later, Bennett accused Barrett of being insincere. Barrett protested vigorously.

If imitation is flattery, Bennett ought to have been proud of Barrett's performance. It was at least good enough to make the Ed Sullivan show, if not as polished as the real thing.

But while he obviously was enjoying spoofing Bennett's snake-oil salesmanship, Barrett was giving the premier a political warning.

When the next election comes, likely in 1972, Barrett won't be a victim of the superseriousness which has plagued the NDP. Barrett was telling Bennett that he, too, will go out to the people and talk in a language and style they will understand and enjoy.

If Bennett can get elected on slogans like "don't turn left," and stop the "godless socialists," Barrett can surely try his luck with attacks on "city slicker laywers who are selling out our jobs to the Americans."

The premier likes to pin his opponents with deadly characteristic labels. Former NDP provincial leader Robert Strachan got hooked with a "wild man" image, and no matter what he did, the handle hurt him.

After Strachan, Bennett told the people he had to save the province from the "godless socialists" of Tom Berger. Berger lasted only one election.

* * *

Bennett used to call Barrett a clown, but his latest jibe is to say he's "the leader of the Waffle group in British Columbia — the most radical leader in the history of the NDP."

All that to a man who wants a giant Japanese automobile company to build an assembly plant in B.C.

But Barrett's legislative histrionics didn't begin this session until the premier started calling him a radical. Though he gives the impression he couldn't care less what Bennett calls him, Barrett knows his political history and will try to avoid being labelled into defeat.

When the next election is called, likely in 1972, Barrett says he's going to "fight for the little people of British Columbia against the Goliath of the 38 Socred seats."

More snake oil. And while it's not exactly what professor Watkins had in mind when he drafted his economic critique on the possibilities of an independent Canada, it may be just what people want to hear.

FROM THE LEGISLATURE

It Was a Great Day for the Gang: It Tried to Be Socially Responsible

YEMEN

By BRUCE YEMEN

How politics can confuse issues and resist the prospect of change could hardly be better illustrated than by the provincial government's proposed ban on tobacco and alcohol advertising.

The fact that the government felt the two moves should be brought forward together suggests that the reasons for banning advertising of liquor and cigarettes are the same.

Superficially, there are reasons why a group of legislators would agree that the two moves are logical changes to make in the same legislative breath.

But deeper down, there is reason to believe that the linking of the proposals is a disturbing symptom of the failure of our politicians to show the kind of social and intellectual responsibility needed to face the problems of a new generation.

The argument against cigarette advertising is clearly based on health statistics. Tobacco in any amount is bad for you. It would be better if smoking were entirely eliminated. Advertising serves no useful purpose.

●

Alcohol, on the other hand, is widely regarded as bad for you only through abuse and in fact is medically and socially beneficial to many persons and groups.

The provincial royal commission on liquor which reported last year to the government made a strong case for the civilized use of alcohol as a desirable practice.

The commission recommended that carefully-regulated advertising of liquor products be allowed on radio and television.

The commission suggested that emphasis in advertising different products, assisting development of good taste in drinking habits — quality over quantity.

What happened to the enlightened recommendations of the commissioners between last spring and now?

It would be unfair to say that the B.C. government and the vast majority of members of the legislature supporting its proposed action deliberately set out to confuse issues or resist change.

In fact, most of them probably feel that by their action they will have clarified important social issues and faced change with great courage.

They are entitled to their feelings, and it would be rash to say that the long-term total result of their action won't prove beneficial to society.

But what, exactly, is a total result?

How much sense does it make to lump the two problems of alcohol and cigarettes into one policy?

In order to find out whether the ban on advertising had any effect on society in a few years, it would be necessary to examine the use of each product thoroughly on its own.

Distinctions that were blurred by the legislators who made the laws would have to be made in great detail in order to decide whether these policies were useful or wise.

The attitude of the legislators isn't so different from the old-fashioned attitude toward man's "vices" summed up in the phrase, "cigareets liquor and wild, wild women."

They're either all bad or all good things to engage in, depending on the simplistic attitude adopted. Only nowadays, drugs have apparently replaced the wild women in the vice trio

We have a $25 million "Drug, Alcohol and Cigarette Prevention, Education and Rehabilitation Fund" to fight the effects of those three diverse substances

Lumping them all together may be administratively convenient and morally satisfying, but it is obviously a bad influence on the thought processes of our politicians

The debate on establishment of the fund earlier this session involved an unusually large number of MLAs and a high degree of unanimity that something was wrong in society and something must be done

There was talk about "drug pushers" and general condemnation for the "pushing" of liquor and cigarettes in glamorous, clever advertisements.

●

Nobody bothered to say that a drug "pusher" is apt to be just a seller of goods for which a market has already been established. Nobody pointed out that the provincial government in the same sense is the main "pusher" of alcohol.

It was all so marvelously simple, so clear. Advertising was a villain, complete and within itself.

It was a wonderful day in the legislature, for there they were, seeing a big principle, a unifying thread of thought from which real action could emerge.

It was the kind of all-encompassing, fuzzy thinking to serve every purpose, some shared by all, some by only a powerful few.

For a government with more than its share of obsessive teetotallers, it was an opportunity too golden to be missed.

And what's down there beneath the government's attitude to alcohol?

The same old-fashioned guilt that the liquor royal commissioners were so sincerely anxious to eliminate from all society

But the saddest part of all is that a new kind of guilt is possibly a more important force behind the actions of our legislators.

They feel guilty because kids are using drugs and they don't know what to do about it.

MLAs asked in the legislature how we could expect to influence the young away from drugs when we guzzle booze and fill our publications with slick advertisements for it

The answer to the problem, as we now see, was to continue guzzling booze but to ban advertising, in a fine show of principle.

It's a lovely trick, failing to face a new situation by tinkering with an old one and believing that some kind of high moral concession has been made to the new generation.

Combine this with a government that fervently blurs the distinctions between the various types of drugs being used by young people, and you have the makings of a concerned, sincere group of legislators who are at least as mixed up as the kids they want to help.

WEEK AT CITY HALL

Campbell Gives Councils Room For Revolution in Housing

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell's blunt description Thursday of the "political" forces that hold back the creation of decent housing in B.C. should be taken in the context of the new land use control laws he introduced later that day in the Legislature.

Both the new laws and his offer to head up an informal council here to smooth out land acquisition problems are an obvious attempt to radicalize the existing processes, and urge breakthroughs in the field of community development.

At the same time, he is not forcing anything down the throats of any council. Indeed, to take advantage of the new laws is going to require considerable will on the part of mayors, aldermen and planners.

The laws could, it appears, be completely ignored by councils.

It will be interesting to see if developers and architects come forward, willing to enter into a restricted land title contract with the city in order to erect their symbols.

At the meeting between Campbell and others Thursday, the minister said architects are "literally parading" through his office with imaginative housing designs, complaining they can't get councils to take up their ideas.

So, if the cities have pleaded — ours does, often — that they haven't the tools to control development, then here is the chance they've been waiting for.

But do the cities — meaning councils — really want this power and control? Does Victoria council want it? If it does, there are some clear choices ahead. One would be to immediately, upon proclamation of the law, slap a development designation on the whole Inner Harbor waterfront.

The whole urban renewal area from the Wharf Street waterfront back into Chinatown is another one needing a close watch.

It might even be wise to create a development area in every location that is in transition, or becoming overridden or introduced to apartment blocks.

The magnitude of such a vigorous approach to care for the community would, of course, require a virtual rewriting of the planning function in city hall.

The planning department, tied philosophically and morally to the rights of the private sector as against the needs of the public sector, would have to undergo a real transition and become answerable directly and only to council.

The preference for tower and block housing that favors the tax dodger and land-cost inflator would have to give way to the kind of dweller-oriented condominium and cluster housing described by Campbell and its most tenacious advocate, Grace McCarthy, minister without portfolio.

The new dweller for the same or lower monthly payments gets privacy, sanity, equity and a home instead of office space posing as one.

This system also does away with the preponderance of absentee landlords, who have been hated for centuries for reasons as lengthy as their tenure.

You can't just ignore the 36 per cent of British Columbians who need a place to stand, Campbell told a frightened city father from somewhere else who protested that surely his main purpose was to raise the tax revenues by attracting industry.

Another change — an absolute necessity to any major and serious effort in Victoria — would be to abolish the advisory planning commission, which has ceased to be relevant to the needs of the community and in any case shows no desire to apply basic democratic principles to its methods of guiding one of the city's most important functions.

It has even absorbed the energies of the planning department, which is only in the most perfunctory and roundabout way responsive to council.

The old saw that the city can only wait and hope private capital will respond is clearly not what Campbell and Mrs. McCarthy want to hear any more.

Condominiums worth $25,000 or $30,000 are not what they want to hear about, and neither are housing developments that don't include recreational and other community services.

Housing technology is not something with which the ordinary citizen has a facility. As Campbell and Mrs. McCarthy demonstrated, housing at a cost the wage-earner and young marrieds can afford is possible but only through a small-scale revolution in the minds and on the drawing boards of developers and councils.

For Sale, One Alarm Clock

By ART STOTT

The item on the Guild notice board in our newsroom offered for sale a Big Ben alarm clock, in good running order in spite of its 52 years' age, and directed inquiries to Pete Sallaway. It was the small office joke of Lloyd Martin (pronounced 'Pete') who retired today after more than half a century with our outfit. That's a fair slice of a man's life to spend with one company, but not unique on the Times. Archie Willis and the late Bill Lemm did it earlier.

* * *

To some of us familiar with most of his working life-span, Pete bridges time back to an almost archaic era. And among those of the craft acquainted with the changes that have taken place, the efforts of Pete Sallaway are particularly notable in the field of improved working conditions and wages.

In recent days, Pete has received from the local chapter of the Newspaper Guild a framed testimonial attributing to him full credit for establishing the guild here, for fighting continuously for conditions more appropriate to those who labor in daily print and bringing their rewards up from the abysmal depths he knew as a junior.

When Pete was a slim youngster on the old Times, with slick black hair parted in the middle, the going rate for office boy was eight dollars a week. Seniors might be making as much as $35, something less than the mechanical staff, and Benny Nicholas, one of the outstanding editorial personalities of Canada, was paid $65 for what, to him, was often a seven-day stint in the depression days. Ben's total disinterest in pay cheques created one of the very few blind spots in his wide-ranging concern for the welfare of his boys.

Juniors in those days worked a six-day week, with an average of two night assignments. If you put in four or five hours at an evening meeting, you gained the concession of coming in an hour later in the morning — unless, of course, your job demanded that you start moving copy about 7:30 a.m. You had two weeks off with pay a year as vacation, and Labor Day and Christmas were holidays, unless you worked on sport, which Pete did. Then you had what was left of the days after you'd turned in your copy on the athletic events to which you were assigned.

So why did young people of his generation hang on to long-houred, short-pay jobs on the newspaper? For several reasons. Jobs were hard to come by. A dollar bought a great deal more then than it does now. We had certain perquisites. Train travel and local boat passage were available on passes. We rode the street cars free. We took in the shows on complimentary tickets. And we had a sort of family pride in the Times. Sure we grumbled, but not hard enough. Furthermore, we could turn an extra honest dollar "stringing" for other publications or handling occasional publicity assignments with the firm's blessings.

* * *

Beyond that, there were things to do. Pete, for instance helped with constructive stories to build the Blue Ribbons and the Dominoes. He held daily consultations with Barney Barnwell, the team's sponsor-organizer. He was busy trying to create a local following for the Cubs who came into the old Patrick rink after Lester had sold the Stanley Cup Cougars. He played and wrote baseball. He gave time and space to soccer. He saw to it that other sports received their share of attention on the page while he edited it. He knew, intuitively, that nowhere more than in the fleeting fame of sport, every Johnson needs his Boswell.

* * *

The gentleman who offered the Big Ben alarm for sale is no longer slender or young. His centre part is considerably wider. He's never going to blast a line drive past second to score a runner from third in senior ball again. But he can remember when he did. And he has reason to be satisfied with his particular local contributions to what has been called the golden age of sport.

The years and experience have smoothed what at times could be a rasping tongue, though he can still be heard when he wants to be. A certain benevolence has ripened in him. He has made things a lot easier for the current crop of young people in this game and has received formal recognition for that service.

A long time, Pete. Good years and bad. It wasn't all roses, but we had a lot of fun. Hope the youngsters coming up now enjoy it as much.

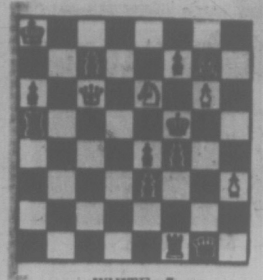
BLACK: 9



WHITE: 7

White to play and mate in two moves. Solution below.

HINTS FOR BEGINNERS

An opening to be well constructed should be made quickly (Walker); consequently the same piece should not be moved twice until the other pieces are in play. (Steinitz). The exceptions to this rule are when a greater or at least an equal loss of time can be inflicted upon your adversary, also when an improper move on his part beings an important advantage within measureable distance.

DO OR DIE DRASKO

Drasko Velimirovic is considered to be the most uncompromising Yugoslav player. He just does not hear offers of a draw. At one of the national championships, he did not split a single point with anyone out of 20 opponents. Author of "Yugoslav Immortal Games," he feels himself obliged to create a brilliancy even if his endeavors in that direction should cost him points along the way. The following game is typical in that sense, although its happy end is not.

Played at the International Tournament in Vinkovje, Yugoslavia, 1970. WHITE: Quinteros, Argentina; BLACK: Velimirovic, Yugoslavia.

KING'S INDIAN DEFENSE

1. P-Q4	N-KB3
2. N1KB3	P-KN3
3. P-B4	P-B4
4. P-Q5	B-N2
5. P-KN3 (a)	O-O
6. B-N2	P-Q3
7. N-B3	P-K3
8. O-O	PxP
9. PxP	N1-Q2
10. N-Q2	P-QR3
11. P-QR4	N-K1
12. P-R5	R-N1
13. N-B4	N-K4
14. N-N6	N-Q2 (b)
15. N-B4	N-K4
16. N-N6 (c)	N-B2 (d)
17. P-B4 (e)	N-N5
18. P-K3	R-K1
19. R-K1	N-N4

22. Q-N3	N-K5
23. QxP	NxP
24. P-K4 (f)	BxRP (g)
25. BxB	Q-R5
26. B-N2 (h)	N-B4
27. R-K3 (i)	B-Q5
28. R-R3 (j)	NxR
29. B-N	Q-K8ch
Resigns (k)

Notes by Dragoslav Andric, Yugoslav International Chess Master:

(a) I once played 5.P-Q6 with success in this position.
(b) Just to feel White's Mood.
(c) Has peaceful intentions.
(d) No, thanks.
(e) In the identical position, Udovcic played against the same opponent more cautiously here . . . seven years ago! It shows that Velimirovic has had plenty of experience with this variation.
(f) Does not see what will happen next.
(g) Is this really good? It sure is a surprise!
(h) If 26.K-N2, NxKP.
(i) If now 27.R-Q1 then RxKP; 28. BxR, Q-N5ch, etc.
(j) Gligoric discards 28.Q-K2 here "because of 28 . . . QxP; 29.R-R3, Q-N6," but we just do not see why not 30.PxN. Even if Black would save a tempo, after 28.Q-K2, with Q-N6, White could still play 29. PxN, BxRch; 30.BxB,RxB; 31.Q-KB2, and White's material advantage should prove itself. Now it is over at once.
(k) Exchange down and King in the open . . .

IT CAN HAPPEN TO ANYONE

Vassily Smyslov has an adjourned game against Andre Damjanovic of Yugoslavia in a recent tournament. He studied the position all night. It looked like a win but all lines had to be calculated just right. Next morning, when the envelope was opened and the game was to be continued, Smyslov almost fell off his chair, for he had analyzed all night in vain. His King was not on the square he thought it was. He immediately accepted the offer of a draw by his opponent.

The solution to the problem above is: 1.NxKBP.

THE SPEAKER AS COMEDIAN

'May the Road Rise to Meet You'

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — Just as the performance of a stand-up comedian is affected by his surroundings, the Speaker's chair in the Commons seems to bring out the best in Jean-T. Richard, veteran Liberal MP for Ottawa East.

Never noted as a prolific participant in Commons debates—"a speech will seldom settle anything"—Mr. Richard is fast fetching recognition for his frequent one-liners, and occasional 14-liners, from the chair.

At 6 p.m., when the Commons breaks for dinner, most Speakers, deputy Speakers and acting Speakers, simply say: "It being 6 o'clock, I do now leave the chair." That's that.

●

But Mr. Richard can do far better. For instance:

"May the road rise to meet you,
May the wind be always at your back;
May the sunshine warm up your face,
May the rain fall soft upon your field;
And may you be a long time in Heaven,
Before the devil knows you're dead."

Then, as Hansard notes, "at six o'clock the House took recess."

●

Mr. Richard, who has been in Parliament for 26 years and always re-elected with massive majorities, has been in the Speaker's chair frequently since the Christmas recess when Gerald Laniel (L—Beauharnois), deputy chairman of committees, broke a leg.

The Ottawa lawyer took over Mr. Laniel's duties—refusing additional salary—and has become Speaker for about two hours a day.

He appears to be having a ball.

Sometimes his 6 p.m. parting shots are short: "I hope honorable members will have an enjoyable weekend and will be safety conscious, especially in crossing the streets of Ottawa and climbing the snowbanks."

●

Others are somewhat lengthy:

". . . Sunday the 14th—not Saturday the 13th—will be St. Valentine's Day, a day to tell our sweethearts that deep in our hearts we love them so dearly. To the ladies we say, God bless you and thank you for everything. And to the patient members in the House, I wish you a happy and restful weekend."

Prior to St. Patrick's Day, Mr. Richard expressed the wish that "May the good Saint Patrick watch over you."

Then there was the 16-line poem which ended: ". . . But deliver me, Lord, from the judgment of the saints who have never been caught."

●

The weather is also a frequent subject for his remarks, whether it be in the form of recommending a skate on the Rideau canal or whether it be advice to "keep warm, keep home, enjoy a pleasant weekend."

By establishing such a chatty precedent from the chair, Mr. Richard now is expected to produce his daily gem. "I guess you could say I am caught in a fix; I have to think of something."

He says there has been a warm reaction to his remarks. "It's a form of participating with the members in a friendly way. It makes the place more comfortable and less dead."

Why did he participate so frequently from the chair when this is not his trademark as an MP? That's when he said that a speech will seldom settle anything.

"My main responsibility is to look after the interest of my people, and this isn't accomplished by always debating in the Commons.

"Perhaps 90 per cent of problems can be settled through departments or face-to-face meetings. And if I have views to express on legislation it's best to do it in caucus before the legislation comes before the House.

"So far as getting my name in the paper is concerned, that has nothing to do with getting elected. Ninety per cent of the people read the sports pages and (syndicated columnist) Ann Landers."

Since he is not known as a partisan politician, the 63-year-old Mr. Richard has a warm and easy relationship with members on all sides of the House. His one-liners are usually applauded, and his prayer-type poems attract amens.

●

"I do now leave the chair. Unlike other less fortunate people, our separation will be short. In the circumstances I will say, 'parting is such sweet sorrow'."

Or: "Perhaps we should count our blessings and resolve to share a little more with those who are less fortunate than we are."

JFK Letter Nets $11,000

NEW YORK (AP) — A memorable 22-word excerpt from John F. Kennedy's 1961 inaugural address, hand-written by thhe late president on White House stationery, has been sold at auction for $11,000.

The quotation reads: "And so, my fellow Americans: ask not what your country can do for you—ask what you can do for your country."

Auctioneer Charles Hamilton said that Kennedy wrote the extract in longhand and signed it at the request of a personal friend.

Home Away From Tibet

VANCOUVER (CP) — Six families of Tibetans totalling 13 adults and 20 children stopped in Vancouver for a few hours Friday, en route to a new home in southern Alberta.

They will work for four Japanese-Canadian farming families near Lethbridge.

"These people have proven themselves highly adaptable," a Manpower department spokesman said.

"We've been acting partly on the basis of extremely good reports on them out of Switzerland where there's a resettlement program."

George Woodcock, a professor of English at the University of B.C. who worked to help them settle in Canada, was at the airport to meet the refugees.

You may now qualify for the increased Guaranteed Income Supplement to your Old Age Security Pension.

Apply now!

If you received a supplement in 1970 . . .
you may qualify for increased payments after April 1st, 1971. At that time, the maximum combined Old Age Security pension and Guaranteed Income Supplement will be raised to $135.00 a month for a single person or a married person whose husband or wife is not a pensioner, and to $255.00 a month for a married couple who are both pensioners ($127.50 each).

If you did not receive a supplement in 1970 . . .
you may now qualify for one as of April 1st, 1971, because the amount of income you are allowed has been adjusted upwards. Nearly 300,000 more Canadians will benefit from this change. The new maximum Old Age Security pension and Guaranteed Income Supplement will be $135.00 a month for a single person and $255.00 a month for a married couple who are both pensioners ($127.50 each).

You have already received an information booklet and an application form for the supplement. If you think you are eligible, and have not already completed and mailed the application form, you should do so now. The increased Guaranteed Income Supplement is not sent to you automatically. You must apply for it each year.

Requests for Grants Slashed

Intermunicipal committee slashed about $25,000 off requests from cultural and charitable organizations applying for municipal grants Friday.

Final figures have yet to be worked out, but the grants approved by the committee to about a 10 per cent increase over last year's amount — the total being about $200,000.

All grants must still be approved, refused, or amended by individual councils who will share the costs in various combinations.

Under a system new this year, the Community Council, which scrutinizes all requests before going to the intermunicipal council, recommended 10 priorities out of 29 requests for grants.

Not all priority items were approved for the full amount requested. The following are the priorities:

Cool-Aid asked for and was approved for $9,360. Victoria Symphony requested $13,000 and was approved for $10,000. Art Gallery of Greater Victoria requested $28,000, was approved for $24,000. Victoria YM-YWCA requested and was approved for $33,963. Girl Guides asked for and was approved for $970.

Goodwill Enterprises asked for and was approved for $15,000. Victorian Order of Nurses asked for and was approved for $16,275.

Greater Victoria Association for the Retarded asked for and was approved for the amount of its municipal taxes (about $1,900). Island White Cross Rehabilitation Centre asked for and was approved for $1,400.

The G. R. Pearkes Clinic for Handicapped Children asked for and was approved for the tax amount (last year $13,607).

Among requests refused was the Chamber of Commerce, which had asked for $2,500; the John Howard Society, which had asked for $3,500; the Salvation Army, which had asked for an unspecified amount to go towards operating expenses.

'Tax-Break' Legislation On Way Out Until 1972

The provincial government moved Friday to suspend the Professional Corporations Act which allows people such as doctors, lawyers and accountants to incoporate.

The act was passed by the legislature in 1970. It had been viewed as an opportunity for licensed professionals to get a tax break through incorporation. However, the government consistently denied this.

Last fall the cabinet passed an order which denied professionals incorporated under the act any tax benefits from that action.

In an amendment to the Statute Law Amendment Act, the government proposed suspension of all sections of the Professional Corporations Act but one, the title.

Once the amendment has passed, the suspension will be effective until July 1, 1972 unless changed by cabinet order or the legislature.

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson was ill Friday and unable to explain why the government had suspended the act and what would happen to people already incorporated under its jurisdiction.

Improvement Studied For Gallery

Improvements to the public gallery area of the legislature are under study, Public Works Minister W. N. Chant said Friday.

He was replying to Ernie Lecours (SC—Richmond) who expressed concern for the safety of people in the public gallery in the event of a fire or other emergency.

He said the disturbance on the opening day of the session when a mob could have charged into the legislative galleries showed the need for an emergency fire exit in the speaker's gallery, at the opposite end of the chamber from the entrances.

He also called for more comfortable seats and increased capacity in the galleries.

Opposition Battles Assessment Bill

The New Democrats and Liberals fought the government's bill to amend the Assessment Equalization Act to the last vote Friday.

As the bill was about to pass through committee stage and receive third and final reading, the NDP called for a divison (recorded vote) from the committee. That failed by a vote of 31 to 15.

Speaker William Murray then called for third reading, and the NDP called another division which failed 32 to 15.

The bill limits annual assessment increases to no more than 10 per cent a year. The NDP and Liberals opposed the bill because they said it would protect land speculators at the expense of small homeowners.

The government position is that the bill will protect the homeowner against massive assessment increases.

Life Loss Feared

Fear that lives will be lost because of inadequate inspection of propane gas installations was expressed in the legislature Friday by Dave Brousson (—L—North Vancouver-Capilano).

Brousson said the problem affects unorganized territories and smaller municipalities in this trea and outside of the Vancouver area, could be solved by the public works department taking over inspection responsibility from the attorney-general's department.

He said unqualified inspectors, including volunteer firemen, have been in specting installations for the fire marshal's office. It should be under the safety inspection division of public works, he said.

Public Works Minister William Chant said he had no powers over propane installations because they fall under another department.

Mothers Win Tiff With Railroads

VANCOUVER (CP) — A tent pitched by angry mothers on a railway crossing used several times a day by the CNR and Burlington Northern was removed Friday after the railways agreed not to move trains when school children are in the area.

The railways made two attempts Thursday and Friday to get an injunction in British Columbia supreme court forcing the mothers to move off the tracks, but Mr. Justice A. A. Mackoff denied the applications.

He said technical requirements regarding notification of the mothers hadn't been met.

The railways finally agreed to the mothers' terms. They won't run trains while children are walking to school in the morning, going home at noon and, for a period of an hour and 20 minutes at the end of the school day.

Two flagmen are also to be stationed at the crossing between 6 a.m. and 9 p.m. seven days a week, until a scheduled pedestrian overpass is built.

Booze Ad Ban Not for Alta.

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta is unlikely to follow British Columbia's lead and introduce legislation banning all liquor and tobacco advertising, Premier Harry Strom said Friday.

Commenting on legislation introduced in the B.C. legislature, Strom said he believes advertising ethics should be controlled nationally in the interests of uniformity.

However, he said, he is interested in looking at a copy of the B.C. bill.

The Alberta government has been under pressure for some years from the Alberta Association of Broadcasters to permit liquor advertising on radio and television. A restricted form of liquor advertising is permitted in the print media

MINI-TRADE FAIR FOR VICTORIA

A pocket version of the British International Trade Fair will be held in Victoria in May, 1972, as a $300,000 boost to the second annual week of Victorian Days.

Victoria Chamber of Commerce president Philip Holmes said Friday the money to be spent by the United Kingdom trade commission on promoting and setting up the fair would be of great value to the Victorian Days celebration, and give notice of the events to a wide-ranging audience.

VICTORIA DAYS

Chamber director Reg Hind said the UK trade commission had agreed to bringing a miniature version of its Vancouver fair, to tie in with the Victorian Days theme.

The chamber is springboard of the Victorian Days theme, to have its first appearance in May this year.

Among its features, directors were told, will be a cavalcade from up-Island communities, a treasure hunt, dress balls and a bikethon having a 100-mile target.

TREASURE HUNT

The bikethon will be April 18 between 7:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. along a 25-mile route over city streets. The chamber will put up a perpetual challenge trophy for the school which raises th most cash per student through sponsoring cyclists.

For the treasure hunt, the chamber will sell books of tickets which will be drawn to select holders who on four Saturdays' will be permitted to dig for prizes in sandpiles to be dumped on shopping centre parking lots.

On the fifth weekend, finalists will be sent to a beach to hunt for the $2,000 grand prize and several smaller treasures.

Chrysler Notes Lose Rating

NEW YORK (AP) — Unsecured corporate notes sold by the Chrysler Corp. and two of its subsidiaries have lost their "prime" rating because of the company's "unimpressive operation results."

The National Credit Office, a Dun and Bradstreet division that evaluates issuers of commercial paper, has withdrawn its rating of the paper sold by Chrysler and its Chrysler Financial Corp. and Chrysler Credit Canada Ltd. No new rating was substituted.

SPECULATIONS HELP BOND PRICE CLIMB

TORONTO (CP) — Investor speculation of further bank prime-rate reductions helped push prices on the Canadian bond market higher in moderate trading this week.

On the week, short-term issues climbed about five cents while mid-term bonds rose about one-quarter point. Long-term bonds advanced as much as a full point and corporate issues closed moderately higher.

Observers said heavy trading late in blue-chip issues was an indication investors were buying current high-yield issues as a hedge against anticipated further interest rate reductions.

Bank of Nova Scotia introduced a new issue totalling $25 million. The bonds, due in 1991, carry a seven-per-cent coupon and sold at par.

Westcoast Transmission floated a new issue totalling $90 million. The issue, which matures May 15, 1991, sold at par to yield eight per cent. Each bond carries 20 warrents which allow the holder to buy Westcoast stock at $26 during the next five years.

Day-to-day ranged from three to 3½ per cent, closing Friday at three per cent. Three- and six-month treasury bills traded at 3.05 and 3.10 per cent respectively.

YOUR TAXES

Taxpayers' Civil Rights Defended in Brief

By I. H. ASPER

It is four years since Canada's legal and accounting professions sat down with the minister of finance to make recommendations regarding changes in the tax law. This week the Canadian Bar Association and the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants have revived what was an annual custom by making a submission to Finance Minister Edgar Benson and Revenue Minister Herb Gray.

In the past, representatives of the two professional bodies have annually met with the appropriate government ministers and their officials in order to draw to their attention situations where the tax law has produced unfair results which should be remedied by legislation.

This year's brief leans strongly in favor of improving taxpayers' civil rights under the law, although it makes other valid points as well.

For example, the legal-accounting brief comments favorably on the government's recently-improved practice of sending out regular circulars and interpretation bulletins describing how the tax department is operating and letting the public know how it intends to apply and interpret the law.

STILL ROOM

While this practice is a great improvement over the past, where one could rarely determine where he stood under the law, and where the law might be administered one way in Vancouver and the opposite way in Moncton, there is still room for improvement.

The brief properly points out there is a danger that when the tax department prepares its interpretation bulletins stating how officials will apply the law, these interpretations can be so wide that they, in effect, make new law. Law-making is the function of Parliament, not the civil service. As well, the professional associations feel that the government interpretation bulletins should be issued in "proposal" form so that anyone who disagrees with the tax department's view of what the law means will have an opportunity to make representations and have his views considered.

ESTATE TAX LAW

Another point made is that the system whereby the tax department will rule in advance, on how it will treat a taxpayer's proposed transaction, should be improved. At the moment, the advance ruling system does not cover the estate tax law, nor will the government give an advance ruling on whether or not a profit made on the sale of one's assets will be treated as taxable income or a tax-free capital gain. These are vitally important areas of tax law and the professional associations are quite right in urging that the government should extend the advance ruling system to include them.

The joint committee of lawyers and accountants also recommends that the Estate Tax Act be amended. Where one leaves his estate outright to his wife with no strings attached, there is no tax. But if there are any conditions, such as where the husband provides that if the wife remarries, then part of the estate will go to his children, then regardless of whether or not the wife actually does remarry, the whole estate is taxed.

UNFAIR TO WIFE

Since this is obviously unfair to the wife, and interferes with social relationships and customs that are no business of the government, the recommendation that the law be changed to accommodate this situation is reasonable. Surely there should be no tax penalties imposed against the wife simply because her husband wishes to protect their children against being disinherited through the remarrying of the widow.

The estate tax valuation rules are also criticized. Under present laws, when one dies his estate is taxed on the basis of its fair market value at the moment of death. This is often difficult to ascertain; as well, by the time the estate is distributed to the deceased's heirs, the value of the assets may have changed dramatically — yet they are taxed on the value at the date of death.

The joint committee brief asks for an immediate change in the law to permit the heirs to have a choice in deciding when the inherited assets should be evaluated for tax purposes. It is suggested that the estate benficiaries should be able to elect to value the assets on any one of three dates: the date of death; or six months thereafter, or the date on which the estate assets are actually sold. This would certainly improve the fairness of the law.

Despite the value of these recommendations by the leading spokesmen for the professions, their most important contribution is a series of proposals which would eliminate those provisions of the present law which abuse the fundamental civil rights of taxpayers and deny them, in many cases, the basic elements of natural justice. This aspect will be the subject of a subsequent commentary.

Because of the importance of their recommendations, and keeping in mind that the joint committee of lawyers and accountants is an objective and independent voice, the government should accept and act quickly on these proposals for tax law improvement.

(Mr. Asper is a Winnipeg lawyer.)

Thomson

The Thomson Organisation Ltd. reports net profit after taxes rose to $8.64 million in 1970 from $7.9 million in 1969.

The rise resulted from a gross turnover of the group's activities of $228.48 million in 1970, an increase from the $209.28 million in the previous year.

This report does not include activities of The Times, which Lord Thomson acquired in 1967 and which has been losing money steadily, supported by the Thomson family holding company, Thomson Scottish Associates Ltd. Its financial activities will no longer be made public.

BILL WALKER

"Members of the Times Editorial staff will gather for prayers and gospel singing in honor of Pete Sallaway . . ." That is what the inter-office memo said, and thus a former sports editor of this paper Friday moved into the field of retirement. "Charged" into retirement may be a better way of putting it.

We all wish Pete well, and if you don't think this crusty throwback to the good, old, ribald days of sport in this town, isn't going to enjoy himself, forget it. He has never stopped. Pete could write a book on some of his experiences, if he could get anybody to print it. He called the plays in this corner for a number of years, and if your obedient servant didn't learn some of life's most unusual lessons in that time, it wasn't the fault of the professor in charge.

For instance there was the time that Pete got involved in a card game. This in itself wasn't unusual, but suddenly a slight difference of opinion over the respective values of the hands care about. The police were called . . . and . . . if you want the rest of the story, better call Pete. Get him to tell it. Your agent wouldn't dare. Or many of the others, either!

Still, it was fun, mostly. With due respect, it had to be. "And you too, Walker," is the way Pete would reply. Which is the way it was at the beginning with Pete, never changed, and always will be in this corner, as the momory of that association lingers on, and will never be forgotten, either. Pete wouldn't want it any other way. Not the Pete we know here at the Times. So have a ball, old snarlie, and well . . . thanks for everything . . . and a happy future to your wife, Kay, and young Pete, too.

Meanwhile, the sports world goes on apace, and what a torrid pace the Japanese rugby team served up at Athletic Park on Monday (and again at Cowichan Thursday) for the Island's best rugby players. The display by the Japanese here on a greasy field with treacherous footing, was amazing to say the least. The visitors performed a grade or two higher than the locals, and were romping goalward at will, around and over a tired lot of Canadians at the finish.

At the post-game feed-in which was held at the Red Lion, the Japanese proved they were excellent ambassadors off the playing field as well.

First there was a presentation of Kwakiutl dancing masks to the senior officials of the Japanese team, and Cowichan toques to the players on the Japanese side. The Japanese in return presented Victoria officials with Japanese Rugby Union ties.

Then suddenly, two of the Japanese players produced guitars, and started to play.

Imagine the surprise to the assembled guests when the Japanese players broke into that refrain "She'll Be Coming Around the Mountain," in almost flawless English.

After four verses, they received a standing ovation.

Now this may not seem like too much to get excited about in the field of culture. It probably isn't, except for the fact that only two of the Japanese players speak any English at all!

Meanwhile, King Clancy of the Leafs says he feels the Toronto club is reaching its peak, and can handle New York Rangers in the forthcoming playoffs. He calls the Boston club great, but suggested the Bruins may have peaked too soon, and be ripe for an upset, even in the opening round against Montreal . . . And if the game of hockey appears rough on the TV screen, "It's the way I like it," said Clancy, as he defended the laying on of the hickory. "It's the little man's "equalizer," he pointed out.

If it was awards day here this week, it was interesting to learn, too, that Art Jones, Portland's perennial hockey all-star, has been named Oregon's outstanding pro athlete of 1970 in a radio-TV poll . . . Two of the also-rans were Mel Renfro of football and Harmon Killebrew of baseball . . . It's a fact, too, that Boston Bruins are the NHL's biggest team with an average of 192.2 pounds a player, and that Vancouver has the smallest club at 176.9 pounds a player . . . And if racing fans are looking for a handicap winner at Ex-Park this season, they might remember the name of Court Clown . . . This was a $15,000 claim by the Jawl Bros. of Victoria at Golden Gate earlier this year . . . Which brings up the reminder that race fans should always bear in mind what Damon Runyan once penned: "The race is not always to the swift, nor the battle to the strong, but that's the way to bet."

G'nite all, and you, too, Pete.

Irish Sweeps Run To Double Cream

DONCASTER, England (AP) — Double Cream today won the Lincoln Handicap on which the Irish Sweepstakes is based.

Tandy was second, a length behind, and Brother Scot took third in a photo-finish.

Thirteen persons around the world who drew Double Cream in the sweepstakes will get prizes of £50,000 ($120,000).

There are 13 second prizes in the sweepstakes of £20,000 ($48,000) for Tandy and 13 prizes of £ 10,111 ($24,00) for Brother Scot.

A total of 234 Canadian ticket holders won an estimated $1,143,300. Those who held tickets on non-starters or horses out of the money receive about $1,100 each.

Double Cream went off at odds of 30 to 1. Tandy, getting a favorable draw in the centre of the field of 26 horses, became favorite just before the race at 15-2. Brother Scot was 8-1.

Mon Plaisir, running at 10-1, was fourth.

There was a dramatic start to the one-mile race. Tudor Dance fell as he came out of the starting stalls and Jockey Joe Mercer was thrown to the side of the track.

Double Cream, owned by Briton Roy Dennis and trained by Bill Elsey, was ridden by Eddie Hide.

In fifth place was Grisaille; Sovereign Plea, sixth; Royal Smoke, seventh; Royal Captive, eighth; and Grandrew, ninth.

Can They Still Call Them Boys' Clubs?

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — The state board of regents made it official Friday — girls can now play on boys' teams in non-contact sports.

The board amended the regulations to permit girls to play on boys' teams "in any such non-contact sports for which the school does not maintain a girls team." The new rule lists archery, badminton, bowling, fencing, golf, gymnastics, riflery, shuffleboard, skiing, swimming, diving, table tennis, tennis and track and field as the non-contact sports. Rowing is also allowed, but here the girl can only be the coxswain, not one of the rowers, because of the physical efforts required.

The change came after 16 months of experiments with "highly talented girls playing on boys' teams." The regents said these experiments "revealed no basic problems to such competition.

"While the regents believe that the needs of most girls will be met through participation on girls' teams, they realize that there will probably always be a few girls in the state who are so athletically talented that their needs can be met only by participation on boys' teams," the board said.

HO HUM, JUST ANOTHER FIGHT!

While St. Louis defenceman Noel Picard and California centre Dennis Hextall grapple on ice and Ron Stackhouse (right) of Golden Seals scuffles with rival, one spectator finds contents of beverage cup more interesting than first-period fight. Blues grabbed 3-1 lead in first period and went on to take 8-5 National Hockey League decision at Oakland.

Closing Rush Provides Sabres With Good Edge

By The Canadian Press

Buffalo Sabres will not make the playoffs in their first season in the National Hockey League but they are bound to take some satisfaction from their showing as an expansion team.

The Sabres scored two goals in the third period Friday night to defeat Vancouver Canucks 3-1 in one of the two NHL games and the win gave them a firm hold on fifth place in the seven-team East Division.

In the other game, Garry Unger and Jim Roberts each scored two goals to lead St. Louis Blues to an 8-5 victory over California Golden Seals.

The Sabres, who with the Canucks entered the league this season as a new team in the East Division, lost their first two games to the Canucks, but they rebounded to win the other four and take their six-game series with the Canucks 4-2.

And Punch Imlach, coach and general manager of the Sabres, is bound to take some satisfaction from the fact that Gil Perreault, his prized rookie who was drafted first in the NHL's amateur draft last year, is considered a favorite for the Rookie-of-Year award.

PICKED OVER TALLON

Imlach chose Perrault over Dale Tallon, who was drafted second by the Canucks, Tallon, a prolific scorer as centre in his last season as a junior with Toronto Malboros of the Ontario Hockey Association, has also had an outstanding season with the Canucks.

But the Canucks switched him to defence and he has played most of the season in that position, one of the toughest in the league.

Perreault scored his 36th goal Friday night in Buffalo's victory over the Canucks and his 29 assists give him a total of 65 points, one short of the 66 scored so far by rookie Jude Drouin of Minnesota North Stars.

Drouin, who scored his 65th and 66th points Thursday night in Minnesota's 2-2 tie with Philadelphia Flyers, broke the record of most points by a rookie—65—set in the 1968-69 season by Danny Grant, also of the North Stars.

CLOSE TO SECOND

St. Louis' win over the Golden Seals moved the Blues to within two points of clinching second place in the West Division. The Blues, who led throughout the game, also got goals from George Morrison, Noel Picard, Bill Sutherland and Chris Bordeleau.

Tommy Williams scored twice for California while Joe Hardy, Gerry Ehman and Tony Featherstone got the others.

Soviets Zero In On Ninth Straight

GENEVA (AP) — The final round-robin of the 1971 world hockey championship moves to this United Nations centre today with the Soviet Union two points in the clear atop the standing and the overwhelming favorite to win its ninth straight title.

The last game Friday of the first round-robin in Bern, the Swiss federal capital, had been expected to be a key match between the unbeaten but once-tied Russians and Swedes.

It turned out to be a rout as the Soviet Union ruthlessly swept its main rival off the ice 8-0. The Russians now have four wins and a tie for nine points. The Czechs, who held the world champions to a 3-3 tie Wednesday, defeated Finland 5-0 in Friday's other game.

Only the unlikely combination of Sweden's winning all its remaining five games and the Russians losing at least twice would give the Swedes the title.

The battle for the silver and bronze medals is between Sweden, Czechoslovakia and Finland — barring a sensational collapse of the Russians.

Sweden is in second place with seven points, followed by the Czechs and Finns, with five points each.

In Friday's games, Anatoli Firsov scored four of the Russians' eight goals, Boris Mikailov scored twice and Vladimir Petrov and Vyacheslav Starshinov had one each.

Archery Titles On Line Sunday

Competition in a combined shoot for the B.C. Archery Association and Vancouver Island Archery Association indoor championships will be staged Sunday at the Work Point Barracks gymnasium by the newly-formed Cedar Forest Bowmen of CFB Esquimalt.

Several champions are included on the list of approximately 100 contestants in the final indoor meet of the season. Action starts about 9 a.m.

Bruins' Shocker Squares Series

Cats Belted 5-0; Meeting No. 3 At Arena Tonight

CHILLIWACK — Victoria Cougar coach Mike Shabaga has insisted on showing respect for Chilliwack Bruins. There were some who regarded his views as a huckster's ploy to peddle tickets to the British Columbia Junior Hockey League playoffs.

After all, how could a team that has never beaten the Cougars pose a threat?

The answer turned up here Friday night. Hustling from the srarting "go," the Orv Litchfield-coached Bruins came up witb the big shocker by blanking the Cougars 6-0 to deadlock their best-of-five Coastal Division semi-final 1-1.

Game No. 3 will be played tonight in Memorial Arena, starting at 8:30.

NOBODY BELIEVED

"I suppose I could say 'I told you so,'" said Shabaga. "But I had a feeling that Chilliwack was going to give us trouble. Nobody would believe me."

The believers were hard to find because the Cougars zapped Chilliwack in 12 straight regular-season meetings, then made it 13 with a 6-4 decision in he series opener Wednesday.

Now the BCJHL observers can point to the obvious: The Bruins, who have improved greatly during the closing month of the schedule, bear little semblance to the Chilliwack team that struggled for victories during the first two-thirds of the campaign.

FIRST SHUTOUT

Shabaga still feels his Cougars can handle the Bruins, "but not if we play like we did Friday."

Lee Holum drew the goaltending assignment for Chilliwack on Friday and produced the first shutout in Chilliwack's history. And the Bruins earned full marks for it.

Chilliwack showed the Victoria players how to go on a small rink. The Cougars failed to catch on and were out-shot 36-24 by the Bruins.

The Bruins back-checked superbly and Holum really didn't have much difficulty in posting the shutout. Cougars mustered about five dangerous threats, then spent the rest of the game drifting long shots at the Chilliwack goal.

GOAL DISALLOWED

Defenceman Gerry Bond and Tom Keep, playing on the wing in place of Rob Little, both hit posts with good shots. One shot did elude Holum, but referee John Zedic ruled Victoria winger Scott Munro kicked the puck into the net.

Bond and Greg Robinson were Victoria's best performers while Chilliwack got its strongest effort from the line of Denis Andersen, Mike Randolph and Rick Metzler and the defence pairing of Roy Carmichael and Ron Greschner.

Metzler, back in action after missing three weeks because of an injury, Greg Reid and Randolph shot Chilliwack into a 3-0 lead and Rick Kramp rapped in Bruins' last two goals for insurance.

Bulgarians Upset

LONDON (Reuter) — Britain brought off one of the biggest upsets in Olympic soccer history when it beat Bulgaria 1-0 in the 1972 Games qualifying tournament.

Only about 3,000 spectators saw the British team humble the Bulgarians, who fielded six World Cup team members.

Broncs Carry B.C. Standard

After several weeks of negotiation, officials of the British Columbia Junior Hockey League have settled on Penticton Broncos as the province's standard-bearer in inter-provincial playoffs next month.

League president Dr. Arnold Lowden announced Friday night that Broncos will represent B.C. against the Alberta Junior Hockey League winner. The series begin in Penticton April 5.

The BCJHL had intended to send an Okanagan division playoff loser against the AJHL champion.

However, threats by the Canadian Amateur Hockey association, that the CAHA would withhold player development money from the BCJHL unless B.C. was represented by its top junior club, finally prompted the choice of Penticton.

THREE INELIGIBLE

Only five of the eight BCJHL clubs were eligible for inter-provincial play. Vancouver, Victoria and New Westminster carry over-age (20 or over) players and therefore were not considered.

Broncos had the best season record among the five teams—Penticton, Kelowna, Kamloops, Vernon, and Chilliwack—which conformed to CAHA eligibility rules.

The Broncos, meanwhile, have taken command of their best-of-seven quarter-final. Sparked by Fred Parent's four goals, Penticton laced Kelowna Buckaroos 10-5 Friday to take a 3-0 series lead.

ESSOS CONNECT

In other playdowns, Vernon Essos finally found a winning touch and Vancouver Centennials moved ahead in its cross-town series with New Westminster Royals.

The Essos, sparked by goaltender Wayne Price's fine play, downed Kamloops 5-1 to cut Rockets' lead to 2-1.

Vancouver, despite the absence of high-scoring Neil Murphy and Pat Russell, took a 2-1 lead over Royals by blanking New Westminster 6-0 before 2,030 fans at Kerrisdale.

NEW WEST. 0, VANCOUVER 6

KAMLOOPS 1, VERNON 5

KELOWNA 5, PENTICTON 10

Kelowna—Doug Manchuk 3, Bruce Gerlach, Charlie Burk; Penticton—Fred Parent 4, Bruce Affleck, Rick Taggart, Vic Mercredi, Don Ashman, Tom Garwaysee, Harry Turk.

Purdy Powers Cubs in Opener

KAMLOOPS — Winger Mark Purdy's second goal of the game, scored at 1:18 of a sudden-death overtime period, gave Victoria Cubs a 6-5 win over Kamloops Teamsters in the first game of the British Columbia Junior B hockey championship Friday.

Centre Tim Strush of Kamloops scored at 19:22 of the third period to send the game into overtime, and the clubs battled through a ten-minute period without scoring before the sudden-death session was required.

Victoria also got goals from Don Blyth, Glen McCallum, Ron Poole and Mark Patterson.

After a scoreless first period, the Cubs took a 3-2 lead in the second and led most of the third period before Kamloops came back late in the game to tie the score.

As the first overtime period ended, Kamloops right-winger Ross Anderson took a charging penalty and as a result Teamsters were shorthanded when the goal was scored.

Victoria had a territorial edge throughout the game, outshooting Kamloops 46-37.

A crowd of about 600 watched as 27 penalties were handed out, 15 of them to the Teamsters.

The second game of the best-of-three series will be played here tonight and the third, if necessary, will be Sunday afternoon.

Rookie Leads Lakers; Bullets Knot Series

By The Associated Press

Jim McMillan has surprised himself and most everyone else by the efficient way he has stepped into the shoes of the injured Jerry West for the Los Angeles Lakers in the National Basketball Association playoffs.

The 6-foot-5 rookie again was the key as the Lakers beat Chicago Bulls 105-95 Friday night for a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven Western Conference semi-finals.

Baltimore Bullets evened their Eastern Conference semi-final with Philadelphia 76ers at 1-1 by whipping the 76ers 119-107 in the other scheduled NBA playoff game.

McMillan scored 26 points in the Lakers' 109-99 squeaker over Chicago Wednesday and added 24 Friday for a two-game total of 50.

FAST TIME IN 117TH ANNUAL BOAT RACE

Cambridge Wins by 10

LONDON (Reuter) — Cambridge beat Oxford by a convincing 10 lengths today in the 117th annual universities boat race on the River Thames

Cambridge led Oxford from start to finish for an easy win in 17 minutes 58 seconds, its fourth successive victory in the prestige race and its 65th of the series. The victors had won the toss and taken the south side of the river.

Oxford came with a fierce burst over the first mile of the four-mile 374-yard course, but Cambridge managed to hold the challenge off and keep its nose in front, then drew steadily away as Oxford slipped farther behind.

Cambridge's time was the second fastest in the race's 117-year history. Her crew, one length ahead after the first mile and three ahead at the halfway stage, stretched its lead stroke by stroke to the finish.

The crews had to cope with a head wind and moderately rough water in the early stages of the race, but conditions changed and they had a tail wind and then a dead calm in the latter stages.

Baseball Leagues Issue Annual Call For Registration

Irish, Huskies Tangle for Title

VANCOUVER — The fighting Irish of Vancouver College tangle tonight with North Delta Huskies for the British Columbia high school basketball championship, after both teams barely edged out strong opponents Friday night.

North Delta made it into the final with a skin-of-their-teeth 50-49 defeat of Abbotsford Panthers, while Vancouver College, led by Nick Gallagher's 22 points, scraped by Centennial Centaurs of Coquitlam by a margin of 45-42.

Dave Coutu was North Delta's brilliant playmaker and high scorer with 16 points, while Werner Spann scored 25 points — more than half — for Abbotsford.

Abbotsford and Centennial play at 7 tonight for third and sixth places in the tournament.

BAYS BEAT ROCKERS

In Friday's consolation round games, Oak Bay of Victoria got strong scoring efforts from Doug Walton (19 points) and Duff McGaghey (17) to trip Castlegar Rockers 63-57.

Mount Douglas Rams of Victoria were eliminated in another consolation contest. Rams were thumped 75-47 by Burnaby South Revels, who were paced by centre Larry Street (27 points). Jim Duddrige (12) was the Rams' point leader.

North Vancouver bounced Dawson Creek 64-50 and Prince Rupert Rainmakers were ousted by New Westminster Hyacks 55-52.

North Vancouver and New Westminster, playing for fifth and eighth places, launched today's action. They were followed by Oak Bay and Burnaby South, who were fighting for the fourth and seventh positions.

BURNABY SOUTH (75) — Doug Noble, Rick Harris, Bill McKay 3, Mike Miletich 3, Rick Hanson 23, Ernie Fletcher 7, Mike Simms 12, Larry Street 27, Phil Teljeur, Bill Hourston, Dave Waters.

MT. DOUGLAS (47) — Ron Smith 2, Jim Duddridge 12, John Jenner 7, Brian Wright 9, Mike Reimer 2, Greg Gardiner 5, Bill Hingley 7, Harry Hitchman, John Evans, Bruce Coulter, Doug Archibald, Sid Chow 3.

OAK BAY (63) — Dave Anderson, Mike Morrill 12, Ian Lewis 2, Mike Mitchell, Dave Landine, Rod Couvelier, Doug Walton 19, Mark Campbell, Peter Gibson 6, Mark Anderson 4, Duff McCaghey 17, Geoff Snow 3.

CURRIE 'GOOD' FOLLOWING OPERATION

Brian Currie, a player with Oak Bay Wanderers of the Victoria Rugby Union's first division, was reported in "good post-operative condition" Friday following surgery earlier this week at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Fatality Marks Oldtimers' Game

OWEN SOUND, Ont. (CP) — Jerry Reid, 42, a former American Hockey League player, collapsed and died Friday night while playing in an exhibition game here.

Reid, playing for Owen Sound Mercury Oldtimers against a team representing the Ontario legislature, collapsed in the third period and died later in hospital, apparently of a heart attack.

MacFarlane Selected

OTTAWA (CP)—Angus MacFarlane, director of physical education and athletics at Mount Allison University in Sackville, N.B., has been appointed resource assistant at the administrative centre for sport and recreation in Ottawa.

Trevino Touts Man in Black

MIAMI (AP) — Lee Trovino surveyed the group tied for first place in the National Airlines open golf tournament and singled out Gary Player as the man to beat for the $40,000 first prize.

"If the wind keeps blowing, that little man in black is the one you've got to watch," Trevino said Friday after joining the group of six tied for first place going into today's third round in the $200,000 event.

Trevino, the defending champion, cut through the blustery winds with a three-under-par 69 for 136, eight under par on the 6,970-yard Country Club of Miami course.

He was tied with Player, the South African who won last week's Greater Jacksonville Open, Australian Bruce Crampton, Charles Coody, Jerry Heard and rookie Hubert Green.

COLE FIRES 65

One stroke back of the leading six at 137 was Australian Bruce Devlin, who had a 69. Bobby Cole, a 22-year-old South African who matched Green's 65, and Frank Beard, with a 70, followed at 138.

The only Canadian to survive the cut of 145 was George Knudson of Toronto who shot a 70 for 140. Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg had a 73 for 147, Wayne Vollmer of Vancouver shot 80 for 149 and Ken Fulton of Montreal had a 75 for 151.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Reaping first Times Bowler-of-the-Week award is Jean Baker, who topped women's fivepin division during 22nd week of eighth annual contest. Jean, whose other hobbies include gardening, won weekly award and berth in Bowler-of-the-Year rolloffs with sparkling 259-348-299—906 series in Monday Classic League at Gibson's Bowladrome.

Victoria Trio Seeking Gold In Mat Meet

Three Victoria competitors will look for gold in the Yukon when they compete in the Canadian amateur wrestling championships and Pan-American Games trials in Whitehorse April 1-4.

Craig Delahunt (163 pounds) and Taras Hryb (180½ pounds) are entered in the freestyle competition and Kjelb Brodsgaard (198 pounds) will battle in the Greco-Roman event.

Hryb, currently attending the University of British Columbia, earned a gold medal in the Canada Winter Games earlier this year in Saskatoon before winning his weight-class title in the Canadian intercollegiate championships.

School Squad Trips Alumni

John Firth and Hayden Swafford combined talents in the final minute Friday to give University School a 14-13 triumph over an alumni side in an exhibition rugby match.

Trailing by four points, 13-9, going into the last minute of the contest at the school pitch, University School snatched the decision when Firth dashed over for a try and Swafford kicked a conversion from a difficult angle.

Mike Briggs and Gary Cameron scored earlier trys for the students and Swafford booted a penalty goal. Counting for the alumni were Trevor Conduit, with a try and two conversions, and Rick Dale and Mark Fellner, each with a try.

NFL Delays Rule Change

PALM BEACH, FLA. (AP) — A proposal to change the National Football League conversion rule has been defeated by the club owners, but enough sentiment for the two-point option surfaced to lead Lamar Hunt of Kansas City Chiefs to predict its eventual adoption.

"I'm hopeful we'll get it eventually," said Hunt, who led the bid to substitute the two-point conversion rule used in the old American Football League for the conventional extra point rule in use throughout the NFL.

The two-point option allows the team either to kick for a point or pass or run for two points after a touchdown.

Rugby Birds Win

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ray Banks scored 14 points as University of British Columbia Thunderbirds beat University of California at Los Angeles, 17-10, Thursday in a World Cup intercollegiate rugy match. It was the first time in 10 years the UBC squad has won the World Cup, awarded annually for UBC-California rugby competition.

Ruthless Headline Seekers Cleverly Stalk Her Majesty's Unsuspecting Sub-Chasers

Story by Bryan McGill

Drawings by Bob Bierman

This is an account of what happens when an editor and a cartoonist, both desk-bound landlubbers with some B.C. Ferry experience behind them, go to sea for a day on a destroyer-escort. The names of the officers are fictitious, mainly because a lot what happens goes on only in the head of the writer. And they wish to thank Lt.-Cmdr. E. A. Makin, captain of the Columbia, and his officers and crew for trying their best to explain in a short time how such a ship operates, and especially for the first-rate hospitality.

As we stumbled nervously up the gangplank towards the ominous shape of the destroyer-escort, I quickly went over in my mind the city editor's pre-assignment briefing.

"All you have to know," said the city editor, "is that the port side is on the left and the starboard on the right."

"Roger," said Bierman, my partner, who, disguised this time as a cartoonist, is invariably called upon by the Times when there is a tough story to crack.

●

"Your main objective, men, will be to insinuate yourselves among the officers, look dumb and pretend you are on a typical PR gig, while you quietly ferrett out the real story — the inside dope, if, hen, hen, you know what I mean," said the city editor leering evilly.

"Okay, men. It's up to you now. Good luck."

Mental note: Aha! The token French-Canadian officer.

Possible headline: Navy Pays Lip Service to Bilingualism.

●

Into the officers' wardroom.

Mental note: Artificial fireplace in the corner. Piano. Bookshelve. Fireplace? A bar, strangely closed down.

"By the way, chaps, the officers all chipped in to decorate the wardroom. Paid for everything except the fireplace, which is a tradition in many of Her Majesty's ships."

That was the Executive Officer (the Ex-O) speaking, one step ahead of us, shooting down, the tricky devil, a possible headline of: Naval Officers Living in Lap of Luxury.

(The Ex-O's image bends my movie-drenched mind. Why, of course, it's James Robertson Justice. Bushy-bearded, chipper, inexorable jolly aplomb. Carry On Navy and all that.)

Barely at sea when first major incident takes place. Dockyard worker who is supposed to be on other D-E is on ours.

Ripple of excitement on the bridge. Messages clacked out to other D-E. Both ships slow to stop. Deck boat lowered into water. Incredible thing happens. Three pulls on the 6-horsepower outboard fails. The men must now row the depressed-looking worker to other D-E. Bierman is firing his pencil away at the scene.

Why only three pulls on the outboard? we ask the latest officer assigned to look after us, who, oddly enough, looks remarkably similiar to Dustin Hoffman.

●

"That's the regulation. Suppose if a man was overboard and if they went on to pull it four, then five times, eating up precious seconds when they could be rowing to the rescue?"

Mental note: These ships are sophisticately equipped for emergencies of the highest order.

Possible headline: Modern Warships Stand By Helplessly While 6-Horspower Outboard fails to Engage.

To the bridge where the captain is flanked by about a dozen men, all running the D-E by peering into radar screens, rasping out orders through intercoms, acting on a constant flow of data bleeping and rumbling in from everywhere.

Professional assessment: the captain is reminiscent of Gary Cooper. Lean, introspective, competent, individualistic. His eyes are alertly furrowed, obviously on the lookout for the tell-tale signs of a Commie sub.

Professional question: Tell us, Captain, have you ever made contact with a foreign sub in these waters?

Coop: Heck, no, boy. What would they be doing here?

Another professional question: What would happen if you ever did contact one?

●

Coop: Radio back to the admiralty and leave it to politics, naturally.

The D-E enters the firing zone off Sheringham Point. Fishing boats are closely watched on radar to make sure they are well away from the trajectory of the dummy shells from the three-inch guns aft. It will be, we are informed, a long slow process if firing since the ship is on a post refit check of all its equipment.

"Roger."

"Fire ready."

"Roger."

"Start to shoot."

"WHAM! WHAM!"

We sit around the fireplace exchanging pleasantries, clinging to our rye and gingers, the ice cubes rattling from the WHAM-WHAMs right over our heads.

"All the booze is paid for out of the officers' pockets, too," says the indefatigable Ex-O, shooting down another possible headline that would declare: Navy Squanders Taxpayers' Money on Booze.

Hardly significant anyway, since it costs anywhere from $9,000 to $40,000 for a day-long cruise.

The wardroom is now heaving in a suddenly heavier Pacific swell. My stomach starts to somersault and my brain is rattling around in my skull.

"I say there, old chap, we could bring up some Gravol for you," says the Ex-O cheerily. Gravol is an anti-seasickness pill.

The other officers look on with a trace of disdain in their smiles. Bierman, meanwhile, is clicking his pencil away at the mashed potatoes, the roast beef, the strawberry shortcake.

But, no, I hang on, keeping desperately before my spinning mind the crusical task which brought us here: to get on with the job . . . to get the inside story. . . .

. . . The rest of the afternoon we spend climbing awkwardly up and down hatches, coming across clusters of men working in cubbyholes crammed with complicated electronic equipment, stock piles, work benches.

One minute we're in a meat freezer, the next in the sweltering boiler and engine rooms where a marine engineer who looks like Steve McQueen says there is enough power capability to supply almost enough for the city of Victoria.

Mental note: Why don't Shrum and Bennett know this?

Possible headline: Solution to Island Power Shortage Found on High Seas.

And now the big exercise of the day: NBCD Condition Zulu. NBCD means Nuclear Biological Chemical Defence. Condition Zulu is when almost every hatch in the ship is locked shut because it is going through a nuclear fall-out zone.

Professional observation: Olympic mountains on the portside, Sooke hills on starboard. Sunshine there but ship here is engulfed in salt water rain from deck nozzles washing away all that theoretical radioactive dust.

Mental note: If there is nuclear war will it matter?

Possible headline: Navy Boast Obsolete Bombshelters That Move at 26 Knots.

And just before we head back to port, the deck officer, who resembles Dennis Hopper circa 1960, shows us a device which the D-E will float behind it in case of attack by a sub.

"You see," sayd Hopp, "this will draw away the Reds' torpedoes that go for the noise of the screws. This device, you see, is noisier than the screws.

"But," he says with a shrug of the shoulders, "we understand that, the Reds now have torpedoes that won't be fooled by this device."

"I wonder how the sailors of old used to do it," mused an officer as he watched eight men busily engaged among dials, screens and charts of the operations room from where the ship is navigated into dock.

Bierman and I stagger down the gangplank deep in thought.

"Bonsoirgoodnight," calls Larue.

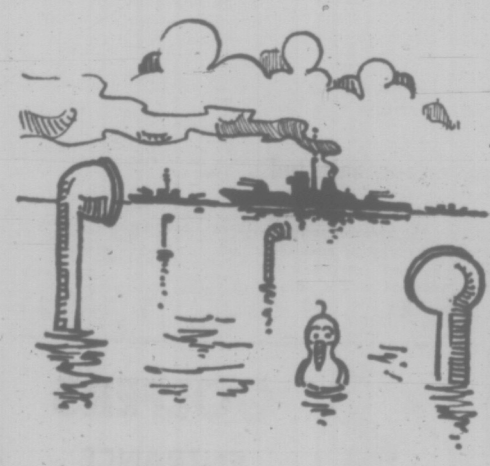
"It seems to me that the whole purpose of a destroyer is to destroy. And therefore I ask myself: "What is a nice bunch of guys doing on a ship like that?"

"It keeps them off the streets. But still it's not the inside story. It lacks pizazz. It won't fit into a headline. The inside story must, just must, be somewhere else. . . ."



747 Logic: Seats Are Empty, Thus We Need More Seats

Lifting 355 tons of airplane off the ground and pushing it through the stratosphere at 600 miles per hour is no mean technological feat.

That's the way it is with Air Canada's three new Boeing 747s.

When the first 747 rolled off Seattle assembly lines in the fall of 1968 it was popularly known as an "airbus" — a term that has quietly been dropped along with seating capacity.

By George Oake

Originally designed to accommodate 490 people and cut passenger costs by as much as 35 per cent, world airlines, including Air Canada, ordered only the 365-seat version, and most carriers are badgering their governments to raise air fares.

Air Canada has already announced fare increases that will affect proposed 747 routes.

So it seems we are not even back to square one. Air fares are up rather than down and passenger capacity is down rather than up.

The airlines know all this but they are caught in a different kind of squeeze.

Two words describe it: vacant seats. In 1945 the average pasenger plane carried 13 people; in 1969 the number climbed to 52, and in 1970 it inched up to 54 per trip. But the old propeller-driven planes seated between 30 and 50 passengers compared with anything from 90 to 365 in today's jets. That means a lot more empty seats on modern aircraft.

It doesn't take much common sense to predict that lower fares would mean higher passenger loads. But the airlines feel that bigger and better planes are necessary to attract more passengers. At least one American airline bases its advertising campaign around the fact that it provides more leg-room than its competitors.

And now Air Canada is stretching its corporate legs—not to mention its budget — by spending $75 million for three 747s. With a world average of 54 persons per trip, the crown corporations' accountants must be hoping and sweating.

To entice new travellers the 747s have in-flight movies in four out of five cabins, individual headsets featuring stereo recordings from Puccini to pop and an upstairs cocktail lounge for 14 first-class passengers.

This is heady stuff for seasoned Air Canada travellers. Before the advent of the 747, economy passengers paid a dollar a drink and amused themselves by looking out the windows.

But will all the cosmetic changes fill seats? Air Canada will charge $2.50 for the stereo headsets, necessary to hear movie dialogue and listen to music.

After paying a hefty sum for a ticket to ride, many passengers may go back to looking out the windows after the aural novelty wears off.

Higher Fares, Costly Frills Will Bait More Customers?

All this raises a salient question: are the frills really necessary? Air Canada has spent hundreds of thousands of dollars on the movie and stereo systems — costs that will come out of the customers' pockets.

What could be more superfluous than a 14-passenger cocktail lounge—available only to first class passengers—in a 365-seat aircraft? In fact the whole idea of first and economy classes is faintly repugnant in this egalitarian age.

But most airlines keep foisting cosmetic changes on the flying public and charging them more for the right to enjoy them.

Perhaps passengers are demanding more comfort. But in the long run lower fares and spartan facilities will fill more seats than in-flight movies.

There is something insane about an industrialized culture that won't build rapid transit systems yet thinks nothing of building cocktail lounges in $25 million aircraft.

Airlines may argue that filling these behemoths with 490 people would result in chaos for cramped ground facilities.

No one can argue that point. It seems that our minds do not expand as fast as our technology, and like military generals, we are always reacting to the last campaign. It will be years before the majority of airports can handle half a dozen 747s at one time.

Meanwhile, this high, wide and handsome example of man's genius will fly above the clouds — perhaps half-empty — while the rest of us hang around grimy, over-crowded bus depots waiting for a vehicle that will return us to sane priorities.

FISHER . . . ghetto girl

'I Thought EVERYONE Did Without'

By MARILYN BECK

HOLLYWOOD — Gail Fisher was raised in Potters Crossing, N.J., an area she describes as "the worst rural slum on the eastern seaboard."

Her father died when she was two, leaving her mother to raise a family of five children on earnings as a domestic and a once-in-a-while cateress.

"At times we were on relief," the Emmy-winning Mannix actress revealed as she dined on poached filet of sole and white wine in the patio of the Beverly Hills Hotel. Dressed in couturier clothes, her hair smartly coiffured, her words flowing with easy elegance, everything about her belied her impoverished past.

●

"We made do lots of times on day-old bread, often on bread pudding for dinner."

Yet, she said, it wasn't the growing up that was difficult. The hard times came later, after she had left the security of her Potters Crossing slum neighborhood and discovered that "Life wasn't as simple as I thought it would be."

"I thought the whole world was the same as we were," she said, laughing about it now. "I thought everyone did without."

Hers was a racially mixed area, "where we all got along together." And so, it wasn't until Gail reached dating age that she learned that being black was being different.

But it didn't hit her full force until she graduated high school and went to New York to try for a theatre career. She lived in a Manhattan cold-water flat, "and sometimes went without food."

Eventually she earned a living as a model, and became the Number One Black print model in the business. And finally she broke the color barrier, becoming the first black person to film a national TV commercial.

While she was modelling, she was also studying at the American Academy of Dramatic Arts, and working, whenever she could, on the off-Broadway stage.

She recalls as one of the biggest disappointments of her life, "losing out on the role in 'Raisin in the Sun' on Broadway. I came so close! When they chose someone else I cried for three solid days."

She considers the Emmy she won last year for her co-starring role in CBS's Mannix, "the greatest thing that's ever happened to me. I don't know how anything will ever surpass that feeling of achievement."

All of her achievements, she feels, have come about the hard way: happiness preceded by despair; recognition following rejection and disappointments.

She's been married for eight years to personal manager John Levy and says of the union, "It's working out fine, and that's no easy trick in my business. You really have to work to make a success of combining marriage and an acting career. And I mean, really work at it!"

Work at it she does. Though she puts in a 12-hour day at the studio, she still insists on doing her own shopping and cooking, preparing meals for her husband and two daughters in the early morning or in the evening when she returns from work.

She admits she feels a working mother's guilt when it comes to raising 11-year-old Samara, her daughter by a previous marriage, and six-year-old Jole.

What would happen if the career she's struggled so hard to achieve were to magically dwindle and die?

"If my career were to vanish," she responded thoughtfully, "I wouldn't be destroyed. I'm getting tired, awfully tired, of working so hard. Each year it seems that much more difficult to keep up the pace. Sometimes I think it would be heaven to have the free time to do all the writing I'd like to do, to compose the lyrics I enjoy so much.

What Happens If Computers Muff Payroll?

By JOHN MIKA
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — If civil service computers ball up the payroll cheques for federal employees today what's going to happen when the government eliminates currency in favor of a computer-administered cashless society?

That sort of nightmare has been handed to a special internal task force in the hopes it can come up with an answer on how to avoid it.

The task force is under Treasury Board President C. M. Drury who says it's beginning to dawn on a lot of people that "the effects of computerization on our society will be just as significant as was the impact of the automobile."

And he's keenly aware that impact can be both good and bad and it's past time someone found out how to exploit the benefits and curb the detriments.

The government naturally has taken the leading role by ordering a policy review because it uses some 10 per cent of the 2,500 computer systems that have been installed in Canada in the last two decades—and it has been hit by more of the "Accidents" than anyone else.

Uncounted Potential Uses

Just as aggravating to Drury is the fact that administrators may not even dream of the potential uses of computers let alone begin to use them.

Experience has taught that some management patterns succeed and others fail, he recently told a high-level conference of administrators here.

"Perhaps the most important of these is the attitude of management towards computer systems which experience tells us can be either the major roadblock or the driving force behind their development and proper use.

Undoubtedly, many millions of savings can be traced to computers but they still cost money—$100 million a year in the federal government's case for equipment and operators and this figure is growing at a 25-per-cent annual clip.

Performances To Be Tested

To ensure that not only value but the best value is obtained for the money, the task force has been asked to set up criteria by which computer performance can be assessed and propose mechanisms by which the machines and their managers can be monitored and challenged to prove they give the best yield on investment.

That's vital for the sake of customers who put up the money for these services.

But perhaps just as important for the nation and society is the question of how management awareness of the potential for new computer uses can be developed instead of merely falling back on measuring their worth in dollars spent or data stored.

"The implications of computerization go far beyond the computer itself," says Drury.

"It is not just a revolution in manpower-saving, the collection of data or in the adoption of a number instead of a name for (people) which we are experiencing.

"Rather it is a revolution in information which is having and will continue to have enormous repercussions on our way of life.

"Daily decisions on anything from where to buy a new appliance to which hospital has a suitable doctor and vacant bed will be made instantly and with minimal chance of error by everyone.

"In other words, computers are fast becoming a way of life."

Explosion In Use Imminent

Society is on the verge of an explosion in computer use as costs come down. Today, for instance, a computer terminal can be installed in most city homes for only $100 a month.

So those growing pains which result in late arrival of pension cheques or worse make Drury shiver with fearful as well as joyful anticipation.

"When one considers the kind of services which electronic data processing is going to be required to perform in the next 10 years or so, one is almost tempted to call a halt to this progress as long as it experiences difficulty with the comparatively simple programs of today," he says.

Think how dependent society will be on flawless computer performance when it conducts the business of a careless society, displaces the classroom with individualized instruction, administers a national medical history network so any doctor can treat any patient in any place, develops accurate weather forecasts and, in conjunction with communications improvements, provides global information networks.

It could be a politician's dream by setting up simulation models through which new policies could be tested both as to effects and public reaction.

Or, if it went wrong, a politician's nightmare.

No wonder Drury firmly concluded that a task force study was needed on a crash basis of the "vital (Computer) so that it may make a greater contribution to the improvement of government programs and to the achievement of our national objectives."

Park Bug Prompts Censure

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — The city council has censured Mayor Harry Haskell for allegedly authorizing installation of a listening device in a downtown park to eavesdrop on public gatherings.

By a vote of 10 to 3 Thursday, the predominantly Democratic council passed a resolution criticizing the Republican mayor for "actions frightening to our citizens and detrimental to the nation's opinion of Wilmington."

A microphone hidden in a tree was found by a reporter Saturday shortly before 1,000 persons gathered in the square for a peace rally. A spokesman for the mayor said the bug had been used for several years to provide sound for police videotapes of rallies held in the public square.

Answers Needed in Uvic Theatre Rift

Last week a major calamity struck the fine arts department of the University of Victoria.

The resignation of Richard Courteney may be taken by many as merely another incident in a series that has reflected serious friction in the department.

An incident, yes. But this incident will bite deep, servering the tap root of what promised to be one of the finest flowerings of the fine arts division.

The University of Victoria was — and could have continued to be — a leader for the whole of Canada in this important area. But the chance has gone now and almost certainly for good.

Why has this happened? Why has Dean of Fine Arts Peter Garvie allowed it to happen?

Along with a good many other people, I would like some answers. And as taxpayers who support the university I think we are entitled to them.

When Courtney came to Uvic in 1968, those who knew his reputation in the field of creative drama and dramatic education recognized him as a very considerable plume in the cap of the young university.

He was the outstanding British authority who had wrought great changes in education in Britain and had caused prestigious London University to recognize drama in education as an honors course.

★ ★ ★

He has stirred reverberating echoes in Nova Scotia where he had conducted teacher-training courses in drama at Dalhousie University summer schools.

When he was ready to come to the western provinces, Calgary would have undoubtedly grabbed him if Victoria had not been — at that time — quicker to seize the advantage.

That the University of Alberta was aware of the importance of this work in the education field was attested by the appointment in Calgary almost immediately, of another British specialist, Miss Margaret Foulkes, to work in a similar capacity.

But where Calgary has gone ahead with a vital program and other Canadian universities have followed suit, Uvic's fine arts department has faltered and failed to establish its advantage.

Courtney's enthusiasm for his subject, his comprehensive knowledge and experience, have bred a white hot fever of enthisiasm among his students and student assistants.

Such has been the promise of his department that he himself has carried a heavy overload, as have his one or two graduate assistants. But if the scope of the work was to continue, much less broaden, more faculty was needed.

His request for one more teacher was turned down. The reason given, lack of finances.

Upon Courtney's resignation, Dr. Ralph Allen, head of the theatre division, is reported to have expressed regret while asserting that there is no intention of the division relinquishing developmental drama and that he would attempt to find the best person to replace Courtney as of July 1.

But surely Dr. Allen doesn't expect that a person of Courtney's ability — if he can be found — would be willing to come here under the conditions that have forced Courtney to resign?

It would have been better for Dean Garvie and Allen to have found a way to meet Courtney's minimum requirement than to jeopardize the students and the department while embarking on a problematical search for a replacement.

These questions must be put:

- Which phase of the theatre division operation is most valid and lasting—the training of young actors and stage technicians;
- The mounting of lavish productions for public spectacle;
- Or the enriching of the educational field through the training of young men and women to work creatively with children and adolescents?

Sounding Board

. . . By Audrey Johnson

I have been a theatre buff since childhood. My world would certainly be a less worthwhile place if it did not contain some live threate. And it has certainly long been my contention that Victoria should have a summer festival of the performing arts.

But still the question must be asked. Is this the valid concern of the university?

I know that when Uvic initiated Victoria Fair the hope was distinctly stated officially that the community would take over the operation. At least financially and administratively.

But with the third season approaching, the festival known as Victoria Fair is still, in the great part administratively and financially, and altogether artistically, the responsibility of the university.

My argument is not against the idea or the fact of the university sponsorship of a summer festival. I only ask the question which now appears obvious — Can the university afford its sponsorship?

In view of the fact that there is, it seems, insufficient money available to retain for Uvic an internationally recognized authority in a burgeoning educational field, can the luxury of hiring professional actors for extended periods be justified?

★ ★ ★

Should not less money be spent on the opulent mountings of the theatre department's major productions?

All these things are very nice if the price paid is not too damaging to the university's major obligation.

According to Richard Courtney, Dr. Allen has stated to him his personal and professional regret at Courtney's leaving and his sympathy with the needs of the students in the area.

Surely, if his statements are sincere, the theatre department chairman together with Garvie should leave no stone unturned to effect economies that would make the situation tenable for Courtney and satisfactory for the students.

In any learning situation it is the quality of the teacher and the amount of time and energy he is able to devote to his task and to the individual student that is important.

It is therefore, difficult to escape the impression that things are badly out of balance in the fine arts department when glamorous window-dressing can tip the scales against the retaining of a gifted and inspiring teacher.

Allen's and Courteney's individual enthusiasms in their very different theatre fields are understandable and necessary. And if some distortion of relative values has occurred, that too is probably natural.

But it is the dean of the faculty who is charged with the responsibility of keeping a straight perspective, and this, it seems very clear, has not been done.

Program to Benefit Young

What is developmental drama, the title of the department within the theatre division which was founded, and has been headed by, Richard Courtney?

Developmental drama embraces the application of a profound human instinct on behalf of a thoroughly sensible and inspiring approach to education.

Its premise is that every child's instinct for improvised drama in his "let's pretend" world can be turned, under the proper teacher guidance, into an incomparable learning experience, far more persuasive and persistent than anything garnered from a text book.

"Throughout," Courtney pointed out in a Times interview in 1968, "The orientation is toward the use of impersonation, improvisation and creative play for the learning of a considerable range of academic subjects."

Uvic students in the Bachelor of Education and Bachelor of Fine Arts programs, under developmental drama, learn to use these approaches and tools for the educational and therapeutic advantage of the children and young people with whom they intend to work.

'CASTLE BOUTIQUE'

In support of the scholarship and bursary funds of Victoria Conservatory of Music, the Women's Committee will hold a "Craigdarroch Castle Budget Boutique" sale, April 17, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Nearly new spring and summer clothing for men, women and children will be featured, also accessories such as costume jewelry, scarves, hats, gloves and shoes, and attic treasures — china, silver and such.

Tours of the castle will be conducted.

Funds Sought To Send Play To Ottawa

Everything has been arranged for Uvic theatre division's Victoria Fair production, Justice Not Revenge, to make feasible the trip to Ottawa where it has been invited to appear, May 21, in the Theatre Canada 71 festival at the National Arts Centre.

Everything, that is, except the necessary $8,000 that the trip will cost.

In an effort to raise some, or all, of this amount, the first of four preview performances at McPherson Playhouse Thursday has been declared a "benefit night."

It is hoped that on that night, patrons will make donations to the fund, over and above the price of their admission ticket.

As an example — one night's full house which amounts to a bit more than 300 persons, paying $10 a head, would put the travel fund over the top.

The play will join the Victoria Fair '71 repertory later in the summer and the invitation to perform in Ottawa is regarded as an excellent opportunity to spread the word concerning the fair.

Justice Not Revenge is one of two productions that will represent British Columbia. The other is a production by the Simon Fraser University Mime Troup.

Theatre Canada '71 is a Dominion Drama Festival sponsored week-long event, which takes the place this year experimentally of the former competitive festival.

Upwards of 70 invitations were sent out across Canada, asking groups to submit possible productions.

As a result at least 25 plays were chosen and will be seen in morning, afternoon and evening sessions. They have been selected as representative of classic, contemporary, experimental and children's theatre work over as wide an area of Canada as possible.

The hub of the festival is the National Arts Centre, but peripheral activities of a dramatic, dance, musical and graphic arts nature will be taking place during the week in the squares, malls, stations, schools, parks and shopping centres, thus turning Ottawa into a theatre-at-large.

There will be no adjudications but "animateurs" will be present — knowledgeable theatre amateurs invited to lead discussions of the productions in workship situations.

Three Centuries' Chamber Music At Sunday Recital

Music of the 18th, 19th and 20th centuries is contained in the chamber concert program to be given Sunday, 3:30 p.m., at the Greater Victoria Art Gallery.

This is another in a series of gallery chamber concerts given throughout the season by the Ars Nova Ensemble of Victoria.

Sunday's program will consist of a work for clarinet, violin and piano by a contemporary Danish composer, a Mozart Duo for violin and viola, Five Melodies for violin and piano by Prokofiev, and Schumann's Fairy Tales (for clarinet, viola and piano).

MUSIC OF FAURE, POULENC

Music at the University of Victoria invades the campus gymnasium Monday in its need for large auditorium facilities.

The concert being presented by the university chorus and orchestra, under the direction of George Corwin, is far from being in the intimate or chamber style of programs presented in the MacLaurin auditorium.

Music of two French composers makes up the program, Gabriel Faure's Requiem and Gloria by Francis Poulenc.

The university chorus is a "town and gown" organization made up this year of approximately 100 singers from the university community and 70 from Greater Victoria. Approximately 35 student and faculty musicians form the orchestra, with another 25 non-campus players.

Soloists appearing with the ensembles are Audrey Farnell, well-known Canadian soprano from Vancouver, and baritone Charles Dorrington, a newcomer to this area.

Miss Farrell has appeared as soloist with the Vancouver Symphony, the International Festival under the direction of William Steinberg and Charles Munch (singing the Poulenc Gloria with the latter), the Bach Choir and in CBC recitals.

Last Sunday, singing the role of Aeneas in the Amity Singers' production of the Purcell opera, Dorrington revealed a voice of fine quality and range.

Proceeds from the single performance Monday will go to the Taylor Scholarship Fund for University of Victoria music students. The program begins at 8:30 p.m. Tickets will be available at the door.

MOVIE NOTES

'Funny Boy' Role Next For Barbra

By A. H. WEILER

NEW YORK — If you thought Barbra Streisand was the greatest star by far in "Funny Girl," wait till you see her as "Funny Boy." Miss Streisand is set to star in the title role of "Yentle the Yeshiva Boy," the movie version of Isaac Bashevis Singer's short story that was originally published in the 1964 collection called "Short Friday."

The film will go out under the banner of First Artists Productions Company, in which Miss Streisand is a partner with Paul Newman, Sidney Poitier and Steve McQueen. The producer is Valentine Sherry, the director Ivan Passer. Singer — in his first movie stint — will collaborate with Passer on the script.

"Yentle the Yeshiva Boy," which now bears the tentative title of "Masquerade," is actually about a young girl living in a Polish community around the turn of the century. She is taught Jewish religious scriptures behind closed doors, at a time when such pursuits were forbidden by Polish law. Yentle, a liberated type, cuts her hair and decides to enter a Yeshiva as a male rabbinical student. Naturally, she falls in love with a boy in her class and various complications develop.

Passer, the Czech director who is currently guiding

STREISAND

George Segal, Paula Prentiss and Karne Black through their Manhattan spaces in "Scraping Bottom," hopes to start things rolling on "Yentle" this summer in Yugoslavia.

Franco Zeffirelli never gets tired of brushing up his Shakespeare. The Italian director, who broke a few taboos — not to mention boxoffice records — with his lovely version of "Romeo and Juliet," will next make a cinematic ado about "Much Ado About Nothing." First, of course, he has to finish "Brother Sun, Sister Moon," his treatment of the life and times of St. Francis of Assisi, which is now before the cameras.

"Romeo and Juliet" was not Zeffirelli's initial encounter with the Bard. His movie edition of "The Taming of the Shrew," featuring those bombastic Burtons, is fondly remembered by many and Zeffirelli also directed a memorable stage version of "Much Ado About Nothing" for London's National Theatre in 1965. The stars of that production were Maggie Smith and Albert Finney, but there will be no British stars in the film version.

According to a spokesman for Zeffirelli, the Italian director feels that American and Italian actors would be more suitable. English performers, he maintains, "would take Shakespeare, even in a comedy, much more seriously." But, of course! He'd be sure to get dazzling results with somebody like Goldie Hawn and Marcello Mastrioanni.

GLOOM envelopes the Shoemaker (Robert Holliston) and his wife (Bronwen Palfrey) as they contemplate their last piece of leather. The scene is from Bastion Theatre's children's musical, The Shoemaker and the Elves, which began four successive Saturday matinees at Newcombe Auditorium today. Directed by Judy Radu with Peter Williams as musical director, the production starts at 2 p.m. April 3, 10 and 17.

'This Magical World'

TORONTO — Don Scardino walked on stage for the first time at age 14. But he'd been wanting to act since he was six.

Now 23, he's an acting veteran and little old ladies still accost him on the street to inquire after the health of his fictional TV family from soap-opera days.

He made his film debut last year in the title role of the Canadian-made movie, Homer, and now he's in Rip-off, the $312,000 second feature of Don Shebib, Canadian film award winner.

In Rip-off he portrays a 19-year-old who plays the drums badly, a youth with million-dollar dreams that get washed away in the high tide of growing up.

When he saw his first New York stage show he was six. His parents, both New York jazz musicians, took him because the girl from the apartment downstairs was in it. He says:

"Suddnely I made this connection: that ordinary people could go out on stage and do that. I'd had puppets and I was always putting on shows. I was off in a dream world most of the time as a kid. But from then on, I wanted to be an actor."

He took guitar lessons and

His first part was as character actor Hans Conreid's son in a stock production of Critic's Choice.

"I loved it," he says. "When I had to go back to school I cried and cried. Because I had stepped into this whole magical world. I just couldn't fit in anymore. I just couldn't go back to being a normal kid again."

From there, he went to TV commercials, a part as Puck in a Washington, D.C., production of A Midsummer Night's Dream, Broadway parts — and the mid-afternoon suds circuit. For two years he was John Fletcher in The Guiding Light, a U.S. afternoon soap opera.

Some New Young Artists on Scene

Looking at Art

... With Gordon Rice

As a final column from this reviewer (who'll soon be moving to another area of B.C.) it's only fitting to pay attention to some of the younger artists of the area. So I'd like to say something about the Uvic student print show even though it closes today at the Print Gallery.

Some of the printmakers and drawing students are making their first appearance here. There's a lot of serious work, and you naturally hope it'll continue, and flourish.

Jan Vriesen's work we've seen before . . . his big print "He" is pretty solid, with a clear sense of color, and big nicely-worked shapes which move around decisively. The same thing could be said of his large untitled collage. It will be interesting to see what happens to this artist's work when he gets off on his own.

There's some very choice miniature work in this show, tiny etchings by Linda Lou Brown, Rosemary Flynn, Katherine Jennings. At the risk of offending the "Fem-Lib" enthusiasts, one could speak (heedlessly) of the apparent feminine quality of these prints. The stuff is delicate (rather than "weak"), extremely sensitive, and it heads directly into the realm of fantasy.

●

And in some of the larger pictures of these artists, like Linda Lou Brown's "Heart Forest," you can't help but think of storybook illustrations. Yet here there's a concentration on something far more personal, suggestive, and poetic.

Chris Doman seems to employ a form-building, space-dividing technique much like Don Harvey's, uses it very well, and seems to be pushing on to a strong individual grasp of shape-and-color.

The picture is one of the few in the show that has a strong three-dimensional structure, playing surface relationships against depth relationships. It could be compared with cubist and "futurist" works, the kind of painting that was coming on strong in Italy and France in the early part of the century. It would probably interest the artist to see good reproductions of paintings by Boccioni and Severini.

Peter Eyles' "Gull Drawings" show a determined effort, it seems, to strike out on to some new path, something fresh, and yet universal too. That's a bit abstract, but if you could see his series of seagulls, the point might be clearer. There are even overtones of coast Indian art here, in his attempts to capture a sense of motion within the highly static bird-forms.

His drawings have a considerable appeal in spite of their awkwardness, and you suspect the reason he's not as polished as some of the artists here is that he's ultimately less imitative.

Arthur Rabin seems to be pursuing some very dedicated drawing studies; especially nice is the degree of concentration in his larger drawing of rock-like shapes. You feel he's not satisfied with an "easy," or oversimplified kind of form (the bane of most abstract work) and has a searching eye for the subtle variations and fluctuations of natural shapes.

Not Much Help

TORONTO (CP) — Only 3.4 per cent of the 296,000 students who entered the summer labor force in 1969 found jobs through employment agencies, an Ontario labor department study indicates. The study says half the students found jobs through personal or family contacts and 36 per cent by direct application to employers.

OSCAR TIP?

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The Directors Guild of America has chosen Franklin Schaffner as best director of 1970 for his work on Patton.

The guild's award, which generally coincides with the Oscar, was announced at banquets held in Hollywood and New York.

Film Board Lifted By Tandem Leaders

By CAROL PASCOE

MONTREAL — One year ago Canada's National Film board was at perhaps the lowest ebb of its 31-year history.

The creative staff, its confidence eroded, felt its future and its art threatened by a government-imposed austerity budget. Morale took a nose-dive and the cohesiveness which characterized earlier board efforts was on the verge of crumbling.

Today, however, there is renewed spirit in the board's Montreal office, largely due to two new leaders whose presence seems to have the exhilarating effect of a salt-sea breeze.

By their own admission, Commissioner Sydney Newman and Assistant Commissioner Andre Lamy are thrilled to be at the NFB.

Both arrived last August, Newman from an advisory job with the Canadian Radio-Television Commission and Lamy from what his colleague calls the "jungle of the private world"—an executive position with Onyx Films Inc.

Outwardly, they are a study in contrasts. Newman, 53, his propensity for plaid suits and bow ties evident in a series of photographs taken throughout the years, is direct and outspoken.

Before accepting the jobs, a primary concern for each was what it would be like to work with the other. Newman is in charge of long-range planning and government liaison. Lamy has responsibility for day-to-day operation of the film board.

"We talked for four or five hours one day," Newman recalled in an interview in his office. "We knew each other's background by then, but it was a question of whether we were sympathetic to the same things.

"We had to find out if we had the same attitude toward creative people, did we like them in the same way, and would we be too punitive or harsh on their sins.

Both are still in the discovery stage of their jobs, although Newman worked for the NFB as an executive producer from 1941 to 1952.

Their first three months were taken up with viewing 240 films, six or seven each day. It was more than an endurance test, said Lamy. They were also looking for quality and cost.

It is Mr. Lamy's job to keep an eye on NFB purse strings, and as Newman said: "He is so profit and efficiency-conscious that he brings a needed note to the board."

One priority is to make films with more mass appeal — what Mr. Newman calls "bread-and-butter stuff."

●

But what if this doesn't sit too well with film-makers who are aiming for sophisticated, discerning audiences?

"If necessary," said Newman, "we'll hit them over the head. Critical success (the NFB wins some 75 awards annually in international festivals) very often doesn't have much to do with popular success."

Lamy's approach is more subtle.

"We set guidelines for the film-makers. Creative people can be very flexible, but they're not flexible if you're stupid with them.

"We must bridge the gap between distribution and production. Why, people here used to make three-hour films without any possibility of ever marketing them."

There'll be no more of that around the NFB. Distribution methods are being closely examined and techniques of giving films more public exposure are being explored.

As a former head of drama for CBC (1954-58) and BBC (1963-68), Newman is probably more television-than film-oriented, so it's natural he would look first to the electronic media.

●

At the moment, relatively few of the 200 films produced annually by the film board ever appear on English-language television. But at Radio-Canada, the CBC's French network, NFB films are used effectively and often.

The difference is easily explained, said Lamy. Because both Radio-Canada and the board are Montreal-based, they are "like a family." Staffers frequent the same haunts, attend the same parties.

Meanwhile, the CBC in Ottawa and Toronto is busy fighting off the overpowering influence of U.S. programming.

But Newman promised a "revolutionary" announcement soon concerning television exposure, and it seems likely that Canadians will be seeing many more NFB films with a more "gutsy, grass-roots feel" to them.

The country has to see what's being done with the board's $11 million budget, insisted Newman.

The board gets "free heat, light and buildings," makes about $3 million a year from film sales and distribution and does another $3 million business in films commissioned by various government agencies.

One film board-inspired project has such exciting implications for the future that it "humbles" Newman.

Called Challenge for Change, the idea is about two years old and was described by the commissioner as "argument without confrontation."

The theory is simple. Take half-inch video tape — the cheapest, smallest tape available — find a group of people and let them make a film about what is bothering them. It could be local government, poverty, sex education, conservation or just about anything people like to talk about.

For example, several Quebec City hippies were asked to record their views on religion and God. The resulting film was shown to seminary students who in turn made a film of their reactions to the hippies' ideas. The seminary film was then played back to the young dropouts.

The idea has application to cable television companies, of which there are more than 300 in Canada. The NFB hopes to "sow the seeds" of Challenge for Change — to convince cable firms to try making the films themselves.

SURPRISE END FOR CRUISE

SEATTLE (AP) — A ship returning from a midnight cruise sponsored by the Shoreline Junior Chamber of Commerce, was met at the pier by 50 Seattle police officers early Friday. They issued citations to 175 passengers for frequenting a place where gambling and illegal liquor sales were conducted.

Police said two women aboard the ship, The Virginia V, were booked for indecent exposure and two men on suspicion of gambling.

TALL SUCCESS is actress Sally Kellerman, 5-10½, who won Oscar nomination for best supporting actress as Hot Lips Houlihan in MASH, and currently has a starring role in "Labyrinth" now being filmed in Hollywood.

It's 'Lord Olivier' Now

The 63-year-old actor was nominated to the peerage a year ago by the Queen. He is the first actor ever named.

Olivier wanted to assume the same title as a late uncle who was a governor of Jamaica and secretary for India. The previous Lord Olivier never had a son to carry on the title.

Sir Anthony Gardner, garter king of arms, who controls what title new peers take, wanted Olivier to add a place name to his title, such as Lord Olivier of Brighton, the seaside resort where the actor lives.

But Olivier insisted on the name he chose, with the approval of the daughters of the late lord.

On Stage Next Week

For young audiences Bastion Theatre will repeat its children's musical, The Shoemaker and the Elves, which opened this afternoon at Newcombe Auditorium, on Saturday, April 3, 10 and 17. Time is 2 p.m.

The Ars Nova Ensemble, will be heard in quartet numbers in a Sunday recital, 3:30 p.m., at Victoria Art Gallery, 1040 Moss Street.

Dr. George Corwin conducts a concert by the University of Victoria Chorus and Orchestra, Monday at 8:30 p.m. in Uvic gymnasium.

Thursday, Friday, Saturday, McPherson Playhouse, University of Victoria presents Justice Not Revenge. Curtain time, 8 p.m. Matinee Saturday, 2 p.m.

The Peninsula Concert Orchestra conducted by Dorothy Evans, will give a pop concert Thursday, 8 p.m. at Claremont Senior Secondary School. Assisting will be the Skylarks, vocal ensemble directed by Ronnie Frey.

At Craigdarroch Castle, Friday at 8 p.m., Trio Victoria will present another in their series of Beethoven chamber concerts.

Doctor Punished

LONDON (Reuter) — A London Surgeon was found guilty of serious professional misconduct in soliciting abortion patients through taxi drivers who collected foreign girls from London's Heathrow Airport. Dr. Derek Segall, 43, was ordered to be struck off the medical register by a medical council disciplinary committee here.

SIDNEY MUSEUM ESTABLISHED

One Contribution Started All

By DOREEN HUNTER

An offer of 2,000 items of historical interest has spurred Sidney in establishing its own museum.

Mrs. Joseph John, 10675 Blue Heron Road made the offer and Sidney council offered the old Customs Building at the foot of Beacon Avenue as the site.

Earlier, Mrs. John wrote to council suggesting the initiation of a museum of historical artifacts and objects of this area as a memorial of the centenary of B.C. She offered to them as a nucleus her own collection which includes up to 2,000 items of historical interest.

INDIAN ARTIFACTS

The red-brick Customs Building was recently purchased by the town from the federal government for $30,000.

Mrs. John has gathered over the past 50 years an important selection of Indian artifacts from this region. Many were uncovered during building of their home on the point of land they named Toketie Point. It is the Indian word for "pretty." It was originally the site of the first Brackman-Ker grist-mill.

The large Indian collection has been allotted a catalogue number by the Provincial Museum. It includes exquisitely-carved agate chisels; paint-stones, their level surfaces indented by human hand to form small paint-pots; and a post-European wooden mold in which Indians formed their own leaden facsimile of the fishing-lure. Notable for design is a tiny rock bead, finely-decorated with the carved print of a duck's foot.

The John family originally came from Glamorganshire, Wales. They first settled in the United States. The cry of gold was heard on the Fraser River so Richard sailed from California on the "Sierra Nevada" and arrived in Victoria, July, 1858.

PANNED FOR GOLD

He panned for gold on the Fraser and at Barkerville for 10 years. Eventually, his wife and five children arrived and they purchased 600 acres in North Saanich, naming their farm "Glamorgan," part of which is now the Sandown race track.

Handed down over four generations of the John family are photographs, manuscripts, rural and household possessions.

May John, a long-standing member of the B.C. Museum Association, has added to the collection other items of historical interest pertaining to the early settlement of the Saanich Peninsula.

ELECTIONS HELD

John Kyte, Provincial Museum advisor, who recently viewed the museum site, said a local group should collect and preserve local history, and to display it for the information and enjoyment of the public.

The formation of the Sidney and North Saanich Historical Society saw 24 persons attending the first meeting. Elected to the executive were: president, Mrs. Jack Bosher, a member of the Simister family of Sidney; vice-president, Miss Evelyn Moses, whose family has been in the district since the early 1860s; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. J. Sinclair; and recording secretary, Mrs. Ray Joy.

Four trustees are Mrs. J. John, Mrs. M. Smith, a member of the pioneer Brethour family, Mr. J. C. Gooding and Mrs. Ray Joy.

Meetings will be held on the last Thursday of every month in the Sidney Town Hall. New members are welcome, as well as items of historical interest.

Atlantic 71

Only one airline flies direct (including non-stops) from Vancouver to London every day this summer.

And that's Air Canada's famous Western Arrow.

Sure, other airlines can find a way to get you there. Eventually. After a stop-over in Amsterdam, a transfer hassle, waiting around. And all this for an extra $26.

So seeing how London is where you wanted to be in the first place, doesn't flying there with us, for less make sense?

We're convenient.

But we want to be more than that. So?

Atlantic 71!

An all out effort from all of us at Air Canada to make your flight exceptional. In comfort, Care. Convenience.

VICTORIA — LONDON
RETURN
29-45 day Economy Excursion return fare. April 1/May 31. Subject to Government approval.

Atlantic 71. You. And your travel agent.

From now on, he's an Atlantic 71 Information Centre. A goldmine of information and friendly tips. Ask him for our special tours, brochures and routings. And look for the Atlantic 71 symbol in his window.

We've eliminated the "where do I check in?" question.

Just look for the arrows identifying the Atlantic 71 check-in counter; you can't miss it. From there, our easily identified (and specially trained) Atlantic 71 people will smooth your way through tickets, baggage and boarding.

The people who'll look after you for Atlantic 71.

The tops. Because our most experienced people will fly Atlantic 71 this year. And by "experienced" we mean more than the way they mix martinis. It's little things like recognizing (and overcoming) a first-flighter's shyness, the pillow that appears just as you're nodding off, the hair-of-the-dog for the over-hung, the reassuring word to the grandmother returning home after 40 years. These girls know their business and their business is you. Look for them in their sassy new pant-suits and for the striking Atlantic 71 insignia.

Preboarding: women and children first!

If you're travelling with kids, just let us know in advance and we'll meet you and assist in settling you and your brood comfortably ahead of adult passengers. Same goes for elderly passengers, of course.

We speak your language.

There's always someone on board who speaks the language of the destination.

Here's where all the expertise of Atlantic 71's executive chef comes into play. He's travelled the world to select menus specially for this year, from hearty breakfasts to truly gourmet dinners. And a wine selection that would delight and surprise even the most discerning "grape-buff"

To sleep or not to sleep.

After dinner there's always something doing! Your stewardess will turn on a whole library of newspapers and magazines, for starters: Life, Look, Reader's Digest, Playboy, Punch, Actualité, Der Spiegel,

And writing materials, post-cards, stationery, games people like to play. Challenge your neighbour to cards, bridge, cribbage, checkers or chess! Mind you, if you'd rather snooze away your spare time — pillows and blankets coming up!

We'll keep the kids busy too.

European holidays are great fun for kids, but let's face it — 6 hours or more in a plane isn't always so. If eating "real neat" meals and drinking free soft drinks can't keep your youngster down — we'll turn on story-books, comics, games, and toys!

Maybe they can even meet the Captain, how's that? For babies, tuck them away in our safe 'n snug sky cots. For diapers, baby food, bottles, bibs and baby paraphernalia — just ask your stewardesses (it'll save you packing them and you can pick up what you need in Europe).

Atlantic 71 - fares that actually challenge charter.

Talking about kids (and you can work this out with your travel agent) — our new 29-45 day fares could possibly be cheaper than charter if you're flying with children under 12, and give you more freedom with departure times.

Atlantic 71 know how.

25 years of European experience have gone into the making of Atlantic 71 — that's how long we've been flying from more places in Canada to more places in Europe than any other airline. So we're bound to know more about the Europe you want to know — ask your travel agent about our tour packages!

To London, Glasgow, Shannon, Paris, Frankfurt, Vienna, Zurich, Copenhagen, Moscow, Brussels and Prague with great connections to anywhere else.

toothbrushes and paste, cologne, lotions, sewing kits, aspirin, you name it — and you'll get it. Pronto.

In 24 cities throughout Europe, you'll find our special Visitors Bureaux. Just look for the Atlantic 71 symbol. Use it as a rendezvous point. Headquarters. To hold overseas mail. For hotel accommodation. Theatre tickets. Advice on shops. To contact English-speaking doctors or dentists. We're always there to help in any way we can.

Atlantic 71 in a nutshell.

It is a great new way to enjoy your transatlantic flight as much as your holiday in Europe! Because we think your holiday should begin when you get on your plane — not when you get off in Europe. So we've mentioned a few new Atlantic 71 features and there's more coming. Watch this space.

For Lovers of the Weird and Lonely: Some Choice Spots

Following is the second in a series of stories on places in the world where mystery has survived the bulldozers of modern man's dull and heavy-handed outlook.

By ERIC NEWBY
And DIANA PETRY
The London Observer

Chysauster, Cornwall, three miles north of Penzance:

Prehistoric village once used by methodists as a preaching ground. The excavated village lies along the side of a quiet valley and consists of a street of thickly walled stone houses, each with courtyards and round and long rooms; there is a ruined subterranean fougou — a concealed refuge or hiding place — and extensive field systems. In spite of certain amount of tidiness produced by the ministry of works, an atmosphere of mystery still hangs over the place. A mile to the east is Castle-an-Dinas, an iron age fort on the summit of an 800-foot-high hill, from whose stone ramparts a folly sprouts. From it here are tremendous views over the peninsula.

Holy Island, Northumberland, off the Northumbrian coast at Beal:

Reached from there by a three-mile sandy causeway accessible for several hours either side of low tide.

An old and sacred place, with an air of mystery which even the more modern village and the still more modern summer visitors fail to dispel. St. Aidan came here in the Seventh Century; and later St. Cuthbert. Remains of his humble chapel can still be seen. The site was destroyed by the invading Danes and fell into disuse until, in the 11th Century, a Benedictine monastery was built there, and remained occupied until the dissolution, when the priory buildings were taken over as military storehouses. The remains, in their lonely setting by the sea, are wonderfully impressive. The castle, built in the early 16th Century on rocks overlooking the miniature harbor, was restored in 1902 by Sir Edward Lutyens.

Avebury, Wiltshire, on the main road from Swindon to Devizes:

Huge, 4,000-year-old earthwork enclosing what remains of the largest stone circle in Europe — many of the great unworked blocks weighing 40 tons and more, were broken up and used to build village houses (the scissors of a 14th-Century barber on whom one of them fell, are in the museum). From the south gate a mile-long avenue leads away to a now invisible sanctuary at Overton Hill. This whole area is a great concentration of prehistoric civilization: Settlements, camps, barrows, standing stones, dikes and ditches, earthworks and circles. The West Kennet long barrow is the largest chambered tomb in Britain. The origins of nearby Silbury Hill, 130-foot-high conical, grassy, man-made mound, have so far eluded excavators.

The Dukeries, Nottinghamshire:

Seven square miles south of Worksop, which include part of Sherwood Forest; so-called because of the concentration of aristocratic estates.

Of those remaining, Welbeck, home of the dukes of Portland, has fantastic underground chambers and banqueting halls, connected by tunnels and rail tracks. You can't get into it, but the house can be glimpsed from the road. What you can do is to visit Thoresby Hall, last of the great local houses to have been continuously occupied. Clumber has one; it was demolished by its owner, the eighth Duke of Newcastle, in 1938, because of ruinous taxation. The lime avenue is one of the finest to be seen anywhere. All that remains of the once-great Sherwood Forest is the tract between the dukeries and Nottingham.

Twenty-foot-high stone at the eastern end, 12-foot turf to the west. Finally abandoned 383 AD. One of the real wonders of the world. If it has been built anywhere but in one of the wettest parts of a wet island, tourists would swarm over it. Best visited in winter and on foot if you want to realize what it meant to build it (the men of three legions dug two million cubic yards of subsoil, mostly rock, from the forward ditch and put a similar amount into the wall itself), and what it meant to the auxiliaries who manned its 17 forts, 80 milecastles and the turrets between them — the Tungrians, Asturians, Dalmatians, Dacians, Moors, Frisiavonians, Syrian Hamians, Aquitanians, Cugernians and Frisians among others, with their rather un-British religions, who looked out from it towards Caledonia, fed up and far from home.

A good introduction is to walk the 18 miles or so westwards from Brunton turret, one of the best preserved of all, on the left bank of the North Tyne, past Chesters, the great fort on the other bank, where there is a very chilly bath-house down by the river, and from there to Greenhead. The views both north and south are magnificent and unspoiled.

Thames Estuary marshes, Kent:

Utterly lonely and weird. To see them, walk from Gravesend to Allhallows along the sea wall — about 16 miles.

At first through a really creepy area littered with remains of Victorian forts (designed by Gordon), and on Coalhouse Point opposite, disused firing ranges, strange jetties, beacons, the hulks of wooden ships in the mud, millions of plastic bottles on the shore, and places to which "unidentified objects" were brought to be identified and exploded in the last war. On the other side of the river are the East Tilbury and Mucking marshes, off which powder hulks used to be moored and, out in the channel when the tide is right, a continuous procession of ships passes by, including the sewage disposal vessels called Bovril boats — bound for the black deep, or on their way back empty. Then, back on the Kent shore, the cooling marshes stretch away mile after mile inland to the right, full of horses, cattle, sheep, which sometimes look as if they had been caught in the fall-out from Shellhaven over the river. London seems a million miles away.

Roman fort of Mediobogdum, built on a steep escarpment 800 feet above the River Esk, with thick earthen ramparts surmounted by stone walls, and a gateway in each side. Outside there are the remains of a bathhouse, and to the northeast a big parade ground. It overlooks some of the grandest mountain scenery to be found anywhere.

BUT THEY STILL MAKE $575 MILLION

One-Armed Bandits Robbed Back

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — Nevada's "one-armed bandits" are being robbed of more than $10 million a year, casino operators complained this week.

Representative of Las Vegas and Reno gambling spas told a legislative committee some slot machine cheaters take $50,000 annually and a 10-member California gang cleared more than $1 million in a year.

Their tools include hairspray, drills, wires, coins on a string, magnets, slugs, plastic jams, foreign coins, key-making devices — at least 50 methods in all.

"There are more ways to cheat a slot machine than tie a knot," lamented Les Kofoed, executive director of the Nevada Gaming Association.

The gambling industry officials testified before the assembly judiciary committee in support of a bill which would allow casino operators to question and detain suspected cheaters without being held liable for suit.

●

Wayne Martin, an agent for casinos in Las Vegas and Reno, said the 10 members of a California gang fly regularly into Nevada in their own planes. He said they cleared more than $1 million in one year by cheating slot machines.

Several "schools" are now operating which show a person how to cheat, including an on-the-spot demonstration, Martin said. The student then kicks back 20 per cent of his take.

He said a cheater with a fine drill up his sleeve can put a pinpoint hole through the side of a slot machine in 60 seconds.

The driller then leaves, Martin said, and an accomplice comes in, inserts a wire through the hole and uses it to make coins drop down the pay tube.

In one Las Vegas casino, he said, tiny holes drilled in the sides of four slot machines allowed cheaters to "win" $14,000.

"It's nothing for a good slot machine cheater to go into five or six hotels and take $100 from each and not be caught," said Martin. He said 800 to 900 cheaters work regular routes around the state.

"I've talked to hundreds of slot machine cheaters . . . and they laugh . . . they say this is the best thing going in the state," Martin said.

He said legislation is necessary because casinos are "scared to death" now of stopping and questioning a potential cheater. Martin said the bill would be a "good start" toward stopping the cheating.

Kofoed explained a couple of complicated methods of cleaning out a slot machine — the hairspray caper and the key-making technique.

He said cheaters use hairspray on the lock of the machine and then complain it is malfunctioning. A repair man opens the slot machine and checks it. When he closes it, the sprayed lock doesn't work properly, allowing the cheater to open it, take the money inside and leave.

Kofoed said other cheaters now make a mold of the lock, go out to their cars where they have key-making equipment, fashion the key and return to the casino to rifle the slot machine.

P&O's 1971-72 winter cruises.

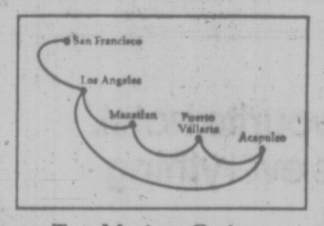
Winter 1970-71. Remember?

Remember this winter? Rain. Cold. Snow. Watery eyes. Sniffles. Greasy-looking skies. A week or two of warm weather would have done wonders for you then. What if you could have afforded it, and didn't know?

Acapulco, The Panama Canal, The Caribbean.

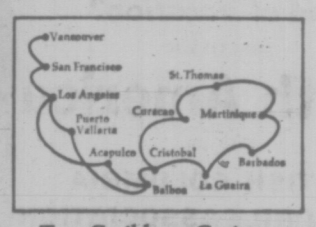
Next winter, P&O will be making two cruises to Acapulco, Mazatlan, and Puerto Vallarta, and two more cruises on through the Panama Canal to St. Thomas, Barbados, Curacao and other ports of the Caribbean. There'll be guaranteed sunshine, tropical scenery unlike anything you'll ever see at home, and a lively shipboard social life. The Mexican Cruises are as short as a week, the Caribbean Cruises as long as four. A typical First Class cabin on our Mexican Cruise would cost $ 850 per person. To the Caribbean $1770. All things considered, you probably couldn't choose a better way of keeping last winter from happening to you again.



Two Mexican Cruises.
From US$385 to US$1560.

A week of sunshine aboard S.S. Oriana. First, fly to San Francisco. Oriana sails November 28 and again on December 10. South via Los Angeles to Mazatlan, Puerto Vallarta, and Acapulco.

Return up the West Coast. Fly home from San Francisco, or, on December 10 cruise, sail to Vancouver.



Two Caribbean Cruises.
From US$ 820 to US$ 3340.

S.S. Oriana sails from Vancouver on December 21 and January 20 for two cruises on through the Panama Canal into the Caribbean. The first cruise calls at Barbados, Martinique, St. Thomas, and Curacao. Or, on the second, see Grenada, Barbados, St. Thomas and La Guaira.

Canadians to Study New Zealand Maoris

By J. C. GRAHAM

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP) — A 12-man Canadian mission headed by Jean Chretien, minister of Indian affairs and northern development, is to visit New Zealand soon to study conditions of New Zealand's native people, the Maoris.

The findings of the visitors will be of considerable interest in New Zealand, quite apart from any application they may have to Canadian problems.

The Canadians are due March 29 for a three-day stay as guests of the New Zealand government. Social and economic relationships of the Maoris are stated to be the major study planned.

The New Zealand Maoris are of the brown-skinned Polynesian race and are closely related to the people of many South Pacific island groups. In fact Pacific islanders are also settling in New Zealand in substantial numbers, so that Auckland, with its Maori and island population, is today often called the largest city of Polynesia.

This claim is based on the fact that the 80,000 or so Polynesians in the city's 600,000 population are more numerous than in any other city, including Honolulu.

The total Maori population today is about 230,000 in a New Zealand population of 2,830,000. At the beginning of the present century the once numerous Maori race had dwindled to about 40,000, wasted away by intertribal wars with European weapons, and by introduced European diseases.

But the race has made a great resurgence and today is increasing faster than the white population.

Once rural dwellers, the Maoris have for a good many years been moving to the cities. None live in reservations or restricted areas.

In fact, Maoris live side by side with the white population, on a basis of equality in law, and are to be found in all housing areas. There has been a tendency for them to congregate in certain parts of cities, but any tendency to the development of ghettos is resisted by both the central and local governments.

SPECIAL LAWS FEW

Few laws remain distinguishing between Maoris and the rest of the population. One of the major distinctions still outstanding is in the maintenance of a separate roll for Maoris at elections and the election of four Maori members to Parliament. This discrimination is maintained at the wish of the Maoris and they are under pressure to agree to its abolition.

In some areas where special curriculum is considered desirable, Maori schools still exist, but their number is rapidly declining. There are also some separate land laws to cater for what remains of the Maori system of land tenure.

Otherwise most distinctions between the races have been abolished and race relations in New Zealand are often cited as among the most successful examples anywhere of integration between peoples of different background.

Yet there has developed in the last few years quite an active protest movement which proclaims Maori grievances.

Some of the grievances are real enough. Although Maoris have risen to be cabinet ministers, bishops, university professors and other prominent members of the community, the proportion in the professions and in skilled trades is still much lower than for the white population.

The objectors are fighting for wider use of the Maori language, and its wider adoption as a regular subject in schools. Virtually all Maoris speak English, but retention of Maori is emphasized as part of a campaign to prevent the Maori culture from being submerged.

Now's the Time to Dig In Against Root-Worms, Earwigs

By JACK BEASTALL

Time need not hang heavy while we wait for the soil to warm up for seed sowing. There are many gadgets we can make that will speed work, and protect our crops, later in the season.

Last year the depredations of the cabbage root-worm brought numerous complaints from home gardeners. Unfortunately it is too late to act when the roots have already been devoured.

Control of this pest is not difficult. Instinct guides it to lay eggs in the soil against any plant having the smell of cabbage. It we can cover the soil around the plants there will be no egg laying.

●

A simple home made soil cover that was recommended in books written back in 1870 was called a "Cabbage mat." Many a winter evening have I spent fashioning a similar device from discarded pieces of asphalt roofing.

As illustrated above, it is just a square about eight inches or so, with a one-inch hole in the centre and a slit from one edge into the hole to facilitate placing around the cabbate stem.

The space between the stem and the hole is stuffed with crumpled soft plastic such as pieces of bread wrappers; anything that will fill the hole without intervering with the expansion of the cabbage stem can be used as a filler.

Today, tarpaper and black plastic film are sometimes used, but both have to be weighted with soil to hold them in place. When roofing is used the mats last for years, have sufficient weight to stay in place, and can be easily lifted to get water underneath while the plants are young.

Tips For The Home Gardener

A job we are getting along with now is the tying of the bramble fruits, the blackberries, boysems, logans, raspberries and their relations.

●

For many years my choice of tie has been discarded insulated electrical wire. It is easy to use, doesn't cut the canes, and is cheap because a tangled mass is lying in a corner of most basements.

Cut the wire into lengths to suit your purpose; six inches for tying brambles to trellis wires, nine inches or so for climbing roses on a wooden trellis. Bend each piece like a hairpin as shown at A in the illustration.

Shape a piece of fairly heavy iron wire and hook the ends as shown at B, place 30 or 40 ties over the loop, and hang it from your belt while working. Apply in the manner shown at C.

When removing the old canes it is only necessary to untwist one end of the tie, leaving the other end attached to the trellis wire. The ties will slide easily into position for attaching the new canes.

Earwigs can do considerable damage to plants, especially when the plants are young and tender and baby earwigs are trying to satisfy voracious appetites.

Illustrated above are two types of earwig traps I have been making for half a century. At 1 is shown a roll of corrugated cardboard tied with string. It is a wonderful way of using old cartons and an effective way of trapping earwigs.

After feeding all night, the earwig seeks a warm hole as dawn approaches, and is most grateful to gardeners who scatter a few of these rolls on the ground or on top of a stake amongst the foliage of the plants they enjoy.

Each morning, gather the traps and drop them into a hot fire; you will lessen the earwig population by several hundreds a week.

A more durable earwig trap is shown at 2. This one is made from old cedar shingles, although the thin strips from fruit crates can be used providing one end of the trap is closed. Size can be suited to the shingles or wood available.

If you are using old shingles, split a few lengthwise to give strips about one inche wide. Lay a full shingle on the bench and tack a strip every two inches as shown in drawing 3.

●

With a njmber of these made up, lay one on top of another and nail together. You can use two, three or four layers as you wish. Cover the top with a plain shingle and the finished job should look like the trap shown at 2.

Disposing of the catch is not quite so easy as with the cardboard traps. The earwigs have to be dislodged and trodden on, or dumped into a pail of boiling water with a film of kerosene on top. Boiling water alone will do if you can keep it boiling.

Holding the trap over the pail and striking with a hammer or heavy stick will dislodge the sleepers, and you will be surprised at the number these traps will attract.

WORK FOR WEEK

Cuttings can be taken now from old plants of fuchsias and germaniums started into growth two weeks ago. Root in pots indoors, or greenhouse or sunporch.

Rose pruning at end of month can be finished if garden is near salt water or usually free of hard frosts after this date.

A few gladioli can be planted if soil is sandy and whole garden is well drained. Otherwise the better colors will rot in wet soil and fail to grow, leaving only hardier varieties.

Small flowered gladiolus species and hybrids of G. primulinus are dainty and effective plants for summer bloom in beds near a patio. Also Tigridia, the Mexican Shellflower, brilliant three-petalled flowers in succession all summer. Plant these now in sandy soils; for heavier soils, hold for another month.

If soil reasonably dry and well drained, sow persnips, early peas, broad beans, a few lettuce and spinach. Hold all other kinds until soil is warm.

Coldframe sowings will be useful, if in sun.

New Look Taken At Tidal Power

HALIFAX (CP) — The possibility of harnessing the hydro-electric potential of Bay of Fundy tides was renewed Friday when the federal, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia governments agreed to reconsider the project.

George E. McInerney, chairman of the New Brunswick Electric Power Commission, said the federal government had agreed to a request from the two provinces to take another look at a feasibility study.

In addition, the Nova Scotia government introduced legislation to establish a tidal power corporation, with authority to undertake negotiations and studies to bring the project on the line.

A feasibility study, funded by the three governments, reported last spring that the project was not feasible because of the high interest rates prevailing at the time. Necessary installations would cost $700 million and take nine years to construct.

The hydro-electric potential of the bay, which has tidal action of up to 53 feet, has been estimated between 500,000 and five million kilowatts depending on the number of generating installations.

SEEN AS ALTERNATIVE

Mr. McInerney told the New Brunswick Legislature that he hoped a review would make tidal power "better understood as a possible alternative" to other generating resources in the Maritimes.

He said the feasibility study indicated a preference for development at Minas Basin in Nova Scotia, but detailed studies could change this and it might well be that a New Brunswick site would appear equally favorable.

"Whichever the case, we will certainly support a program most suitable to the overall good of the maritimes," Mr. McInerney said.

Premier Gerald Regan of Nova Scotia said the tidal power corporation would have a seven-member board of directors and capitalization of $10 million.

NOT YET FEASIBLE

Tidal power is not yet financially feasible, he said, but the corporation would work toward making it competitive and developing a project "by the end of this decade."

Mr. Regan has said before that his government was undertaking negotiations on the project with private interests. He said Friday that meetings had been held with members of the Rothschild family, who are involved in financing the huge Churchill Falls power development in Labrador.

Sonics Pay Price To Hold Haywood

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Basketball Association gave Seattle the rights to Spencer Haywood Friday but fined the SuperSonics $200,000.

"All litigation now pending in reference to the Haywood-Seattle SuperSonics case in federal court is to be immediately dismissed with prejudice.

"Seattle retains the rights to Spencer Haywood's playing services and he will not be subject to the 1971 college draft.

"In consideration of receiving those rights the NBA imposes the fine of $200,000 on the Seattle SuperSonics for violation of its constitution and bylaws in the Haywood case."

PROTESTS DISMISSED

Kennedy said the Sonics will participate in all rounds of the NBA's college draft next Monday and that "all protests filed by NBA teams in reference to games in which Haywood participated have been dismissed."

"With prejudice" is a legal term which means an issue cannot be brought up again in a court.

The Haywood controversy started when the former U.S. Olympic and University of Detroit star jumped from Denver Rockets of the American Basketball Association and signed a contract with Seattle last Dec. 28.

The NBA constitution and bylaws do not allow a club to sign a college player until his class has graduated and Haywood's class does not graduate until June, 1971.

Shuttle King Zips Past Dane in Semis

LONDON (CP) — Rudy Hartono and Muljadi, Indonesia's two great badminton stars, turned back European challengers Friday and will meet in the men's All-England final, the unofficial badminton championship of the world.

Hartono, champion for the last three years, demolished Klaus Kaagaar of Denmark 15-1, 15-4, in one of the shortest semi-finals on record. He won the first game in nine minutes and the second in 10.

Muljadi had a tougher struggle against Wolfgang Bachow, the West German who quarrelled with his national federation and came to England to compete at his own expense. The score was 15-8, 15-11.

The women's singles final will be all-Scandinavian, between Sweden's Eva Twedberg, 27, the 1968 champion, and Nini Berglund, a pretty 18-year-old from Copenhagen.

In the semi-finals, Miss Berglund defeated Lisbeth von Barnekow of Denmark 11-7, 7-11, 11-8, and Mrs. Twedberg ousted Noriko Tagako, the final Japanese hope, 6-11, 11-5, 11-5.

Japanese entries had won the women's title the last two years.

Oregon Ducks Defeat High School All-Stars

University of Oregon Ducks opened their record for a two-game soccer visit to Victoria when they nipped a Greater Victoria all-star high school side 3-0 in soggy and blustery conditions Friday at the University of Victoria.

On Thursday, the Ducks had dropped a 2-1 decision to the Uvic Vikings.

The high school representative side will leave Friday on a 24-day tour of Britain. Five matches are definitely scheduled and it is probable that Victoria boys will play one or two other games during their overseas jaunt.

IOC Tightens Amateur Code

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — A stringent new draft rule designed to tighten protection of the amateur code in Olympic Games was made public Friday by the International Olympic committee.

A key clause in the proposed new rule would bar from the Olympics any athlete who has "directly or indirectly allowed his name, his photograph or his sports performance to be used individually for advertising purposes."

The eligibility rule was approved by the nine-man executive board of the committee earlier this month. To become effective it must be approved by a two-thirds majority of the committee's 74 members, who are to vote by mail until April 15.

The issue was dramatized by IOC President Avery Brundage's demand that 10 top Alpine skiers, two of them Canadians, should be disqualified from the Sapporo Winter Games next year for taking part in a commercial camp at Mammoth Mountain, Calif.

The Canadians are Rod Hebron of Vancouver, who has retired, and Peter Duncan of Mont Tremblant.

A prime change proposed by the executive board envisages that to be eligible a competitor "must comply with his federations directives and those issued by the International Olympic Committee."

The code now in force requires athletes only to comply with their internatonal federation rules which sometimes are less rigid.

The International Ski Olympic Committee directives proposed to be part of the future eligibility rule were listed as follows:

—"He (the competitor must not have directly or indirectly allowed his name, his photograph of his sports performance to be used individually for advertising purposes.

—"He may not write or sign any publication or allow any to be signed on his behalf, nor may be appear on radio or television during the Olympic Games in which he is participating without the permission of his chef de mission. —"Any advertising resulting from any equipment contracts by national federations shall be strictly controlled by the international federations, and copies of such contracts shall be lodged with and approved by the International Olympic Committee."

An IOC secretariat spokesman here said that numerous national committees have already sent in their votes.

In a poll earlier this year, Brundage was reported to have failed to receive a majority backing from IOC members in his condemnation of the 10 Alpine skiers.

He has stated that if the IOC is satisfied that the Mammoth Mountain camp last summer was purely a commercial enterprise, the Alpine skiers who took part in it would be barred from Saporro. Federation president Marc Hodler says the 10 were merely giving paid elementary skiing lessons.

Storms Keep Spring Away

Spring weather will continue to elude the Victoria area this weekend, the weatherman said today, as the Island catches the backlash of storms hitting the U.S. coast.

Although the weather showed signs of breaking this week, "the map is definitely in a winter pattern again," the weather office said.

Stiff winds from the west are buffeting the coast from Victoria to northern California, bringing cloud and rain until at least the first of next week.

The outlook for Sunday is for rain, with low temperatures in the mid-30s and highs in the mid-40s.

FULL GRANT EXPECTED

Budget Cut Fears Dispelled by 'Y'

The YM-YWCA, agency that got the biggest chunk of Greater Victoria's Community Chest last year does not expect to have its budget cut this year, president Dr. Joyce Clearihue said this morning.

The YM-YWCA and the Boy Scouts became "controversial" areas in relation to the Community Chest last week when suggestions were made that perhaps the two agencies shouldn't receive heavy funding from the United Appeal campaign.

But Dr. Clearihue dispelled fears of a budget cut with an official statement this morning.

"Tuesday night," she said, "the executive of the Community Chest met the president and executive directors of all agencies.

"All agencies agreed to forward their budget requirements and needs for 1972 to the Community Chest by April 15. There is no communication to the Y at the present time that there is any cut indicated to any agency."

Net Loss For Year Nearly Tripled

One of the objections to Community Chest fund distribution is that the only agency in the city directly dealing with the poor, the St. Vincent de Paul Society, received only $6,500 from the United Appeal coffers.

The $95,769 the Y gets from the Community Chest accounts for more than half the organization's total income of $186,533. A cut could mean substantial impairment to some Y programs.

The annual financial statement of the Y indicates major expenditures for the physical education program, $35,770; administration, $75,578; and maintenance, $104,534.

Major sources of income other than the Community Chest were the mucnipalities, $23,751; and residence fees, $11,979.

The organization recorded a net loss for the year of $11,589. Projected loss for the period was $4,806.

Towboat Group Hits Breakwater

The Royal Victoria Yacht Club's plan for a breakwater in Cadboro Bay, already beset by opposition from beach residents and conservationists, was buffeted by an attack from yet another quarter Friday.

The breakwater would interfere with the protection for log booms in the bay, according to B.C. Towboat Owners' Association and the Greater Victoria Mill Operators' Association.

The two groups will make their fears known to the department of transport, which must rule on the yacht club's breakwater proposal.

Meanwhile, still more opposition is brewing. A new group calling itself the Oak Bay Beach Protection Association will meet Sunday at 7:30 p.m. at the Windsor Park Pavilion.

The group wants construction delayed until thorough studies can be carried out to determine whether a breakwater would damage beach environment.

The towboat and mill owners' opposition centres around a set of dolphins in the bay, where boats towing log booms tie up to ride out unexpected storms.

Capt. Robbie Robinson of Island Tug and Barge says the dolphins are the only shelter between Victoria and Saanichton.

"If a swell comes in, hits up against a breakwater and rolls back, we're going to get the inside of the booms damaged," Robinson said. "We're already getting the outside smashed."

'QUITE CRITICAL'

The president of the mill operators' association, Bill Hemmingsen, said "the area is very importnat to us and we would oppose any moving of the dolphins."

"Their position is quite critical. We suffer a great deal of damage already, and if they were moved we would be pushed further out into the wind."

He called the dolphins "a very important link in the chain of supply to the industry."

Oak Bay council has called a hearing on the breakwater proposal at the municipal hall April 19. The club is seeking approval to build a rock breakwater to provide winter mooring for members' boats.

HIGH-RISES, 'CRUMMY' LOTS

Council Destroying City, MLA Williams Charges

Victoria council is destroying the city "on a large scale" by allowing high-rise apartments in James Bay, Bob Williams (NDP — Vancouver East) told the legislature Friday.

Williams, who is a town planner, also criticized Chant for pemitting the legislative buildings to be surrounded by "ugly, crummy" parking lots.

"That is conjunction with the high-rises that the City of Victoria allows to be built is really destroying the quality of this city on a large scale," he said.

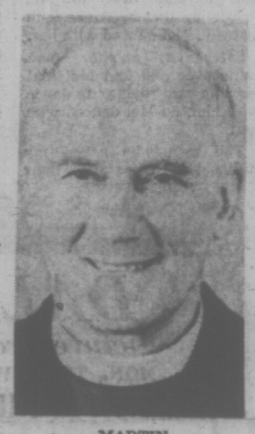
Williams agreed when Chant said the government was holding the lots for future development, but he told the minister he should construct underground parking facilities on the properties.

Williams said the problem with so many modern buildings is that they do nothing to humanize their surroundings. In the case of government buildings, he said, every effort should be taken to ensure that the public is not put off by stern, officious design.

He warned that city life in the United States has deteriorated partly because of the kind of architecture built in the name of renewal.

"I guess we just have to go through the process like the Americans. We always seem to make the mistakes the Americans have made, but we make then 10 years later."

Chant's estimates of $29,810,510 were approved at 4:15 p.m. after two hours of debate.



MARTIN
... here 11 years

Retired Bishop Dies at 81

The retired Anglican bishop of Saskatchwean died this morning in Victoria at the age of 81.

Born in London, England, Rev. Martin was educated at the University of Toronto and Wycliffe College.

He is survived by his widow Kathleen and two daughters, Mrs. Ernest H. Williams of Vancouver and Mrs. J. H. Clyne Harredence of Prince Albert, Sask. There are six grandchildren

Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Crisis Phone Centre Starts Up Next Month

A crisis phone centre to serve Capital Region residents will begin operation at 538 Yates early next month.

With 70 trained volunteers ranging in age from 19 to 65, the centre will be open 24 hours a day to assist people in distress.

Lorraine Wainwright, a spokesman for Need, the name of the group setting up the crisis centre, said typewriters and office furniture had been obtained through donations. Further donations and more volunteers are still needed, she said.

'PROVEN NEED'

Need will not apply for governmental assistance until the project gets running.

"We don't feel we can apply to any city agencies or the federal or provincial government until after we've proven the need for this kind of service exists," Miss Wainwright said.

The Need centre is modelled on the Now centre in Vancouver which during its first 18 months handled some 20,000 calls for help.

"They felt there was no single place where a person could phone and have someone to listen to them," said Miss Wainwright.

Volunteers received some training during an orientation session with University of Victoria psychologists. In small groups volunteers acted out the roles of caller and answerer.

The experience of phone centres in Toronto and Vancouver has been that most of the calls come from lonely people, a small percentage from people contemplating suicide, and some emergency calls from drug freakouts.

Park Officials Support Thetis Lake Transfer

Officials of the Thetis Lake Park Nature Sanctuary Association are not opposed to a suggestion made by Hugh Curtis, chairman of the Capital Regional Board, that the park should be placed under regional jurisdiction.

Transfer of the park to the capital regional district would put an end to the "quibbling" over park maintenance costs, a spokesman for the association said.

The city of Victoria, owner of the park, has refused to pay costs for the construction of new restrooms in the 1,108-acre park, situated about 15 miles from the city limits.

Curtis in a letter to Mayor Courtney Haddock said he would assist the city "in any reasonable and positive action" it may wish to take with respect to the park's transfer to the region.

He said the park "must be retained for the public" and under no circumstances should the park be "sold, subdiivded, or in any way removed from public use and enjoyment."

Stop Stalling Reid Plan Chamber Tells Council

Citizens and aldermen have procrastinated over harbor development and urban renewal long enough: the $25 million Reid waterfront project should proceed, Chamber of Commerce directors said Friday.

They passed a resolution introduced by vice-president Roy Denny and bolstered by amendments from president Philip Holmes to urge the mayor and council in strong terms to put Reid's plan to a vote. There were no dissenters.

Holmes noted the proposed project at the foot of Fort Street had never been put formally to the council, but "shoved under the table like so many things in council, not just this one."

Denny said everyone had argued about the proposal long enough, and that it was time to act before the price was driven beyond attainment or the source of capital driven away.

He observed common findings among the several reports on the property: that Ocean Cement property should be purchased by the city and made into a park, that free public access should be assured along the waterfront between the park and Johnson Street, that development should include residential property, and that the historic atmosphere should be retained.

SOON AS POSSIBLE

Ocean Cement property should be bought as quickly as possible and the council should do all in its power to urge an early start to the Reid project, which includes three circular high-rise towers, shops, marina and public promenades west of Wharf Street.

Denny insisted that most of the argument opposing Reid is based on ignorance, and that the alternative suggestion, of making the whole area consisting of just over two acres of property into parkland, would cost the taxpayers about $1 million and perpetual upkeep.

AN ANCHOR

Reg Hind said there was "a lot of emotionalism about the park concept." The area, to be of value to the population, needs "an anchor on the waterfront" such as the Reid concept would provide. "Parks alone are not enough to attract people to the waterfront," he said.

'Mockery' Being Made Of Lord's Day Act

City council and the attorney-general's department have been asked by Victoria Chamber of Commerce to enforce the Lord's Day Act respecting Sunday retail operations.

Current practices of some merchants are "making a mockery of the law," chamber vice-president Roy Denny told directors Friday.

SOLD OPENLY

Paint, furniture and carpets are being sold openly on Sundays, he noted. Whatever Sunday is used for, be it church-going, recreation or relaxation, "it is a day of rest and we don't want laws that force people to work," he said.

As interpreted now, the law requires a policeman to make a purchase in a store in question, then to ascertain whether the salesman is there by compulsion or voluntarily.

Storekeepers who call in staff for Sunday work may be charged, and upon conviction may be fined $10, Denny said. Then they do it again the next week.

"Anyone who is open Sunday is making a mockery of the law and should not be supported by the public," said Red Hind.

Ray Rawnsley said he was "180 degrees opposed" to this point of view, since merchants had encouraged staffs to work longer hours during the week. "Why oppose Sunday?" he asked.

"I think we've got a tongue-in-cheek approach here. We've asked people to work almost every other night of the week, why not Sunday?

Arthur Mayse...

ALTHOUGH VICTORIA the Beautiful is hardly a roaring metropolis, that fact remains that it is becoming a little more citified each year. A new high-rise here, another blacktop desert there, a block of houses rising where trees once grew . . . no doubt about it, the old place is expanding.

These intimations of change don't bother me much. But occasionally, as when we are trapped in traffic behind a fume-dispensing Hydro bus, my wife and I bring one of our more durable dreams out of storage.

It is titled "The Little Place Up-Island," and it comes in several versions.

The one I favor has to do with an old lady who owns a chunk of choice waterfront land somewhere north of Nanaimo. It has a clam and oyster flat out front, and a trout creek wanders through it. Naturally, it has a proper complement of trees, soil just right for a garden, and a well that doesn't run dry even in the hottest summer.

In the dream, we happen along just when the elderly character has decided to sell up and go live with her sister in town. She will have no truck with real estate people, and her chief concern is that her property go to those who will live and cherish it. The price she settles on labels her one of this world's true philanthropists.

The only flaw in the picture — and here we descend with a thud to reality — is that the little old lady has no existence beyond the realm of imagination.

If she did exist, she would sell her place to promoters, who would promptly label it Hasta la Vista Beach, bulldoze the hell out of it, and sell it off in pint-sized lots at prices that would curl your teeth.

There was a time when waterfront land up-Island was so cheap you'd scarce believe it. Once, in fact, we actually did own a couple of hundred feet of it. The trout stream was lacking, and so were the oysters. But that land had everything else, including a scatteration of first-growth Douglas firs and a well-watered alder bench at its back.

We were single then, but we hoped to marry, and we shared a yearning that any number of city-dwellers know. We wanted a bit of land away from the city. We mightn't do much with it, but it would be good to know our land was there, and that if tough times got tougher, we could always retreat to it.

So we bought side-by-side lots for $100 each, paying for them on time and splitting a $25 surveyors fee.

As it happened, we never so much as cut a stick or turned a sod on our land. When we happened to be up that way, we strolled around it, admired the trees and the view of Coast Range peaks across the Gulf, and debated cabin sites.

A few years later we went East to live, and when an offer for our land happened along, we sold it for what seemed a highly-inflated figure. I remember it as $500. Unless the present owners are kin to the little old lady of our dream, you couldn't buy either of those lots for less than $12,000 today.

What we didn't know while we sampled big-city life something over half a continent away from this coast was that time had changed conditions. Vancouver Island had been discovered, and what has since become a waterfront land rush was commencing.

The Americans, who don't fool around when they stumble on a good thing, have bought like crazy.

So have Edmontonians and Calgarians, questing Vancouverites, retired wheat farmers from the prairies, and a sprinkling of smart Victorians among whom we're not included.

Not yet, that is. But a while ago we heard of a bit of beachland that sounded like the answer.

On inspection, it turned out to be heavily grown with sawgrass and frequently by saltwater ducks. We eyed it, thinking our own thoughts. Then my wife said, "If we built a place here, we could name it 'Below Tide'."

The moral for others who share the dream and mean one day to realize it, is, don't dally too long. Otherwise, you may have to settle for semi-waterfront.

The term puzzled us when we first were confronted by it.

"Well, you aren't exactly on the beach," a holiday-land realtor explained. He tapped his map of Hasta la Vista. "This is semi-waterfront, next street back."

And for this week, with a sigh for the little old lady of my fable, that is that.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

Paris Hats Tailored

Paris spring collections were very strong on hats. The return of the Thirties tailored suit and the soft sport looks of that period demanded the wearing of hats to complete the costume.

At Givenchy, double-breasted blazer jacket suits were worn with brimmed white felt hats, the brims turned up at one side, and a scarf used as a hatband. At Chanel, rose Panama Straw was turned into a modified fedora with back upturn and a rose grosgrain ribbon bowed at one side. Cardin even showed evening hats — organza scarves shaped into turbans, often in the same print as the dress.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Let Granny Know

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have a mother-in-law problem, but not the usual kind. She is not meddlesome, gossipy or anything like that. She is practically perfect — or she was, until 18 months ago when her daughter (my wife) made a grandmother of her. Now, I realize that all grandmothers think their grandchildren are the cutest, smartest, prettiest, etc., but my mother-in-law has overdone it until I want to gag.

She carries dozens of pictures with her and shoves them under everybody's nose whether he is interested or not. And, no one has a chance to talk about anything else when she's around. It is positively nauseating. She bores everyone to tears with her "granny" talk. I have sat in a group wanting to crawl under the carpet when she takes off about "my" grandchild. The worst part of it is, she doesn't realize how sickening it is to others.

How can I let this otherwise dear, sweet woman know that everyone is not as eager to listen to her "granny" talk as she is to spout it?—Embarrassed in Atlanta.

DEAR EMBARRASSED: What's wrong with telling her?

DEAR ABBY: My boy friend has been after me to prove my love. I tried to tell him what you said in an article about this, but it didn't come out right. If you can remember what you said, I would very much appreciate seeing it in your column. I am 15. Sign me—Weakening.

DEAR WEAKENING: Here it is: Girls need to "prove their love" through illicit sex relations like a moose needs a hatrack. Why not "prove your love" by sticking your head in the oven and turning on the gas? Or playing leap-frog out in traffic? It's about as safe. Any fellow who asks you to "prove your love" is trying to take you for the biggest, most gullible fool who ever walked. That proving bit is one of the oldest and rottenest lines ever invented?

Does he love you? It doesn't sound like it. Someone who loves you wants what is best for you. But now figure it out: He wants you to surrender your virtue. Throw away your self-respect. Risk the loss of your precious reputation. And risk getting into trouble and hurting yourself and hurting your family.

Does that sound as though he wants what's best for you? That's the laugh of the century: He wants what's best for him . . . and he wants a thrill he can brag about at your expense.

Love? Who's kidding whom? A boy who really loves a girl would sooner cut off his right arm than hurt her. If you want my opinion, this self-serving so-and-so has already proved that he loesn't love you. (PS: It wasn't an "article," it was from my book, "Deer Teenager.")

DEAR ABBY: My husband (I'll call him Mel) is an excellent dancer. Recently while we were attending a dinner-dance, an acquaintance, sitting at another table, sent a note over to Mel requesting that he dance with his wife. Mel danced with her.

Later on, another man came over and told Mel that his wife was "dying" to dance with him. So Mel danced with her.

The men who asked my husband to dance with their wives did not ask me to dance, so while Mel was dancing I was left sitting alone at our table. Do you care to comment?—Crushed Wallflower.

DEAR CRUSHED: The men who recruited your husband for their wives should have had the good manners to ask you to dance. But since they didn't, your husband should have suggested it. A gentleman does not leave his lady sitting alone while he dances.

DEAR ABBY: About three years ago I was in such a serious mental state that I was guilty of actually inflicting physical abuse on my helpless child. This would occur only when I was terribly depressed, but these depressions were becoming more and more frequent. Many would have said, "Put her in prison and take her child away from her."

Fortunately I must have seen a ray of light., as I telephoned our Community Mental Health Service, Instead of condemning me, they said, "Come let us help you."

It has taken three years of treatment for me to reach this point, and I have more ahead of me yet, but I have come a long, long way.

To your readers who are experiencing the same or similar problems, I say: seek help now. Don't be disheartened by the slowness of your recovery, since it probably took more than just a few months to acquire the problems which are surfacing now. Stay with the treatment in search of mental health as I did, and you, too, will enjoy being a mother — Happy In Seattle

DEAR HAPPY: Unfortunately you will never know how many have been helped by your letter. Thank you for writing.

Generations of children since 1885 have played around the old maple tree at Craigflower schoolhouse. The maple will soon be joined by three young trees to be planted next Saturday. Climbing the tree on a spring afternoon are grade three students from the new Craigflower school, Shawn Lambert and Michael Bull, shown talking to classmates Anita Thomson and Sandra Riedyk. Bogus Contraceptives Cause Just as Many Side Effects

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Reports from women of headaches, nausea and nervousness caused by oral contraceptives probably are more coincidental rather than direct drug effects, says a prominent scientist in the field of reproduction.

The true incidence of reported side effects is far less than generally believed, said Dr. Joseph Goldzieher of the Southwest Foundation for Research and Education of San Antonio, Tex.

Goldzieher made the comments in a report on a research paper to the American Fertility Society here Thursday.

He said the findings are the result of a new type of clinical research with oral contraceptive users.

The side effects, the study shows, are present even without medication.

The research study involved 398 women who were given treatment with "pills."

Sofe of the women were given dummy pills; some were given one of three commercially marketed oral contraceptives; and some were given an estrogen-free experimental "minipill," he said.

All of the women who received the dummy pills and many using active drugs were instructed to use other contraceptive protection. This protected the women against pregnancy without revealing which were on the dummy pills. Neither the patients nor the investigators knew who received what medication.

He said some of the conclusions reached were:

—That the frequency of headaches, nervousness and depression during treatment with active drugs was the same as that for the dummy pill.

—That there was no perceptible difference in the systolic and diastolic blood pressure of women on all three types of medication.

—And that the proportion of women who gained five pounds or more over a period of four months was the same whether they were on the dummy pill, the estrogen-free "mini-pill" or commercial preparations.

Goldzieher said the research data doesn't show that oral contraceptive usage is entirely free of side effects and it doesn't say the contraceptives cannot and do not cause side effects.

But, he added, the studies show that most of the complaints reported by "pill" users are coincidental, and are not direct drug effects.

Trees for Craigflower

That it still stands beside the Gorge, while so many other buildings in the area have been demolished to make room for motels, is due to efforts of the Native Sons and Daughters of British Columbia.

Local members of the group saved the sagging building, the oldest school still standing in Western Canada, in 1927 when it had deteriorated to the point where there was talk of tearing it down.

A new cement foundation was installed, a new roof put on, and the schoolroom turned into a museum furnished much as it was a century ago.

Next Saturday, the Native Daughters of Post No. 3 will conduct a centennial tree-planting ceremony on the grounds.

The occasion will commemorate the 50th anniversary of the founding of Post No. 3, as well as the 100th anniversary of British Columbia's joining the Canadian Confederation.

The first class at the old school is believed to have been held in March 1855, 16 years before B.C. joined confederation, and while Vancouver Island was still a separate colony.

Diaries of a farm laborer, Robert Melrose, tell about the construction of the building, and the celebrations that accompanied it.

"Monday, August 21-54 — Gideon and his gang commenced to build a school and school house.

"Saturday, September 23-54 — School house frame erected, whole company in general notoriously drunk."

Fortunately, the builders did a good job in spite of the "Bacchanalian celebrations" described by Melrose.

The school at Maple Point, with its red gabled roof and whitewashed walls, was built of lumber sawn at Craigflower Mill and rafted across the water. The windows, nails and large bricks with the name Stourbridge stamped on them were brought from England.

After it was closed in 1912 the building survived 16 years of neglect until the Native Sons and Native Daughters of British Columbia obtained a 20-year-lease (since renewed) on the property.

They have furnished the school room with the original double desks and blackboard, and the little reed organ which led the singing at church services there.

There are copies of text books, with sums in pounds, shillings and pence, and pictures of early pupils and their teachers.

Also on view are other articles connected with the early life in the Craigflower settlement.

Recently another item has been returned to its original place in the school grounds.

Robert Melrose, the convivial diarist, wrote that articles salvaged from the wreck of the ship the Major Tompkins were sold by auction on March 1, 1855.

On March 8, he wrote "Major Tompkins bell hung at the end of the schoolhouse."

The famous ship's bell was later moved across the street to the "new" Craigflower school (since demolished) where it called pupils to classes every morning for nearly 60 years.

Guests at the tree planting ceremony and visitors to the museum will see it back in its orginal place at the end of the schoolhouse.

Board members Mrs. H. A. Beckwith and Mrs. Jack Fouracre are arranging the ceremony, during which dogwood trees and a maple tree will be planted.

Special guests will include David Anderson, MP for Esquimalt-Saanich; Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis and council members; Allan McKinnon, chairman, and other members of the school board; W. J. V. Church, head of the board in charge of the preservation of the old school, and W. L. Durrant, principal of the new Craigflower school.

The event is open to the public.

The old school at Maple Bend has been so well preserved that two pictures, taken approximately 70 years apart, show an almost identical building. The picture above shows grade three students of the new Craigflower school playing in the old school grounds, just as the boys in the earlier picture played at the turn of the century. The second-storey schoolmaster's living quarters are still a home for the museum's caretaker, and even the old ship's bell installed the week the school opened in 1855 is back in place on its stand. The building and the museum are preserved by a volunteer committee representing the Native Sons and Daughters, the B.C. Historical Society and Saanich Municipality.

Earthworm Remembers Shocking Experience

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) — Anita Ellis says that even the lowly earthworm has memory cells.

The earthworm's memory may not be comparable to that of the elephant, she says, but the worm remembers.

Anita, a Grade 8 student at Stratford's King Lear senior public school, has a team of trained earthworms to prove her point.

The young student has prepared a statistical report which she says proves the earthworm can remember.

She puts an earthworm in a T-shaped enclosure. One arm of the T is closed off by an electrical wire powered by a battery.

The worm is then returned to the base of the T and given a chance to try again.

Anita says the worm invariably turns the other way on the second trip. Some worms need a couple of shocks to make them turn, proving that even a worm will turn if shocked.

Patou's Shorts Civilized

Although often less publicized than some other houses, Jean Patou is a leader in dress designing. The Paris couture house uses the talents of Michel Goma as designer, and he even turns shorts into a civilized look. His dresses, wider at the shoulders, flipped in the skirt, and often in splashy floral prints on dark grounds, are spring successes.

Many Patou dresses are variations of the shirt theme, with lots of pleats and a sashed waistline. The sleeves are puffed at the top in Forties style, to create the broader shoulder look.

Film Brings Back 1910 Look

Piero Tosi, who virtually started the whole Thirties revival with his authentic costumes for "The Dammed," is doing it again in the new Luchino Visciblu film, "Death in Venice," from the Thomas Mann novella.

The film is laid in the era of about 1910, when skirts were still long, but the silhouette was becoming soft. Tosi does those very long jackets those lingerie dresses, those pleated children's clothes with white collars so expertly that they don't look like costumes but like something one would wish to wear right now.

He uses the authentic colors, the black, peacock green and deep red typical of the period. Prints were not yet widely used, but there was a love for white and cream, which were the romantic colors of the period.

THE GALLUP POLL

Baby Bonus Cut Approved by Most

By The Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

Two-thirds of the public is in favor of the suggestion that Family Allowance payments to the well-to-do should be dropped, in order that they may be increased for those with lower incomes. Nationally, 66 per cent think it would be a good idea. This approval drops from a high of 74 per cent among those with the lowest incomes, to 58 per cent among the wealthier.

Those critics who suggest that the Liberal Government may lose votes among those with the higher incomes, if the plan is implemented, are supported by the fact that one-third of those with incomes $8000 a year and over, object ot the proposal. Even among those earning less than $6000, and most likely to benefit from the revisions, 16 per cent say it is not a good idea. On the national average, 20 per cent don't think it should be done.

Family Allowance payments are usually considered as being of most concern to the wives who receive them, rather than to their husbands. Both men and women, however, think very much alike on the matter.

The question:

"The government is considering revising the family allowance program, so that those families in which the income is $10,000 and over, will not receive family allowance cheques — and the money will go to increase payments for poor families. Some people approve of this idea—others do not. What is your opinion?"

Here's how men and women, rich and poor, think about the proposal, compared to the national average of opinion.

	Approve	Disapprove	Undecided
CANADA	66%	25%	9%
Men	68	23	9
Women	64	28	8
Under $6,000 income	74	16	10

Heart Attack Prevention Begins With Pediatrician

By HARRY SCHWARTZ

NEW YORK — Should the pediatrician be the key figure in a vigorous national effort to curb the plague of heart attacks and related cardiovascular diseases that kill more than a million Americans each year?

A rising number of medical voices are beginning to suggest that prevention of heart attacks may be effective only if the effort begins with children and the pediatricians who treat them.

A recent article in the Journal of the American Medical Association suggests that physicians may have to regard atherosclerosis — the disease process that sets the stage for heart attacks — "as a pediatric disease and to advocate prophylaxis beginning early in life." And in London, a leading British cardiologist, Dr. Geoffrey Rose, told a medical conference that coronary trouble had its origin in childhood.

One line of investigation sparking such thinking is the product of a special study group of the American Heart Association, which reported its findings last November. As many as one per cent of all babies may be born with an inherited blood fat condition that makes them susceptible to fatal heart attacks in their 20's or 30's. Victims of an inherited condition, these unfortunates accumulate high levels of cholesterol that tend to plug up their arteries even though they consume normal diets.

Pediatricians have already been urged to look for sufferers from what is called familial type II hyperlipidemia (high blood fat) and to put them on low fat and low cholesterol diets to minimize the danger. The search requires pediatricians to take careful family histories to determine whether members of the child's family had died of heart disease before 60 or had been warned they had excessively high blood cholesterol.

But the one baby in 100 who may fall into this genetically unlucky group is an exception. The suspicion that prevention of heart attacks must begin in childhood is born of broader considerations.

One such factor is the large number of people — most of them men and many of them under 65 — who die very quickly of heart attacks even though they have never previously shown any evidence of cardiac trouble at all. This has lead to the belief that the incidence of atherosclerosis — the building up of fatty deposits that clog up arteries and set the stage for fatal blood clots — is a silent epidemic with millions of victims who show no sign of the ailment, even when subject to a rigorous physical examination including electrocardiogram. Moreover there is some evidence indicating that with the passage of time atherosclerosis is damaging ever younger Americans. One 1960 study suggested that the average American of 40 then had as much atherosclerosis as the average American of 50 had had a generation earlier.

Accompanying this is the belief that feeding habits are set in childhood, and that American feeding habits — with their preference for tender steaks, ice cream, butter and other high fat foods — are suicidal from the point of view of cardiovascular disease. The conclusion is then drawn by some observers that pediatricians must regard it as a high priority task to prevent adult atherosclerosis by having the children in their care paced early on a low fat, low cholesterol diet that many believe prevents or minimizes the danger of atherosclerosis and its complications.

Panty Hose Revived Israel's Economy

Millions of the world's fashion-conscious women are wearing Israeli - made panty hose, which have brought the country more than $20 million in the last year alone.

One jump ahead of the fashion trends, Israeli producers realized the possibilities of the panty hose revolution when sheer nylons were still the favorites.

The new stretch fashion is a flatterer. It shows off not only a trim ankle or a rounded calf but also the feminine thigh in miniskirts and hotpants style.

One reason for its success is the way it caters to local tastes. Not only are the lengths and shades adjusted, but even the brand names are coined to suit the customers' fancy.

In Canada and Japan the panty hose are sold under the "cancan" label. In South Africa they are known as "sabras."

The sell under the "Hans" brand name in the United States, where four out of every 100 women wear the Israeli-made hosiery.

Israeli hosiery sales abroad this year will reach 130 million pairs, says the director-general of the Israeli Gibor Co., the power behind the panty hose production line.

David Lautman expects sales to top 220 million pairs in two years' time. Yet three years ago not a single pair of Israeli-made hosiery was sold overseas.

Israel went into the hosiery business in a big way just before the 1967 six-day Arab-Israeli war when the economy was undergoing a serious recession.

Bernard Giberstein, owner of Societe Begy, the largest hosiery firm in France, then on a visit to Israel, dicided to build there the first plant in the world devoted to panty hose production.

The $15-million Gibor Co. now employs 3,500 workers in 13 different plants throughout Israel.

It is the only manufacturer in the world to produce the finished panty hose from flat nylon yarn. Other manufacturers buy the stretch nylon already processed.

Room Changes With Seasons

Some rooms are at their best at certain times of the day or night. Others achieve their peak at certain times of the year. Most to be desired is a room that varies its mood with the light and with the seasons, but which maintains its quality of interest at all times. Such a room, designated by Don Martin, is shown here.

The house employs varying space relationships, balancing low ceilings against high, open areas against closed, and defines room areas by placing floors at different levels and using different materials. For instance, carpeting covers the living room floor, down two steps from the rest of the house, and contrasts with hard surfaced ceramic tile in the dining area.

The high ceilinged areas have most appeal in summer, and in winter the low ceilinged area around the fireplace invites companionship. In fact, the living room seems almost compartmentized with this difference in ceiling heights, and with the fireplace separating the living room from the entry. Note that the fireplace faces just one section, rather than the entire room.

The difference in areas is emphasized by the furniture, definitely grouped around the fire, the chairs turning their backs on other parts of the room. And the built-in sofa lines up with the raised hearth so that they seem all the same piece. By the sofa, the hearth functions as a table, then it continues past the fireplace and rounds the corner.

Scholarships Announced

Scholarships of $5,000 have been awarded to Howard Graham Welch and Susan Jane Mackenzie for post-graduate studies overseas during the 1971-72 term, Mrs. Nicholas Kalyk, B.C. provincial president of the IODE, announced recently.

Welch, whose mother lives in Sorrento, B.C., has received the IODE First War Memorial Scholarship to continue in the World War studies department of King's College, University of London. He graduated in 1969 from Simon Fraser University with BA honors in history.

The IODE Second War Memorial Scholarship was awarded to Miss Mackenzie, whose parents live in Nanaimo. Miss Mackenzie was awarded a graduate fellowship after graduating with BA Honors from the University of British Columbia. She is presently finishing her MA degree in comparative literature at UBC.

Quebec Bill May Make New Jobs

By The Canadian Press

Two bills were introduced in the Quebec legislature Friday that the Liberal government says are designed to co-ordinate economic policy across the province.

One bill would create an Industrial Development Society empowered to provide financial aid to industry and build plants to sell or rent.

The government says it could create new jobs, put the savings of Quebecers to work and modernize the province's industrial structure.

The proposed agency will be financed from $25 million currently in the hands of the former Industrial Credit Office and will be able to borrow money from the government or from outside and to issue industrial bonds that would deliver tax-free interest.

The second bill provides for tax reductions for manufacturing companies investing at least $250,000 in Quebec to buy equipment or expand facilities from April 1 to March 1974.

Eight of Canada's provincial legislatures were sitting Friday. The Ontario house, prorogued since last fall, begins the fourth session of its 28th government Tuesday. The Manitoba house will then be the only one not sitting.

In the Newfoundland legislature, a royal commission report on forestry that has been in the Liberal government's hands since September was tabled Friday by Resources Minister W. R. Callahan.

It said harvesting would exceed new growth within 30 years in the province and recommended integration of lumber, pulp and paper industries and planned management of Labrador's forest potential.

It also recommended a commercial forests corporation, which Mr. Callahan announced in February to plan and control all logging.

Premier Joseph Smallwood replied to opposition accusations that he planned to push through a record interim supply bill of more than $99 million and then call an election:

"There will be an election this year and before the election the budget will be brought down, debated and approved."

PRESENTS POWER BILL

The government's five-year term expires Dec. 31.

In Halifax, Premier Gerald Regan introduced a bill to set up a Crown corporation to put a tidal-power project into operation in the Bay of Fundy before 1980. The seven-member board of directors would be empowered to negotiate with private interests and other provinces.

The legislature put 29 bills through second reading, including one amending the Court and Penal Institutions Act so prisoners can be granted day parole.

The legislature in Charlottetown was told the government has asked Ottawa for assurances that the ferry John Hamilton Gray will be returned to tre Prince Edward Island-New Brunswick run by Oct. 15 after summer service between Nova Scotia and Newfoundland.

In Fredericton, Premier Richard Hatfield responded to criticisms in the New Brunswick auditor-general's report by announcing an investigation into prices paid for some properties acquired by the highways and public works departments during 1970. His government came to power late in 1970.

It was also announced in the New Brunswick legislature that the provincial power commission will start work this year on projects costing more than $80 million to meet power needs for the rest of the decade.

CITES SLOWNESS

In Regina, Labor Minister D. G. Maclennan said local governments have been slow to sign up for the province's Student Temporary Employment Program which will subsidize monthly salaries to a maximum of $150 a month this summer. Meanwhile student applications and employer offers have been rolling in.

The Alberta legislature was told a three-man committee will study the land-tenure question as it relates to Metis people. This announcement by Social Development Minister Ray Speaker follows an incident in the Fort Vermilion area where 300 Metis were threatened with eviction by owners of land they live on.

Attorney-General Ed Gerhart said the Alberta government will push for second and third readings of a bill lowering the age of majority to 18 so the provisions can go into effect April 1.

Arctic Chance 'Fluffed'

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada lost a golden chance through government inaction to take the lead in exploring for minerals in the Arctic and getting them to market in the early 1960s, says Walter Dinsdale (PC—Brandon-Souris).

The former Conservative northern affairs minister told the Commons Friday that Canada was exploring the high Arctic as early as 1961, well before the oil search in Alaska.

Drilling on Melville Island "proved that the geology of the high Arctic was favorable to oil development," he said. The work was done by Canadian companies led by Dome Petroleum.

"Three fundamental problems — transportation, protection of the ecology and sovereignty—emerged as a result of that experiment in 1961," said Mr. Dinsdale, who was a cabinet minister during that period.

"Had we come to grips with them as they emerged and as a government provided vigorous leadership, we would be in a much better position today to come up with solutions."

STARTED STUDIES

Research studies were started into these problems by the then Conservative government. But the succeeding Liberal administration apparently had dropped these studies.

Mr. Dinsdale spoke as the Commons continued its drawn-out debate on reorganization of government departments. The debate continues Monday after the weekend break.

Although Energy Minister J. J. Greene remained silent during the main debate, he said during question period that chances of the Canadian line being built before one in Alaska were better than before.

The American oil companies with strikes in Alaska favored an all-Alaska route. But long delays brought about by government hearings and conservation groups had swung U.S. attention to the Canadian alternative.

But Mr. Greene added that "I do not think I can put track odds on the likelihood of one route versus the other."

Paul Yewchuk (PC—Athabasca) said the objection from conservationists about the Alaska line could be echoed in Canada. Inuvik in the Mackenzie Delta was in the same earthquake zone as Valdez.

He also called for close consultation with Eskimos and Indians in the Canadian North.

The maximum benefit of the pipeline should be to them.

"We should not try to fool these people by providing them with temporary jobs during the boom years of development without due regard to the long-term future," he said.

NDP Leader T. C. Douglas said his party was "vigorously opposed to any program that will bring oil tankers down the west coast of Canada."

But at the same time, the NDP did not want Canada stampeded into building a hot pipeline over the Arctic.

"This should not be done unless all the ecological studies have been completed and the government can assure us, so far as scientific know-how and technology can assure us, that this will not bring disastrous consequences for the Arctic."

Ran Harding (NDP — Kotenay West) said he doubted whether any government studies had been made into the ecological effects of an arctic line.

He asked for a complete report of any work being done along these lines.

Trust Fund Rolls Along

The Percy Brown Trust Fund, started to finance a $5,000 rescue craft for the Beechey Head area, is growing right along.

A total of $657 has been donated to the fund already and the Times has received another six cheques which have not yet been included.

Anyone wishing to donate to the fund should send cheques to either the Times or the Royal Bank of Canada at 3378 Douglas.

Percy Brown, operator of Becher Bay Marina, took a 12-foot boat out in treacherous waters to rescue two of four people in the capsizing of a 40-foot troller in heavy seas.

He later dug into his own pocket to outfit a rescue boat.

BULLSEYE on national rifle shooting championship has been drawn for the second year in succession by a team from the local Patricia Dufour Navy League Wrenette Corps in competition open to 42 corps across Canada. Left to right, they are AW Lesley Quin, LW Shannon Akins, PO (2) Sharon Micks, AW Lynn Beazley and AW Cynthia Wiston. The announcement was made at the annual meeting of the Navy League of Canada, being held at the Chateau Laurier in Ottawa.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 20-year-old New Westminster woman who pleaded guilty two weeks ago to charges of uttering and attempted uttering more than $4,000 worth of stolen cheques was sentenced to four months definite and 12 months indeterminate in prison Friday by Judge William Ostler.

Victoria E. O'Sullivan was caught when she tried to cash a Campbell River school board cheque of $427 at Eaton's. She was charted with 11 counts of uttering and one of attempted uttering.

An investigation showed the cheque she had tried to cash was one of 50 stolen from Campbell River school board and that the signatures on it forged.

Cheques she cashed at department stores and businesses in Victoria and Saanich totalled $4,227.05.

Ostler said Mrs. O'Sullivan had been clearly "used and abused" by others in the incident who left her to take the punishment.

He noted that the accused in her pre-sentence report referred to her companions as "gun-toting heavies" and Ostler termed them "unscrupulous."

Defence lawyer Philip Govan sketched his client's background, pointing out that she had had little supervision the last six years of her life.

Govan said the woman had been married at the age of 14, become a mother at 15 and was divorced at 16. The child, he said, went with the father.

He said she had had cancer and was now unable to have any more children and five days after her second marriage last fall her husband was sentenced to five years in prison for armed robbery.

Govan said Mrs. O'Sullivan had made a "realistic appraisal" of present position and intended to upgrade her grade 8 education while serving her sentence.

Ostler made the sentence concurrent on all charges and ordered compensation of $2,099.99 be made to the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce.

Kenneth S. Gallop, 35, a former manager of Burnside Gardens apartments, 3622 Tillicum, was given a suspended sentence and placed on a three-year probation for theft of $3,334.48 in rents in November 1968.

Gallop, who now lives in Mission, B.C., said he would like to repay the money taken and Ostler ordered $100-a-month payments during the probation.

Ostler said he was taking into accout the fact that the accused committed the offence four years ago and hadn't been in trouble since.

★ ★ ★

Thomas H. Taylor, 37, of Little River, Comox, was given a suspended sentence and placed on a one-year probation for possession of counterfeit money.

He had pleaded guilty earlier.

Ostler said the 26 forgeries involved were "crude, very crude coin" and no reasonable person would accept them as legal money.

The coins were found in Taylor's pocket when he was searched by police on another matter March 10.

Frederick Young, 47, of 1250 Bay, was given a suspended sentence and placed on an 18-month probation for perjury.

He had pleaded guilty earlier.

Ostler told the accused that the offense was a severe one that is punishable by penalty up to 14 years in prison.

Young testified Jan. 6 in the trial of another man charged with a firearms offense that he had purchased a gun from a department store and found a live round in the breach.

He later admitted this was not true and investigation proved that he had not purchased a gun at all.

★ ★ ★

Donald Eward Raymond, 22, of 2523 Blanshard, was sentenced to 14 months in prison for five charges of false pretences involving seven counts.

The charges arose out of worthless cheques used to obtain goods from Victoria and Saanich stores.

Prosecutor John Macintyre referred to a report that described the accused as "grossly irresponsible" person.

Ostler noted that Raymond had a record for allied offenses.

Harmen A. Swart, 26, of 153 Menzies, was sentenced to four months in prison for possession over $50 and a three-count charge of theft under $50.

Warren T. Croscup, 25, also of 153 Menzies, was given a similar sentence for theft under $50 and a three-count charge of theft over $50.

Both men had pleaded guilty earlier.

Court was told at the time the two accused, as roommates, were "stockpiling" clothing from department stores.

Total value of 11 items of men's clothing in the various shoplifting offences against the two was $285.

Ostler Friday noted that the accused were both first offenders although he described the clothing theft scheme as "sophisticated."

★ ★ ★

Michael James O'Sullivan, 18, of 1251 Pandora, pleaded guilty to breaking into Individual Dry Cleaners, 1602 Fort, March 22 and stealing a safe with $4,254 inside.

A city police officer testified that the accused with a juvenile entered the premises through a broken window about 11:30 p.m.

A 15-year-old youth appeared in adult court charged separately with the same offense after he had been transferred from juvenile court.

The officer said in the O'Sullivan case, the two pushed the safe down a flight of stairs and loaded it into a company truck.

They drove the truck to Beach Road in Sidney, the officer said, where they broke into it. Police recovered the safe with $2,236 still intact.

The policeman said the pair drove the truck back to the city and left it at Victoria High School and walked home where they split the stolen money.

The juvenile told police, the officer said that part of the money had been used to buy drugs.

Ostler remanded O'Sullivan to April 6 for a pre-sentence and the juvenile to April 2 for a similar report.

IT'S TIME TO END U.S. manned space program and turn to unmanned exploration, says Senator Edmund Muskie, a leading Democratic contender for the 1972 U.S. presidential race. Muskie noted at a party meeting that the Russian space effort has been conducted largely with unmanned vehicles.

Not All U.S.-Italians Gangsters—Mafia Boss

By JOEL DREYFUSS

NEW YORK (AP) — Joseph Colombo and his Italian-American Civil Rights League want to drum out of common usage two terms they consider offensive—Mafia and Cosa Nostra.

During their campaign, they have picketed the FBI, marched on newspapers, sued Columbia Broadcasting System, written letters to editors, appealed to state governors and sponsored mass rallies.

Colombo, who federal authorities say is the boss of one of New York City's five organized crime "families," says there is a conspiracy against all Italian-Americans and he seeks t "restore dignity, pride and recognition" to every Italian-American.

Less than a year old, the league has drawn the support of many Italian-Americans, and some politicians and entertainers. A league spokesman puts membership at more than 40,000 in 25 chapters, mostly in New York.

WINS CONCESSIONS

Among concessions the league has achieved to date are:

—A justice department order to the FBI and other agencies not to use the terms Mafia and Cosa Nostra in their reports;

—Deletion of the terms from the script of the movie The Godfather by agreement with the producer;

—Elimination of the words from the television series The FBI.

Some law enforcement officials say that Colombo has used well-meaning Italians to apply pressure on crime fighters investigating his own activities.

Not all Italians are enamored of the league. John Marchi, a New York state senator and unsuccessful Republican-conservative candidate for New York City mayor in 1969, said: "Lice are lice whether they bear Italian names or Russian or what."

Meanwhile, the elder Colombo is making plans for a Unity Day rally June 28 that he hopes will outdraw a similar one last summer.

PREDICTS BIG CROWD

He predicts a crowd of one million persons gathering around the statue of the first Italian-American, Christopher Columbus. An estimated 100,000 attended last year's rally in Columbus Circle.

Colombo organized the league last May after one of his sons, Joseph Jr., was arrested by the FBI on a charge of conspiracy to melt silver coins into more valuable ingots. The son was acquitted by a federal court jury when a key witness recanted his testimony.

The senior Colombo charged that his son, his family and all Italian-Americans were victims of a conspiracy in the federal government. The terms Mafia and Cosa Nostra, he said, implied that all gangsters were Italians and conversely, that all Italians were gangsters.

Colombo, who says he is a real estate salesman, is out on bail on a perjury conviction which he was convicted of making false statements when he applied for a real estate broker's licence.

He also faces trial in Nassau County on Long Island for allegedly "mediating" between two participants in a $750,000 jewel robbery.

Church Help Sought In Drug Problem

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has turned to United States religious leaders for help in combating the spread of drug abuse.

"If there's an answer to it, you have it," he told them Friday in an unusual White House gathering of most of the top denominational officials in the U.S.

It was the first time the Nixon administration had called in a full cross-section of religious leadership—Protestant, Roman Catholic, Orthodox and Jewish—to enlist co-operation on a major national problem.

The clerics said it had not happened since the late President John F. Kennedy called in religious leaders to muster their support for civil-rights legislation.

DESCRIBES EFFORT

Many of them voiced keen approval of Nixon's initiative for such joint efforts and expressed hope for continued and widened dialogue between government and churches.

The president's deputy assistant for domestic affairs, Egil Krogh Jr., said the step was taken to bring "an added dimension to the national effort" in combating drug abuse.

The approximately 80 church leaders spent all day hearing reports from half a dozen government officers in addition to the president, including Attorney-General John Mitchell and George Romney, secretary of housing and urban development.

Nixon called the drug problem basically a spiritual one and told the churchmen "we have to get at the cause of the frustration, anxiety of whatever it is that is leading the young to give up on the system" and turn to drugs.

Romney stressed the same theme, that use of drugs by the young results from a "vacuum in values, meaning, purpose in life and self-identity."

"We must find a more adequate way to fill that spiritual vacuum," he said.

U.S. Gains in Will

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A French immigrant who said in his will that he was "extremely grateful" to have lived in the United States for 60 years has left $171,680 in cash, stocks and property to the federal government. Bertrand Larramendy, a bachelor who died 18 months ago at 83, left $1 to each relative in the event the will was contested. None of his cousins and a sister and step-brother did so.

MOTHER CAGED IN BARN

CUNEO, Italy (AP) — Police have arrested a 50-year-old farmer they say kept his mother locked in an iron cage in the barn for two years after she was released from a mental hospital.

The police said Bernardo Durbano, himself the father of two children, took food and water once a day to his 70-year-old mother, Maria. Once a week he let her walk around the barn for a few minutes while he cleaned the cage.

Some neighbors heard the old woman screaming and called the police. She was taken to hospital suffering from serious malnutrition.

PERSPECTIVES AND PREJUDICES

Doctrine: Merely Tool of Faith

By REV. J. A. DAVIDSON

The Christian religion did not begin with organization. The New Testament Church was a very loose fellowship.

The Christian religion did not begin with acceptance of the Bible. Holy Scripture for the first Christians was simply the Old Testament, the sacred book of the Hebrews, which they viewed from the special postion established by their experience of Jesus Christ. The New Testament, after all, was a product of the early church, not vice versa: it was a precipitate of the faith of the first Christian believers.

The Christian movement began when 12 men responded to the invitation of Jesus of Nazareth, "Follow me". And it was given its direction, and its dynamic, when, after the crucifixion of Jesus, those who had chosen to follow him became aware that death had not defeated him and that he was for them a living, creative Presence, not a dead hero but a living lord.

The first Christians did not claim to have all the answers in religion. And they were not required to accept a tidy package of dogmas and doctrines and practices. They were required only to accept a commitment to the living Lord.

But changes came. Changes came rather quickly. Mission and expansion made institutionalism inevitable. And with this, theology developed. As Christians thought about their faith, sought to make it communicable, tried to meet the challenges of its critics, schemes of doctrine and belief emerged.

Later critics of Christianity have charged that the early fires of faith became piles of dead cinders — and they suggested that theology has been the fire-extinguisher. Is that valid criticism? Would Christianity today be better off if we could forget all about creeds and doctrines, if we could outlaw theology?

Faith not sustained by hard, careful thinking is as perishable as a soap-bubble. And it is when Christians think hard and carefully, about their faith that they make their theology; it is when they wrestle intellectually with their faith-experience that they develop creeds and doctrines.

The choice for Christians is not between doctrine and no-doctrine, but between good doctrine and bad doctrine. Bad doctrine may dampen the fire of faith, but good doctrine stokes it. (There is in the Church a persisting tendency to make doctrine difficult and confusing. Someone has said that a high-brow author is a man who can write about something he doesn't understand and make you think it's your fault: I am reminded of that sometimes when I am reading theological books.)

William Temple, the great Archbishop of Canterbury who died in 1944, made a very significant point about the place of doctrine in Christianity: "Doctrine is of an importance too great to be exaggerated, but its place is secondary not primary." He added: "I do not believe in any creed, but I use creeds to express, to conserve, and to deepen my faith."

●

Doctrines are simply tools of faith. Theology is for use as an aid to faith, as an expression of faith, as a support and stimulus of faith. But theology does not take the place of faith. Faith is helped by doctrines, but faith does not consist in holding correct doctrines. Faith is not a matter of propositions; faith is a matter of commitment and venture.

You do not have to accept a package-deal of creed and doctrine — some of which may seem to you false or silly — before you can take the Christian way. Reinhold Niebuhr showed commonsense quite consistent with New Testament teaching when he told a troubled young skeptic that they saw no reason why faith should not be bought on the intsalment plan.

Church Program Looks at Cool-Aid

A panel discussion on the worth of Victoria's Coo-Aid will be featured on the Council of Churches cable ten television broadcast, Connections, Monday at 9:30 p.m.

Mayor Frances Elford of Oak Bay, Rev. Robert Morris of First United Church and Mr. Laurie Smith, a member of the Coo-Aid staff, will be panelists.

Zen Buddhism Topic

University school art instructor Charles Brookman will speak on Zen Buddhism at St. Dunstan's Gordon Head Church Sunday at both 9:30 and 11 a.m. services.

Remember Church In Your Will

Sometimes the sheep of the flock grumble when the church puts the bite on them for a new edifice or renovation project.

But Christ Church Cathedral in Victoria has a different approach that would indicate it's less painful to give when you're dead because you can't take it with you anyhow.

In this month's newsletter, in a piece of advice called Remember Your Church in Your Will, the cathedral notes:

"The Prayer Book of the Church of England instructs the clergy to urge their people to draw up proper wills, while they are in good health and long before the wills may be expected to come into effect."

The article says that a churchman, particularly, understands that all his property can be called his own only while his temporary ownership lasts during his lifetime.

"He can, however, decide to whom it shall pass."

The article recalls that from time to time a church member does remember the church in his will.

"The funeral service is past; the first moment of the loss of our friend is going by; then like a loving greeting to us from him whom we see no longer, there comes the news that he has directed a certain legacy to God's Church."

And "when this happens it always seems deeply right and proper. Our membership in God's holy Church is the only thing which will stay with us beyond death."

It adds: "It is most suitable that, in making provision for our dying, we should recognize the splendid truth of our continuing membership."

In the last 10 years, the will of 20 parishioners showed that "they had understood these things . . . their names are recorded with affectionate gratitude."

Christianity Faring Better Among Blacks

By EDWARD B. FISKE

KINSHASA, Congo — The history of Christian missions has generally been viewed as an effort to extend a predominantly European faith to the far corners of the earth.

Right now, however, Christianity is doing a great deal better in Africa and other nonwhite areas than it is in the countries of Europe and North America; and the prospect has arisen that Christianity is about to become a nonwhite religion.

Moreover, a group of revisionist church scholars has begun to question another old missionary assumption — that traditional tribal religions are inherently contradictory to the Christian gospel.

Statistics show that whereas church membership in Europe and North America is usually not even keeping pace with population growth, Christianity in sub-Sahara Africa is booming.

According to David B. Barrett, an English Anglican researcher in Nairobi who is generally regarded as the most informed authority on the subject, the Christian community in Africa is increasing at more than twice the average population growth of about 2.5 per cent annually.

He predicts that by the year 2000, the number of Christians on the entire continent will increase from 97 million to 351 million — half Roman Catholic and the rest Protestant, Orthodox and others.

This growth rate contrasts sharply with that of Islam, which until the mid-1950s was enjoying a high rate of conversions in black Africa. Most researchers now agree that this has levelled off and that Moslim gains, while continuing, are about what would be expected from normal population increases.

The exceptional growth of Christianity in Africa, however, cannot be explained simply by missionary activity or by ecclesiastical independence; and a number of African theologians have consequently begun asking some penetrating questions about the relation of Christianity and traditional African values.

The conclusion of many has been that missionaries frequently made a major tactical mistake in setting Christianity in opposition to traditional religion, and that the current growth rate results from the fact that African Christians are now seeing that the two are in a direct line.

World College to Offer Sea Rescue Facility

A sea rescue service will be one of the training programs offered by Pacific College, an international school to be established on the coast within 25 miles of Victoria.

The $8 million college will be in operation by September, 1973, and is the third in a series of United World Colleges, each of which has an enrolment of 300 students, completing the last two years of high school.

Plans for Pacific College were outlined by Rear-Admiral Desmond Hoare, personal representative of Earl Mountbatten, a founder of United World College, and Jack Matthews, newly-appointed headmaster of the college, at a United Services Institute meeting Friday.

A film showing Atlantic College now in operation in St. Donat's Castle on the south coast of Wales illustrated its tough sea rescue training.

Students are equipped with wet suits and sea rescue boats designed by Rear Admiral Hoare and are on constant standby linked by radio with the National Coast Guard Service. Heavy seas on the Welsh coast, similar to those of the Pacific coast, provide a constant challenge.

Admiral Hoare said that international understanding is a matter of enrichment of the students by the students, and the college provides the setting. The avoidance of war by mutual understanding is Lord Mountbatten's offer to world problems.

FEES $3,000

Enrolment at Pacific College will include 100 North American students, 150 from Pacific Rim countries and 50 from Europe. Entry is open to boys and girls and fees will be about $3,000 annually.

Languages and social work are emphasized on the program. Graduation certificates will enable students to be accepted at universities all over the world.

There are at present no students enrolled at Atlantic College from the Soviet Union, although the school has invited Soviet interest.

Canada at present provides six scholarships at Atlantic College. Most of the money for the colleges will be raised in North America, $2 million from Canada and $6 million from the U.S.

Bride Missing

WIGAN, England (AP) — One thing was missing from Bill Hill's wedding party—the bride. She wasn't invited.

Bill, 83, explained that he married last year and at the time planned a delayed wedding reception

Said Bill: "She watched television too much and she didn't like me going out for a drink with my pals.

Mrs. Hill, now living with her daughter, said "I'm not sorry about missing the party. I'm thinking of divorce."

TOTEM POLES have a dead look about them, but they will be more lifelike this summer when they are shipped and erected on the grounds of provincial capitals, Ottawa and the Northwest Territories. A total of 14 were carved by various Indian carvers. They are B.C.'s centennial gift to all the provinces and territories. Chief Carver Henry Hunt is shown here putting finishing touches to the last pole. They are all 16-feet high.

THE WEATHER

The series of disturbances running across the Pacific into western Canada continues. The present pattern finds one system nearing the coast and weakening steadily while a second about 900 miles behind is expected to reach the coast near Sunday mid-day and also weakening considerably. This has kept conditions quite variable while slowly spreading milder Pacific air into the interior.

Cooler arctic air still covers northern B.C. with a few snowflurries occurring in it. Elsewhere temperatures are in the normal range for this time of year.

LOOK, DON'T TOUCH STILL PAT'S MOTTO

COWDEN, Ill. (UPI) — Mrs. Wilbur Hall no longer has any doubts about Pat, her pet piranha fish, biting the hand that feeds it.

Mrs. Hall took the South American meat-eater out of its 10-gallon aquarium. Pat was placed in a pan and began flopping around vigorously. Mrs. Hall reached down involuntarily.

Pat, who dines on raw liver and hamburger, almost tore off a portion of the bottom side of Mrs. Hall's right middle finger. The wound required five stitches, five shots and two bottles of medicine.

Travel Survey On Canadians

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal industry department has announced it will conduct a travel census to find out when, where and how Canadians travel and what they spend on transport, accommodation, food, entertainment and other services on the way.

The survey, to start at the end of this month and run for a year, is the first market survey of the domestic tourism industry.

It is to be conducted at a cost of about $500,000 by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics among 12,500 Canadians selected to represent a typical sample of various travel habits and tastes by regions, occupation and income.

Main aim is to discover — for the guidance of federal and provincial tourism offices and the private industry in Canada — the size and shape of business generated by Canadians at home.

Governments and the industry know foreign visitors spend more than $1 billion a year in Canada but there is no precise knowledge on the domestic contribution.

START NEW PROMOTION

While the results of the domestic travel census are awaited, the federal tourism office has already launched a new promotional program designed to encourage Canadians to vacation in Canada.

Started March 7 with television advertising, the promotion will cost about $600,000 to the end of March, 1972.

PASSERBY CATCHES 3

ATLANTA (UPI) — Two teenagers and a small child leaped from the second floor of their burning apartment house Friday into the arms of a passerby. All escaped injury.

John L. Andrews, who caught the youngsters, said he had to coax them off a ledge. The youngsters were identified as Richard Harris, 16, his 3-year-old brother, Alonzo, and Beverly L. Carter, 17.

"The baby didn't want to jump," Andrews said. "The girl finally had to lift the child up to the ledge."

"I'm glad we've finally been Formally introduced!"

Weddings

Philip — Baird

Canon Grahame Baker officiated at a double-ring ceremony in St. John's Anglican Church on Saturday, March 13, 1971, at 1 p.m. when Brenda Sue, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Baird, exchanged wedding vows with Ardene R. Philp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Philp.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a floor-length gown of white lace. A tiara held her four-tier chapel veil and she carried a cascade bouquet of pink feathered carnations. Matron of Honor Mrs. Margaret Hebden wore a floor-length gown of blue and carried a colonial bouquet of carnations. Best man was Mr. Len Philp and Messrs. Dan Dobson and Ed Philp ushered the guests.

During the reception held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Youson, Captain Stan Fraser proposed the toast to the bride. The happy couple will make their home in Victoria.

Carter — Walker

Mr. and Mrs. William F. Walker, 3225 Exeter Road, wish to announce the marriage of their daughter Evelyn Anne, to Mr. Lawrence Paul Carter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Carter, 2980 Lansdowne Road.

The wedding took place Saturday, March 20, 1971 at 3 p.m. in the Chapel of First United Church with Reverend Robert J. D. Morris officiating. Maid of honor was Miss Pam MacDonald, and Mr. Michael Price acted as Best Man. Mr. Christopher Salm was Flutist and Mr. Bruce Turkington, cellist, for the occasion.

A family reception followed at the home of the bride's parents.

Bell — Jackson

Reverend P. V. Atkinson officiated at a double-ring ceremony in St. Saviour's Anglican Church on February 20, 1971, when Margo Marian, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stan Jackson, exchanged vows with Bruce James Bell, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Bell.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by Mrs. Dawn Bell as matron of honor and bridesmaids Mrs. Sandy Thompson and Misses Ann McKeachie and Dianna Gunderson. Mr. Barry Whincup was best man with Messrs. Gerry Bell, Roy Panter and Ken Jackson as ushers.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at Holyrood House where Mr. Robert Mason proposed the toast to the bride. The couple honeymooned in Portland, Oregon.

3 CARDS OF THANKS

SOLOMON—Our heartfelt thanks to all our friends and neighbours for all the acts of kindness, messages of sympathy and floral tributes in the loss of our beloved husband, father, and brother, Douglas. Our special thanks to Dean Whitlow, Father Hood, Mr. Roberson of Christ Church Cathedral; Doctors and staff of the Royal Jubilee Hospital; the staff and students of Cedar Hill Junior Secondary and Arbutus Junior Secondary Schools; Victoria City Police; Mr. and Mrs. Fisk; Mr. and Mrs. Greenhalgh; Mr. and Mrs. Greenwood; Mr. and Mrs. O'Hanlon; and Mrs. Bamford, — Georgina, Ron, Neil and Karen.

We wish to thank our neighbours and friends for their acts of kindness, sympathy, floral tributes and contributions during the recent loss of our husband, father and grandfather, Alexander McCormick. Special thanks to Doctor Reilly and Bryone, the nurses of the Royal Jubilee Hospital, the Victoria Ambulance and the Pythian Sisters, Island Temple No. 8 — Kathleen McCormick and family.

I wish to give sincere thanks to Doctor D. Critchley for his care and consideration and kindness to my husband and myself during his long illness. Also to the Saanich nurses and Mr. Jerry Noullette for their care and attention, also thanks to the Red Cross. I wish to thank Norman Reid for his loyalty and devotion in the care of his dad till his death. To Rev. D. Kendall our thanks for understanding help at this time and to the Memorial Society. Thanks to our many relatives and friends for flowers and cards. To the O.O.R.P. and Rebecca Lodge No. 1, our thanks. To our neighbours thanks for your thoughtfulness. To our goddaughter thanks. To Mrs. Carwood of North Vancouver for being with us during our sorrow. To my children thanks for your help. — Mrs. Myrtle F. Ganner, 4639 Cordova Bay Road.

We wish to express our sincere thanks to everyone who was so kind to us in the loss of my dear husband and father Pat Walls. Our deepest appreciation for the many cards, floral arrangements and the many donations to the Cancer Society. Special thanks to the doctors and staff of St. Joseph's and Jubilee Hospital, also Rev. Cameron. — Mrs. Molly Walls, Terry, Grace and Marlene.

4 IN MEMORIAM

HITT—In loving memory of Annie Gertrude who passed away March 26, 1970.
Peacefully sleeping, resting at last,
In silence she suffered, in patience she bore

HORNSBY—In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Edwin Sydney, who passed away March 28, 1970.
Which never can be filled.
Deep in our hearts his memory is kept,
To love, to cherish and never forget.
The tears in our eyes we can wipe away,
But the ache in our hearts is there to stay.

MOSS — In loving memory of our dear son, brother and grandson, John, who passed away March 27, 1964.
How strange he should sleep so profoundly,
So young, so unworn by the strife,
God knows the depth of our sorrow,
And right through it all, He is loving God knows so much better than we.
—Sadly missed by Mother, Dad, Sandra and Grandad.

RUTTAN—In loving memory of our daddy, Glen, who passed away suddenly March 28, 1970.
But you left us to remember,
None on earth can take your place.
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill.
—Always remembered, Bonnie and Laurie.

Labor NDP Hopefuls 'Just Like Others'

Candidates fielded by the B.C. Federation of Labor in the next provincial election will be treated just like any other New Democratic Party candidates, Opposition Leader Dave Barrett said today.

Barrett, who was reached at his home in Coquitlam, had not heard the announcement by the federation that it intends to run at least 10 of its own candidates under the NDP banner.

"They'll have to take part in a regular nominating meeting," Barrett said.

He was asked if the idea of organized labor getting involved in politics appealed to him.

"I haven't met with him (B.C. Fed. secretary Ray Haynes), I haven't read about it, I don't know what it's all about," Barrett said.

Haynes, who will be one of the candidates, announced the plan following a one-day special convention attended by 367 delegates at the Vancouver Hotel.

The convention was held to decide how to deal with "anti-union measures" enacted recently by the government. The measures included making membership in the B.C. Teachers' Federation non-compulsory and invoking Bill 33 to head off a threatened Teamsters Union strike in the trucking industry.

NDP deputy leader Mrs Eileen Dailly said the federation plan is "news to me.

"I know last summer there was some talk that the federation wanted its own men running, but this is the first, personally, that I've heard of it."

MIDDLE-CLASS ANIMALS

MARMADUKE

SMIDGENS

Wonderful World of Animals

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: Don't you agree a one-foot leash is preferable to one of those stupid long ones where you have no control over your dog?—P.E.

DEAR P.E.: Depends. The ultra-short leash is great for walking a Dane. It may even be a "must" in some congested areas. However, to utilize such a leash on a dachshund, for example, would mean you would have to be extremely short, or have one awfully long arm. Or else the dog would have to dance on its (hind) tippy-toes during its daily outings. It is safe to generalize that the longer the leash the less control you have over the dog so both the canine's size and its surroundings have to be taken into consideration when choosing the leash length.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Hernie, my horse, cut his leg just above the foot. I have been treating the cut with wound powder and so far it looks pretty good. A friend says I should take him to the vet to get it sewed up. Is this necessary?—N.J.

DEAR N.J.: Unless Hernie's leg wound is so shallow it doesn't go completely through the skin, he needs the doctor's attention. (Wound powder would be inadequate.) Aside from the hazards of tetanus and generalized infection, wounds in this area heal poorly for many reasons. They need all the help they can get to help without causing present and or future problems. This expert attention seldom includes suturing, however. Sutures here seldom hold satisfactorily, anyway.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Droopy, our basset hound, is 12 years old. I understand that one year of a dog's age is equal to seven years of a person's. That would make Droopy the same age as an 84-year-old person, right?—T.G.

DEAR T.G.: Yes, it would if a year in the age of a dog were actually equal to seven years in a man. However, this whole formula has been revised a bit. Actually, after the first year of a dog's life, his age is equivalent to that of a human adolescent — 14 or 15. The two-year-old dog has aged as much as a 24 to 25-year-old adult human. From there on, aging comparison drops and they go on a ratio of about one to four. On this basis, a four-year-old dog is approximately equivalent to a 32-year-old human. Your 12-year-old Droopy would actually be equivalent to a 64-year-old human. However, even this formula must wobble a little bit as some dogs naturally have a longer life span than others. If Droopy is doing well at 12, he's better than average, for basset hounds are not a particularly long-lived breed and 12-14 is considered the average life span for all dogs.

Soviets Claim Direct Atomic Energy—Electricity Link

By VICTOR COHN

WASHINGTON (WP) Soviet scientists have built what they call "the world's first operating installation" to convert atomic energy directly into electricity, the press agency Tass reports.

The United States has done the same thing on a smaller scale, Atomic Energy reported.

But the Russians, the AEC estimated from a sparse Soviet announcement, may be much closer to building a unit big enough to power giant, satellites, or long-range space missions, or compact power stations under the sea or in remote parts of the earth.

The Soviet installation produced "several kilowatts" of electricity, said the Russians, for "a new major achievement of Soviet atomic science and technology."

AEC specialists thought the Russians had made the electricity by what the AEC calls "thermionic" conversion — using the heat of uranium fission to boil electrons of a metal plate.

This only one ppossible method of direct conversion of the heat generated by splitting atoms. Indirect conversion — which uses the heat to make steam to turn turbines to make electricity — is the conventional method in nuclear power plants.

The AEC has produced 50 watts (half a kilowatt) of electricity directly from atomic fission in what it calls a "thermo-electric reactor." It launched such a liquid-metal reactor, called SNAP into space in 1965, and built a similar ground unit.

The ground model produced electricity for 15 months, but the one in space was shut down by a faulty signal from earth after 43 days.

The AEC is working on both thermo-electric and thermionic conversion, as well as MHD (magnetohydrodynamic) conversion, which would produce far larger amounts of power using high-velocity, electrically conducting streams of gas.

"Our first choice for a communications satellit in the near term, probably, would be thermo-electric conversion," said Lester K. Price, space nuclear systems project engineer.

"We've participated with the Russians in international meetings, and six Russian scientists in this area visited us last October. They indicated that they hoped to have a thermionic installation before us or the Germans or French.

"It surprises me that they have it this soon."

But what they probably have, added Price, and project engineer Donald Beard, is an experimental version still "along way from a flight model."

Building a flight model might take five years, they guessed — "sooner if you wanted to go no holds barred, longer if you wanted to make it very light and compact and reliable."

U.S. spending on all space nuclear systems — thermionic, thermo-electric and others — is just $16 million this fiscal year, jointly funded by the AEC and the space agency. The level was around $50 million a year at the height of U.S. space activity, but it has dropped with declined interest.

A far simpler kind of atomic system — an isotopic generator — is currently providing a small but invaluable 70 watts of electricity to power instruments at each of the last two U.S. landing sites on the moon. This kind of generator converts the heat of natural radioactive decay — from plutonium 238, in the lunar device — into useful electricity.

City Nurse Wins $48,000

Mrs. Olive Horan, a nurse at Royal Jubilee Hospital who lives at 48—2780 Spencer Road, had ticket XEC 70168 under the pseyudonym Closer on the second-place finisher, Tandy. . . .

A 12-year-old schoolgirl from the B.C. Interior town of Malawka, Colleen Blomquist, won $121,600 with her ticket on the winner, the 30-1 shot Double Cream.

"I don't know why we put it (the ticket) in her name," her mother, Joan Blomquist, said in a telephone interview. "I guess it's because she has a good Irish name. We really didn't expect to win."

The first thing Colleen intends to do with her winnings is buy a $169 western saddle for her pet Arabian quarterhorse Kitten.

"I'm also going to buy a horse for my sister Judy," Colleen said. "I just get a thrill on a horse — it's something between the horse and me.

"Of course I'm going to split it (the winnings) all up with my family."

Colleen's ticket was bought by her parents, Walter and Joan, part owners of Blomquist Bros. Logging Ltd. of Malakwa, 13 miles east of Sicamous on the Trans-Canada Highway.

Mrs. Blomquist said the family would take a trip to Europe to her native England and her husband's native Sweden.

Hazel Smiithi of Smithers said in an interview she is also going to buy a horse out of her $48,600 winnings.

By PETER McNELLY

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark indicated Friday the government may take steps to discourage further the use of tobacco even though it has already moved to ban advertising of tobacco products.

The government introduced two bills in the legislature Friday which prohibit tobacco and liquor advertising in British Columbia by Sept. 1, 1971.

Speaking about tobacco, Loffmark said, "We decided this bill is sufficient for the time being, but I would not want to say this represents all the government might or ought to do in deferring the use of tobacco."

He said non-smokers used to be on the defensive 20 years ago but that smoking is now less socially desirable.

Leaders of both opposition parties welcomed the bills.

Opposition Leader Dave Barrett said the NDP will vote for them, but he said that liquor and tobacco companies should be forced to put their advertising money into health research programs and alcoholism rehabilitation.

GARDOM'S BILL

Liberal Leader Pat McGeer said, "Of course we'll support it. I'm delighted they've accepted Gardom's bill."

McGeer was referring to his colleague Garde Gardom's (L — Vancouver-Point Grey) bill earlier in the session which also would have banned tobacco advertising.

McGeer said elimination of smoking would be the greatest public health measure in the world today. Diseases related to smoking include lung cancer, heart diseases, emphysema and bronchitis.

During a press conference immediately following introduction of the bills, Premier Bennett dodged questions about whether the government expected court battles as a result of the legislation.

But Loffmark said the government intends to go as far as is legally possible.

He said it will be very difficult to control liquor and tobacco advertising in newspapers and magazines published outside the province.

"If it transpires that it is not possible to restrict the circulation of magazines and any published material from outside the province, we hope the lead B.C. has taken will encourage other jurisdictions to take measures similar to ours."

Loffmark said he could not

Faculty Backs CAUT Proposals

By STEVE HUME

The faculty association at the University of Victoria Friday voted overwhelmingly in favor of a strongly-worded motion urging the administration to accept proposals from the Canadian Association of University Teachers.

The CAUT has called for establishment of an impartial tribunal to hear the cases of Dr. Tikam Jain and Dr. William Goede, two assistant professors denied tenure, and Philosophy lecturers Toby Graff, who was refused promotion.

Administrators at Uvic, led by president Bruce Partridge, have repeatedly rejected the CAUT's proposal for a tribunal comprising one member appointed by Partridge, one member by the aggrieved parties, and a third to be appointed by B.C.'s Supreme Court Chief Justice.

The administration has said it complied with the literal requirements of Uvic's tenure document, the CAUT agrees but charges the "spirit" of the document was not filled.

Faculty and students at Uvic have expressed fear the administrations stand might result in censure for the university — a blacklist within the CAUT which has membership on 47 Canadian campuses.

BLOCK VOTES

At the faculty association meeting Friday afternoon, 137 professors voted in favor of the CAUT, 37 abstained and only 14 voted against.

There were block votes against the motion from the Chemistry department and the Theatre department.

Loyalists Claim Win

Times News Services

NEW DELHI — Government forces claimed victory today in its civil war against rebellious East Pakistan's bid for independence.

Strict censorship hampered newsmen trying to piece together the situation but it appeared the heavily-armed central government troops were winning out over East Pakistan's police and civilian forces — but at a heavy toll.

One report said 10,000 persons have been killed in the fighting and at least one town was bombed by government planes.

The central government in West Pakistan — separated from the eastern section by 1,000 miles (see map below) — said order was being restored.

★ ★ ★

The Press Trust of India said central government tanks and artillery were used against civilians supporting Sheikh Mijibur, who has declared East Pakistan independent as the state of Bangla Desh (Bengal Nation).

Members of Sheikh Mujibur's Awami People's League said they held the town of Comilla, which was bombed by Pakistani air force jets, Press Trust said.

The central government radio said Sheikh Mujibur was arrested Friday. But the clandestine rebel radio, monitored across the border in India, said he was directing operations and had called on all East Pakistanis to join the battle.

Reports reaching border towns in India said there was heavy fighting around Dacca and the port city of Chittagong, where Awami League rebels were said to be controlling the local radio station.

But the government radio said civil servants were going back to work in Dacca and the curfew there had been lifted for nine hours today.

Press Trust said the 10,000 reported victims of the civil war died in battles at Dacca, Chittagong, Comilla, Naraingunj, Rangpur, Khulna and Jessore.

INDIA KEEPS OUT OF WAR

Times News Services

NEW DELHI — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi today praised the political philosophy of the rebel Awami League seeking independence for East Pakistan.

But Mrs. Gandhi said India would stay aloof from the civil war under way between supporters of the league and central Pakistani forces.

Jordan Troops Seal Off City

BEIRUT, Lebanon (Reuter) —Jordanian troops today sealed off the northern city of Irbid, scene of fighting with Palestinian commando units Friday, and began searching it for arms and suspects, reports reaching here said.

Travellers from the city, Jordan's second largest, said security forces have set up roadblocks at all entrances and were turning back people trying to enter the city.

Some reports said there had been intermittent shooting in Irbid today but there was no information from the government or commando side about the situation.

A Palestinian Arab commando statement in Beirut said a 10-year-old child was among four persons killed and 15 wounded in Friday's day-long fighting. In Amman, the government accused commandos of killing a police guard but issued no other casualty figures.

Government announcements said the fighting began when Palestinian commandos attacked security forces after the discovery of a large cache of guerrilla weapons hidden in a coffin in a local cemetery.

12 B.C. Deformities Blamed on Measles

VANCOUVER (CP) — The German measles epidemic which began in 1970 has already caused deformities in 12 infants born in British Columbia, and more are expected, Dr. Don Kettyls, the head of the virus department of the provincial laboratories, said Friday.

(None of the reported deformities was in the Victoria area, according to Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, chief medical officer, metropolitan board of health.)

In a speech to a conference on infectious diseases, Dr. Kettyls said he expects the

LIMIT SEEN ON LEVEL OF AUTOMOBILE NOISE

The government intends to establish maximum noise levels for motor vehicles and will require some people to take physical examinations before they can get drivers licences.

The proposals were outlined in amendments to the Motor Vehicle Act introduced in the legislature Friday.

The amendments also provide for photographing of new licencees. This change had been indicated earlier in the session by Attorney-General Leslie Peterson.

The noise-control amendment also allows the government to set regulations preventing the sale of motor vehicles and engines which do not comply with the maximum noise level to be established.

Because he was absent Friday, Peterson was not available to say who might be required to take physical fitness examinations and how the permissible noise level would be set.

SPECULATIONS HELP BOND PRICE CLIMB

TORONTO (CP) — Investor speculation of further bank prime-rate reductions helped push prices on the Canadian bond market higher in moderate trading this week.

On the week, short-term issues climbed about five cents while mid-term bonds rose about one-quarter point. Long-term bonds advanced as much as a full point and corporate issues closed moderately higher.

Observers said heavy trading late in blue-chip issues was an indication investors were buying current high-yield issues as a hedge against anticipated further interest rate reductions.

Bank of Nova Scotia introduced a new issue totalling $25 million. The bonds, due in 1991, carry a seven-per-cent coupon and sold at par.

Westcoast Transmission floated a new issue totalling $90 million. The issue, which matures May 15, 1981, sold at par to yield eight per cent. Each bond carries 20 warrents which allow the holder to buy Westcoast stock at $26 during the next five years.

Day-to-day ranged from three to 3½ per cent, closing Friday at three per cent. Three- and six-month treasury bills traded at 3.05 and 3.10 per cent respectively.

Victoria Daily Times

Storms Keep Spring Away

Spring weather will continue to elude the Victoria area this weekend, the weatherman said today, as the Island catches the backlash of storms hitting the U.S. coast.

Although the weather showed signs of breaking this week, "the map is definitely in a winter pattern again," the weather office said.

Stiff winds from the west are buffeting the coast from Victoria to northern California, bringing cloud and rain until at least the first of next week.

The outlook for Sunday is for rain, with low temperatures in the mid-30s and highs in the mid-40s.

Towboat Group Hits Breakwater

The Royal Victoria Yacht Club's plan for a breakwater in Cadboro Bay, already beset by opposition from beach residents and conservationists, was buffeted by an attack from yet another quarter Friday.

The breakwater would interfere with the protection for log booms in the bay, according to B.C. Towboat Owners' Association and the Greater Victoria Mill Operators' Association.

The two groups will make their fears known to the department of transport, which must rule on the yacht club's breakwater proposal.

Meanwhile, still more opposition is brewing. A new group calling itself the Oak Bay Beach Protection Association will meet Sunday at 7:30 p.m. at the Windsor Park Pavilion.

The group wants construction delayed until thorough studies can be carried out to determine whether a breakwater would damage beach environment.

The towboat and mill owners' opposition centres around a set of dolphins in the bay, where boats towing log booms tie up to ride out unexpected storms

Capt. Robbie Robinson of Island Tug and Barge says the dlophins are the only shelter between Victoria and Saanichton.

"If a swell comes in, hits up against a breakwater and rolls back, we're going to get the inside of the booms damaged," Robinson said. "We're already getting the outside smashed."

'QUITE CRITICAL'

The president of the mill operators' association, Bill Hemmingsen, said "the area is very importnat to us and we would oppose any moving of the dolphins."

"Their position is quite critical. We suffer a great deal of damage already, and if they were moved we would be pushed further out into the wind."

He called the dolphins "a very important link in the chain of supply to the industry."

Oak Bay council has called a hearing on the breakwater proposal at the municipal hall April 19. The club is seeking approval to build a rock breakwater to provide winter mooring for members' boats.

FULL GRANT EXPECTED

Budget Cut Fears Dispelled by 'Y'

The YM-YWCA, agency that got the biggest chunk of Greater Victoria's Community Chest last year does not expect to have its budget cut this year, president Dr. Joyce Clearihue said this morning.

The YM-YWCA and the Boy Scouts became "controversial" areas in relation to the Community Chest last week when suggestions were made that perhaps the two agencies shouldn't receive heavy funding from the United Appeal campaign.

But Dr. Clearihue dispelled fears of a budget cut with an official statement this morning.

"Tuesday night," she said, "the executive of the Community Chest met the president and executive directors of all agencies.

"All agencies agreed to forward their budget requirements and needs for 1972 to the Community Chest by April 15. There is no communication to the Y at the present time that there is any cut indicated to any agency."

Net Loss For Year Nearly Tripled

One of the objections to Community Chest fund distribution is that the only agency in the city directly dealing with the poor, the St. Vincent de Paul Society, received only $6,500 from the United Appeal coffers.

The $95,769 the Y gets from the Community Chest accounts for more than half the organization's total income of $186,533. A cut could mean substantial impairment to some Y programs.

The annual financial statement of the Y indicates major expenditures for the physical education program, $35,770; administration, $75,578; and maintenance, $104,534.

Major sources of income other than the Community Chest were the mucnipalities, $23,751; and residence fees, $11,979.

The organization recorded a net loss for the year of $11,589. Projected loss for the period was $4,806.

HIGH-RISES, 'CRUMMY' LOTS

Council Destroying City, MLA Williams Charges

Victoria council is destroying the city "on a large scale" by allowing high-rise apartments in James Bay, Bob Williams NDP—Vancouver East) told the legislature Friday.

Williams, who is a town planner, also criticized Chant for pemitting the legislative buildings to be surrounded by "ugly, crummy" parking lots.

"That is conjunction with the high-rises that the City of Victoria allows to be built is really destroying the quality of this city on a large scale," he said.

Williams agreed when Chant said the government was holding the lots for future development, but he told the minister he should construct underground parking facilities on the properties.

Williams said the problem with so many modern buildings is that they do nothing to humanize their surroundings. In the case of government buildings, he said, every effort should be taken to ensure that the public is not put off by stern, officious design.

He warned that city life in the United States has deteriorated partly because of the kind of architecture built in the name of renewal.

"I guess we just have to go through the process like the Americans. We always seem to make the mistakes the Americans have made, but we make then 10 years later."

Chant's estimates of $29,810,510 were approved at 4:15 p.m. after two hours of debate.

Retired Bishop Dies at 81

The retired Anglican bishop of Saskatchwean died this morning in Victoria at the age of 81.

Born in London, England, Rev. Martin was educated at the University of Toronto and Wycliffe College.

He is survived by his widow Kathleen and two daughters, Mrs. Ernest H. Williams of Vancouver and Mrs. J. H. Clyne Harredence of Prince Albert, Sask. There are six grandchildren

Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Crisis Phone Centre Starts Up Next Month

A crisis phone centre to serve Capital Region residents will begin operation at 538 Yates early next month.

With 70 trained volunteers ranging in age from 19 to 65, the centre will be open 24 hours a day to assist people in distress.

Lorraine Wainwright, a spokesman for Need, the name of the group setting up the crisis centre, said typewriters and office furniture had been obtained through donations. Further donations and more volunteers are still needed, she said.

'PROVEN NEED'

Need will not apply for governmental assistance until the project gets running.

"We don't feel we can apply to any city agencies or the federal or provincial government until after we've proven the need for this kind of service exists," Miss Wainwright said.

The Need centre is modelled on the Now centre in Vancouver which during its first 18 months handled some 20,000 calls for help.

"They felt there was no oneplace where a person could phone and have someone to listen to them," said Miss Wainwright.

Volunteers received some training during an orientation session with University of Victoria psychologists. In small groups volunteers acted out the roleso caller and answerer.

The experience of phone centres in Toronto and Vancouver has been that most of the calls come from lonely people, a small percentage from people contemplating suicide, and some emergency calls from drug freakouts.

Park Officials Support Thetis Lake Transfer

Officials of the Thetis Lake Park Nature Sanctuary Association are not opposed to a suggestion made by Hugh Curtis, chairman of the Capital Regional Board, that the park should be placed under regional jurisdiction.

Transfer of the park to the capital regional district would put an end to the "quibbling" over park maintenance costs, a spokesman for the association said.

* * *

The city of Victoria, owner of the park, has refused to pay costs for the construction of new restrooms in the 1,108-acre park, situated about 15 miles from the city limits.

Curtis in a letter to Mayor Courtney Haddock said he would assist the city "in any reasonable and positive action" it may wish to take with respect to the park's transfer to the region.

He said the park "must be retained for the public" and under no circumstances should the park be "sold, subdilvded, or in any way removed from public use and enjoyment."

Stop Stalling Reid Plan Chamber Tells Council

Citizens and aldermen have procrastinated over harbor development and urban renewal long enough: the $25 million Reid waterfront project should proceed, Chamber of Commerce directors said Friday.

They passed a resolution introduced by vice-president Roy Denny and bolstered by amendments from president Philip Holmes to urge the mayor and council in strong terms to put Reid's plan to a vote. There were no dissenters.

Holmes noted the proposed project at the foot of Fort Street had never been put formally to the council, but "shoved under the table like so many things in council, not just this one."

Denny said everyone had argued about the proposal long enough, and that it was time to act before the price was driven beyond attainment or the source of capital driven away.

He observed common findings among the several reports on the property: that Ocean Cement property should be purchased by the city and made into a park, that free public access should be assured along the waterfront between the park and Johnson Street, that development should include residential property, and that the historic atmosphere should be retained.

SOON AS POSSIBLE

Ocean Cement property should be bought as quickly as possible and the council should do all in its power to urge an early start to the Reid project, which includes three circular high-rise towers, shops, marina and public promenades west of Wharf Street.

Denny insisted that most of the argument opposing Reid is based on ignorance, and that the alternative suggestion, of making the whole area consisting of just over two acres of property into parkland, would cost the taxpayers about $1 million and perpetual upkeep.

AN ANCHOR

Reg Hind said there was "a lot of emotionalism about the park concept." The area, to be of value to the population, needs "an anchor on the waterfront" such as the Reid concept would provide. "Parks alone are not enough to attract people to the waterfront," he said.

'Mockery' Being Made Of Lord's Day Act

City council and the attorney-general's department have been asked by Victoria Chamber of Commerce to enforce the Lord's Day Act respecting Sunday retail operations.

Current practices of some merchants are "making a mockery of the law," chamber vice-president Roy Denny told directors Friday.

SOLD OPENLY

Paint, furniture and carpets are being sold openly on Sundays, he noted. Whatever Sunday is used for, be it church-going, recreation or relaxation, "it is a day of rest and we don't want laws that force people to work," he said.

As interpreted now, the law requires a policeman to make a purchase in a store in question, then to ascertain whether the salesman is there by compulsion or voluntarily.

Storekeepers who call in staff for Sunday work may be charged, and upon conviction may be fined $10, Denny said. Then they do it again the next week.

"Anyone who is open Sunday is making a mockery of the law and should not be supported by the public," said Red Hind.

Ray Rawnsley said he was "180 degrees opposed" to this point of view, since merchants had encouraged staffs to work longer hours during the week. "Why oppose Sunday?" he asked.

"I think we've got a tongue-in-cheek approach here. We've asked people to work almost every other night of the week, why not Sunday?

Arthur Mayse...

ALTHOUGH VICTORIA the Beautiful is hardly a roaring metropolis, that fact remains that it is becoming a little more citified each year. A new high-rise here, another blacktop desert there, a block of houses rising where trees once grew ... no doubt about it, the old place is expanding.

These intimations of change don't bother me much. But occasionally, as when we are trapped in traffic behind a fume-dispensing Hydro bus, my wife and I bring one of our more durable dreams out of storage.

It is titled "The Little Place Up-Island," and it comes in several versions.

The one I favor has to do with an old lady who owns a chunk of choice waterfront land somewhere north of Nanaimo. It has a clam and oyster flat out front, and a trout creek wanders through it. Naturally, it has a proper complement of trees, soil just right for a garden, and a well that doesn't run dry even in the hottest summer.

In the dream, we happen along just when the elderly character has decided to sell up and go live with her sister in town. She will have no truck with real estate people, and her chief concern is that her property go to those who will live and cherish it. The price she settles on labels her one of this world's true philanthropists.

The only flaw in the picture — and here we descend with a thud to reality — is that the little old lady has no existence beyond the realm of imagination.

If she did exist, she would sell her place to promoters, who would promptly label it Hasta la Vista Beach, bulldoze the hell out of it, and sell it off in pint-sized lots at prices that would curl your teeth.

There was a time when waterfront land up-Island was so cheap you'd scarce believe it. Once, in fact, we actually did own a couple of hundred feet of it. The trout stream was lacking, and so were the oysters. But that land had everything else, including a scatteration of first-growth Douglas firs and a well-watered alder bench at its back.

We were single then, but we hoped to marry, and we shared a yearning that any number of city-dwellers know. We wanted a bit of land away from the city. We mightn't do much with it, but it would be good to know our land was there, and that if tough times got tougher, we could always retreat to it.

So we bought side-by-side lots for $100 each, paying for them on time and splitting a $25 surveyors fee.

As it happened, we never so much as cut a stick or turned a sod on our land. When we happened to be up that way, we strolled around it, admired the trees and the view of Coast Range peaks across the Gulf, and debated cabin sites.

A few years later we went East to live, and when an offer for our land happened along, we sold it for what seemed a highly-inflated figure. I remember it as $500. Unless the present owners are kin to the little old lady of our dream, you couldn't buy either of those lots for less than $12,000 today.

What we didn't know while we sampled big-city life something over half a continent away from this coast was that time had changed conditions. Vancouver Island had been discovered, and what has since become a waterfront land rush was commencing.

The Americans, who don't fool around when they stumble on a good thing, have bought like crazy.

So have Edmontonians and Calgarians, questing Vancouverites, retired wheat farmers from the prairies, and a sprinkling of smart Victorians among whom we're not included.

Not yet, that is. But a while ago we heard of a bit of beachland that sounded like the answer.

On inspection, it turned out to be heavily grown with sawgrass and frequently by saltwater ducks. We eyed it, thinking our own thoughts. Then my wife said, "If we built a place here, we could name it 'Below Tide'."

The moral for others who share the dream and mean one day to realize it, is, don't dally too long. Otherwise, you may have to settle for semi-waterfront.

The term puzzled us when we first were confronted by it.

And for this week, with a sigh for the little old lady of my fable, that is that.

. . . FACULTY VOTES

The motion read: "The members of the faculty association urge, in the strongest possible way, that the university administration accept the recommendations of the CAUT executive regarding Drs. Jain and Goede and Mr. Graff.

About 150 students waited outside the meeting room where the faculty association was debating the motion. As faculty members filed out of the room students lined up three-deep on either side of the door, formed a corridor and applauded continuously until all the professors had left.

FOUR HOURS

The faculty vote followed on the heels of a student referendum that drew the highest student voter turnout in Uvic's history over a period of four hours.

Polls opened at 8 a.m. and closed at noon, and 54 percent of the student body cast ballots.

They voted solidly in favor of Partridge's resignation or dismissal and also in overwhelming support of the CAUT's proposals.

Some 69.3 per cent of the students voted against Partridge, and 91.4 per cent voted in favor of the CAUT.

CASES CLOSED

It said the cases of the teachers who have been denied contract renewal are closed.

The statement said to reopen them would establish "dangerous precedents" because of the "enormous political pressure which is being brought to bear on the university."

A spokesman for the student steering committee attacked the statement for what he charged was distortion of the facts.

"The president clearly does not recognize the difference between 'political pressure' and a constitutional crisis which he has created."

He said that in the three cases in question "the president has unilaterally chosen to impose limits" on CAUT procedures available to cover the situation.

MEDIATION

"We assume that the board originally acted in good faith and explicit knowledge of the nature of CAUT mediation procedures. The president now is clearly in bad faith by failing to accept the procedures and continually distorting the rights of the three professors."

A clear majority of the students and faculty indicated Friday that they do not believe the cases have been decided in accordance with the tenure document".

Meanwhile Justin Harbord of the board of governors repeated a stand he took at a mass meeting of Students Thursday in which he said censure would mean little to Uvic and that he would ignore non-confidence motions in Partridge.

He said Partridge was brought in to do a specific job and was doing it well as "a thoroughly competent administrator."

"We hired a man to . . . see we got value for our money from both the faculty and plant."

WELL AWARE

"We were well aware in advance that he would run into criticism. We expected it. This university was in a mess and Partridge has done a good job in cleaning up some of that mess."

He said the crisis had been generated by faculty resenting Partridge's discipline.

Partridge said Friday night he had no intention of resigning but would continue on "to help Uvic become the great university it has the potential to be."

He said the student vote calling for his dismissal "shows we have not done as good a job as we should have in telling the students the university's position."

"Uvic is never going to become the great university it could be as long as it has a president who does not hold the academic credentials to be accepted by his peers at this university or anywhere else," said Norman Wright, former Alma Mater Society president and steering committee member.

Wright also attacked Harbord and the rest of the board of governors.

Harbord, he said, "lacks the basic understanding of the ideas necessary to be a member of the board."

"They're accusing everyone of intellectual imbecility, the students and the faculty. It's the hard line of men who have nothing else to offer. They've created the bloody situation themselves."

On the student front, a petition calling for censure of Alma Mater Society president Ian J. McKinnon and demanding his resignation for actions "detrimental to the promotion of student interests" had drawn about 700 signatures by Saturday morning.

The petition will be introduced at a meeting of the representative assembly meeting Sunday night.

In an earlier development, reports of furious activity at the university's duplicating and mailing offices at about 2 a.m. Friday drew curious students to the area.

But a blanket of security had been thrown over the operation and students investigating came up with a blank.

It turned out later a statement signed by Partridge and four deans was delivered to faculty in a campus mail delivery at 3 p.m. Friday, half an hour before a faculty association meeting.

STATEMENT

Another statement signed by arts and science dean John Climenhaga and fine arts dean Peter Garvie was attached.

The Times received the first half of the document as a press release at 3:30 p.m.

The statement by Partridge reiterated his stand that the cases of Dr. William Goede, Dr. Tikam Jain and Toby Graff were closed and would not be reopened despite "enormous political pressure," because to do so would establish a dangerous precedent.

REJECTION

It re-stated the administration's rejection of the Canadian Association of University Teachers and its proposals.

But the statement by Garvie and Climenhaga, which dealt with the 12 faculty involved in a contract dispute, said the current status of Goede, Graff and Jain was in a state of appeal to the CAUT "to assist in their cases."

Earlier in the week a "personal and confidential" memo from Partridge to individual faculty members was delivered by the administration to the press as a news release several hours before it went to faculty members.

Protest Film 'Evidence'

A Vancouver lawyer has taken steps to obtain a CBC film of the demonstration at the opening of the B.C. legislature session last Jan. 21 to submit as an exhibit at a trial scheduled to be held in provincial court April 30.

The trial involves Paul Watson, 23, of Vancouver, charged with assaulting causing bodily harm to George MacKay, a retired RCMP superintendent who was acting as a guard at the opening.

He is also charged with causing a distrubance by shouting.

Peter Leask, Watson's lawyer, asked Judge William Ostler for a delay because one witness was "giving birth to a child" and because steps to obtain a "film representation of the acts" from Toronto had not been completed.

He said the film might provide a complete pictorial record of the events.

The judge granted a delay to April 30.

Protection Asked for Local Firms

Protection of locally-owned and community-oriented businesses was urged by the Truck Loggers' Association in a brief submitted to a legislative committee Thursday.

"The alternative, which is earnestly to be avoided," the brief said," is that all business and all employers will be corporate giants."

By implication this meant the majority of employers would be foreign-owned companies, it said.

"When that stage is reached there is a tendency for business to have all too little interest in community responsibilities and too much indifference to the management of public lands under licence."

In New Delhi, Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi described the situation as "not merely the suppression of a movement but meeting unarmed people with tanks."

She said Pakistan had lost an opportunity to strengthen itself in a manner which is "tragic and agonizing, about which we cannot find strong enough words."

Ontario Mother of 8 Wins $121,500 Prize

By The Canadian Press

Audrey Walker, a 43-year-old mother of eight from Inglewood, Ont., won $121,500 today when Double Cream was first to the wire in the Lincolnshire Handicap at Doncaster, England.

Mrs. Walker was one of five Canadians who held Irish Hospitals Sweepstake tickets on Double Cream.

"We've been married 28 years and never had a holiday so one thing I would like is for my husband to get away even if just for a week," said Mrs. Walker.

Her husband, Alexander, 46, earns just over $100 a week as quarry manager for Corners Sandstone Quarries of Glen Williams, Ont. Their home is about 30 miles northwest of Toronto.

Seven of the couple's children, ranging in age from four to 22, live at home. The eldest son, who is 23, is married and has two children. Their youngest son is Timmy, whose name was used as a nom-de-plume on the winning ticket

WON'T MOVE

"One thing we won't be looking for is a new home," said Mrs. Walker. "Our place is about 80 years old but has plenty of rooms—seven bedrooms."

Mrs. Walker said she plans to make a number of donations to charitable or medical institutions, and wants to buy a small car to supplement their truck.

"My husband is still going to go on working and we don't intend to let the money change our way of life," she said.

Mrs. Walker has been buying sweepstake tickets for a number of years and always regarded her purchases as donations. The sweepstake is an international lottery held in aid of hospitals in the Republic of Ireland.

Mrs. Walker was one of two Ontario residents who won the top prize. The other was A. W. (Tom) Tompkins, 76, of Oakville, a former employer of the Canadian Arsenals plant in Port Credit. His wife died last year.

FIVE WERE SECOND

Five Canadians also held tickets on the second-place finisher, Tandy, and will receive about $48,600 each.

"I'm just a little excited, not too much," said Edith Shuter, who planned to treat her husband to a celebration dinner tonight.

Mrs. Shuter, who was born in Saskatoon, has travelled all over Europe, Canada and the United States with her husband, E. H. Shuter, a retired lieutenant-colonel and formerly of the Queen's Own Rifles.

Col. Shuter, who left his native Birmingham, England, at the age of three, now is a secretary at the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto.

Mrs. Shuter, who has four grown children, is an elementary school teacher and has no plans to quit.

"I just love those Grade 2 kids and wouldn't think of leaving them."

Asked how he felt about it all, Mr. Shuter said: "It's her money."

Only two Canadians held tickets on Brother Scot, who took third place. Each wins about $24,300

A total of 234 Canadians held tickets on the Lincolnshire and those whose horses were non-starters or out of the running will get about $1,100 each, depending on the size of the total pool.

The total amount of money put into the pool by Canadians cannot be estimated since the sale of sweepstake tickets is illegal in Canada. But the Canadian winnings totalled an estimated $1,143,300.

The other three Canadians who held tickets on Double Cream were identified unofficially as Coleen Blomquist, Malakwa, B.C.; N. T. Godfrey, Saskatoon; and Mike and Pat Bahrich, Saskatoon.

Also holding tickets on Tandy were Lorraine Beauchamp, St. Boniface, Man.; Hazel Smith, Smithers, B.C.; Olive Horan, Victoria; and H. Wlodkowski, Toronto

The two Canadians who won $24,300 with tickets on third-place finisher Brother Scot were identified as Agnes McCallum of Toronto and B. Creelman of Stewiacke, N.S.

Ad Ban Hits Papers

Several small newspapers and magazines are expected to be killed or crippled by the B.C. government's plan to ban tobacco and alcohol advertising.

The proposed ban, announced Friday in the legislature, will cause newspapers, magazines, radio and TV stations to lose advertising reveneus estimated at almost $3 million a year.

Full impact of the ban, described as a severe blow by men in the advertising business, was still being determined today.

Prince George brewery chief Ben Ginter was critical of the government plan and he indicated his firm would turn to border TV stations in the U.S. for product publicity.

Jim Schatz, president of the B.C. Weekly Newspaper Publisher Association, said liquor advertising accounts for about 10 per cent of the average weekly newspaper's revenue. He said the loss could put a number of papers "in serious trouble."

"I think we are just getting started," he said.

Of the deformed babies, some have congenital heart defects, some are blind and some were born with a rash. Deafness and mental retardation, other forms of rubella deformity, are not usually detected in tiny babies.

Dr. Kettyls told the doctors last September's German measles immunization program has effectively controlled the spread of the disease among elementary and pre-school children, but added the epidemic will not abate until there are enough people in the community with an immunity to the disease so that its spread is blocked.

Wage, Price Curbs Set

WASHINGTON (WP) — U.S. Secretary of Labor James Hodgson revealed Friday a plan to impose governmental controls on prices and wages in the construction industry.

President Nixon is expected to implement the program by executive order Monday

The program would also include limitations on executive salaries, dividends and bonuses in the industry, Hodgson said. In response to questions, he was non committal on profits.

If implemented by the president, the action would be a clean break with his previous policies. Heretofore Nixon has rejected all proposals for specific wage and price controls.

comment as a cabinet minister about the position of cablevision companies carrying U.S. alcohol ads.

"But speaking as a lawyer, no doubt there will be a number of constitutional issues over the effect of this," Loffmark added. He said he would support any action Ottawa might take to restrict cigarette and tobacco advertising.

Herb Capozzi (SC—Vancouver Centre) whose family is in the winemaking business didn't like the ban on alcohol advertising. He said his family has developed a series of fruit wines which require advertising to inform the public.

"Obviously they are not going to ban entirely the use of alcohol, so I don't see why people should not be able to persuade drinkers towards moderation," Capozzi said.

He said he will oppose the liquor advertising prohibition.

Capozzi also had reservations about the end of cigarette advertising, but said he probably would support it.

Gardom said the tobacco legislation is "very much a citizens' bill because he reads it to mean that anyone can take action against advertisers if he spots a tobacco ad.

Scott Wallace (SC—Oak Bay) praised the legislation, noting that he earlier had supported Gardom's private member's bill.

At his press conference, Bennett said the government wanted to prohibit all liquor advertising in 1953 under the Government Liquor Act, but "intensive lobbying from the press" led to a retention of their right to publish liquor ads.

He said the bills have been introduced because the government created a $25 million drug, alcohol and tobacco education, rehabilitation and prevention fund this year.

"The government feels that if it's taking the taxpayers' money for that purpose, it should abolish the pushers as well," Bennett said.

He emphasized that the government is not restricting anyone's freedom to smoke and drink.
